Publisher's Preface.

IN presenting a Directory of Scranton City, Dunmore, and Waverly Borough to the public, we bespeak for it a friendly reception, as we believe its merits entitle it to that distinction. We have aimed to make, as our prospectus promised, a full and complete directory of the names of those residing within the limits of the places we have designated, including also a history of the rise and progress of Scranton, together with comprehensive details of its present immense manufacturing establishments, its schools, churches, societies, &c., &c.

Our effort has been to make a work as nearly perfect as possible, and to that end we have been unremitting in our labors. That the book is liable to criticism we freely admit, but while we say this, we claim that for a first attempt in this locality to collect and arrange the many materials of which it is composed, it is more than usually perfect, and therefore entitled to the confidence of those into whose hands it may fall.

The labor of procuring accurate information on all subjects presented has been attended with many difficulties that will not embarrass future efforts in this direction. We feel a pride in believing that what is herein presented will not only be valuable and serviceable to the citizens of Scranton, but will enable strangers and residents of other places to obtain something near a correct idea of its present importance and the basis upon which is predicated the belief of its future greatness.

We doubt not many who see this book will be surprised at the extent of the business and manufacturing interests it shows to be already centered in Scranton. We believe, however, that its manufacturing enterprises are yet in their infancy. Its advantages for manufacturing are so great and so manifest, that they cannot fail to draw hither continually new branches of industry. In the heart of the coal region, fuel is inexhaustible and costs almost nothing; the center of a network of railroads, its facilities for gathering in raw material and for sending finished products to market (New York being only seven hours distant) are unsurpassed; as yet undeveloped, sites for manufacturing concerns can be bought comparatively cheap; there is now a large class of unemployed labor here which could be profitably used in cotton or woolen mills, boot and shoe factories, &c. ; the Lackawanna and Wyoming vallies themselves, with a population of about one hundred thousand souls, supply an almost inexhaustible market for many varieties of manufactured goods. Scranton is, in brief, able to offer to manufacturers all the advantages that can be gained in any location, and many that can be found nowhere else. Such facilities are sure to be taken advantage of.

We congratulate ourself and our subscribers on having been able to secure the valuable services of Dr. H. Hollister, of Providence, in preparing the historical sketches of Scranton, Providence, and Dunmore, embraced in the first forty pages of the work. To Dr. A. Davis, of Hyde Park, we return thanks for a history of the M. D.'s who have lived and practiced their profession in this valley. We are under obligations also to Dr. C. A. Stevens for information relative to the Masonic Fraternity. To Hon. John Brisbin, Watts Cooke, John B. Smith, George Johnson, A. J. Smith, Thomas Dickson, George L. Dickson, E. W. Weston, J. J. Albright, J. C. Platt, E. P. Kingsbury, James S. Slocum, and James Archbald, Esqs., the clergymen of the various churches, and others, who have aided us, and in various ways encouraged the enterprise, we return our cordial thanks. We desire also to acknowledge our appreciation of the encouragement afforded us by the business men of Scranton.

MORRIS & ESSEX RAILROAD.

The Morris and Essex Railroad, already opened through to Easton, is an important link in the great net work of railroads through our country; and affords a cheap and easy transit to the citizens of this valley, to New York or Easton—connecting as it does with the Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western Railroad at Washington. This is the only direct line to Newark, N. J., from this locality, and passengers reach New York full as quick as by any other line. This road traverses a country unsurpassed in beauty of scenery and full of historic interest. MORRISTOWN, once the headquarters of GENERAL WASHINGTON, is on the line of this road. The old house where Washington and his Generals held their consultations in the trying times of the American Revolution still stands there on a gentle rise of ground overlooking the town. The same furniture used by the General still remains in the old house, and is carefully taken care of by the town authorities. Many other places of note and importance—which we have not the time and space to speak of in this article—are reached by this road. The road is built in the most substantial manner, with all the modern improvements, and its management is faultless—A. P. Berthoud, its General Superintendent, is, probably, one of the best Railroad men in the country, having had a long experience in the various details of his business.

Conductors being the representative men of a Company, this road is particularly fortunate in having secured the services of such men as J. T. Langstaff, A. B. Fuller, and others, whose constant care is the comfort and safety of their passengers. We bespeak for this popular route a large passenger traffic from the Lackawanna Valley.

History of Scranton.

Lackawanna Valley owes its earliest explorations and settlement entirely to the Moravians, who fled from Moravia, in Germany, to escape persecution, and made their first settlement in Pennsylvania, in 1740. After they had established themselves at Bethlehem long enough to become familiar with the Indian language, they pushed eighteen miles northward, where the rapid Ma-ha-noy joins the Lehigh, and made the first settlement in a north direction in Pennsylvania, above the Blue Ridge. On the old warrior's path by way of Wyoming, this was about fifty miles from the mouth of the Lackawanna, and from the inhospitable character of the forest, extending even to the cold shore of Lake Ontario, this philanthropic settlement was named Gnad-en-hutten, or Huts of Mercy.

The Indian name of this stream was Lehaw-hanna (pronounced La-ha-hanna, the letter "a" in the Indian guttural having the sound of "r" as Lr-hr-hr-nr).

Lehaw, the prefix, signifying the forks, and hanna, as in Susque-hanna, Toby-hanna, Rappa-hannock, Tunkhanna, and Tunkhannock, implying in Indian language a stream of water, or a stream of laughing water. Lackawanna is the corruption of the Indian word Lehaw-hanna.

In the earliest surveys by Connecticut, in 1769-70, Lackawna appears upon the map, while the Pennsylvania Archives of 1769, page 343, tell of persons building "a log house for defense at Lacknawanack, near Wio-ming, on the Susquehannah." Thomas Bennett assisted a party of New England men, in 1769, to build a block house at a place called Lana-wanak. (Pa. Archives, 1771.) "Forks of the Lahawanah." (Pa. Archives, 1771.)

The Westmoreland Records, in 1771, speak of the stream and the valley as Lackaworna; in 1772 as Lockorworna; in 1774 as Lackawanna and Lockawarna. After the Wyoming battle, the Pittston forts capitulated to the British, July 4, 1778, under the name of Lacawanack forts. Upon the Records of Luzerne county, of 1790, as well as upon the official documents of this and subsequent years, the name of Lakawanuk so often occurs in relating to this locality, that the name appeared to have been a mere provincialism for a time. About the year 1840 the wannock was lopped off by gradual habit, and the original and sweet sounding name of Lackawanna again adopted.

The zealous friend of these brethren was Count Zinzendorf, a distinguished foreigner, who, to advance their religious interests, and to bring to bear the ameliorating influences of Christianity upon the red men, came from Saxony to the wilds of Pennsylvania on this errand of love. In company with a celebrated missionary named Mack, and his heroic wife, both acquainted with the Indian tongue, they visited Waughwawame, the principal town in Wyoming Valley, and the Indian village of Assarughney, ten miles up the Susquehanna, standing midway between the mouth of the Lackawanna and the bold precipice famed afar as "Campbell's Ledge."*

This was in 1742, and it is known, or rather believed, to be the first visit ever made to the Lackawanna Valley by a white man or woman. The visit lasted twenty days, and as these enthusiastic and daring missionaries had permission from the Indians to visit all their villages, it is probable that Capouse was honored by their presence, as it stood up the Lackawanna only eight miles from Assarughney.

Capouse Meadow was the permanent camp place of Capouse and his tribe. It extended down Lackawanna to the mouth of Nayaugt† or Roaring Brook, and up the stream as far as the Capouse works of Mr. Carter. The Scranton race course is located about midway along the ancient dominions of this once pacific chief, and the Diamond mines open upon its western border. The rich alluvial meadow land literally scooped out of the Moosic range, giving to that portion of the valley lying in the old certified town of Providence, upon the west side of the Lackawanna, such a canoe or basin-like appearance, was known and designated as "Ye Capouse Meadow," by the earliest settlers, to perpetuate the memory and virtues of this great chief. Although the whole valley was occupied by the Indians, as hunting grounds, long before the blankness of the red man's life was changed by the pale face, and there were seven Indian villages strung along the Lackawanna when first explored by the whites, all standing on the western bank, facing the east, the only two with a meadow or land cleared around the wigwams, for a garden, or a mound to carefully receive their dead, were Capouse and Assarughney—the first a Monsey and the last a Delaware town.

The Indian title to this land, and all the lands of the Lackawanna valley within ten miles east of the Susquehanna, was extinguished by purchase, July 11th, 1754, at a grand Council of the Six Nations held at Albany, but no attempt was made by the whites to explore or settle the valley until 1769.

*Tachuckdorus, a friendly Chief who appeared before the Prohibited Council in Philadelphia Feb. 22nd, 1756, in giving information in regard to the Delawares, informed them that "the Delawares fled to Assarockney and higher up, having there a big hill (probably meaning Campbell's Ledge) on one side, and the river Susquehanna on the other side of their present town."—Colonial Record, Vol. 7, P. 52.

†This brook was called Nayaugt or Naw-yaw by the Indians. The etymology of this word is something in doubt. The syllable na pronounced naw, seems to have been associated with the idea of noise—sounding, or roaring, in the Indian language, as well as in many other tongues. [Prof. Chapin and Roger Williams.]

This purchase of land was called the Susquehanna Company's Indian purchase, and it extended from the line ten miles east of the river, one hundred and twenty miles west, to within two Counties of Lake Erie. All of this vast territory peopled with savages and rich with native wild-ernes, was named in Connecticut Surveys, as the "Town and County of Westmoreland." *

The land west of the Delaware river, to the line within ten miles of the Susquehanna, was subsequently purchased from the Indians by a Connecticut Company, known as the Delaware Co. The square Township in the Delaware purchase contained 23,000 acres; those in the Susquehanna purchase, being five miles square, contained 16,000 acres.† It will be readily seen that the division line between these two purchases ran between Scranton and Dunmore, and then bending to the left, passed through Scott, Abington, and along the upper waters of the Tunkhannock, Meshoppen, Wyalusing, terminating near the village of Athens at Tioga Point. The greater portion of Dunmore was thus included in the Delaware Indian purchase, while a portion only of Providence and Abington was embraced in the Susquehanna Indian purchase.

As early as 1757 a settlement was commenced by the Delaware Company at Coshutunk on the Delaware river, which flourished several years.‡

In 1762 there lived here sixteen families, and the whole settlement extended seven miles along the river. John Williamson, employed by order of Gov. Hamilton of Pennsylvania, to gain intelligence of the numbers settled here whom he had ordered away the year previous, reported that their head man is named Moses Thomas, lives in ye 2nd Settlement; his brother lives half a mile from him, and is named Aaron Thomas, lives in ye 1st Settlement.

"There are in all 40 men—told him they held their lands under New England—have laid out a town four miles to the west of them, on a body of fine land, on a branch running in Lackawaxen—threatened if any Sheriff came to molest them, they would tie a stone about his neck and send him down to his Governor, they knew the woods well and would pop them down three for one."

Nathan Chapman, who lives on the Jersey side, told him no body of men could come up without their having notice half a day before they arrived, from the Minisink people, who had promised to give them intelligence. They told him they had not heard from Connecticut for a great while, and did not know whether any persons were coming from thence to settle amongst them; but that whenever Wyoming was settled, they would leave Casetunk and go and settle there under New England, (except Nathan Parks, who said he would submit to any Government that had the right to it) was informed by them that the land held good for fifty miles up Delaware; said their Agent was lately returned from England, and brought news that there was no doubt of getting the land for Connecticut. Some have got four or five acres of Indian corn, some three, some two; no wheat—lives in pretty good log houses, covered with white pine shingles, or boards, vast quantities of that kind of timber there, very fine. The land upon which they are settled, is very good; did not pretend to hold under any Indian Right; Said it would be hard to hurt them, and should fall on those who sent them—were in general scarce of provisions, especially bread—get their corn in cans from Minisink. The land flies are intolerable. The route he took was up the Delaware to Minnisink, to Keikendahls, which is seventy miles from Easton, crossed the Delaware at Wolpack, fifteen miles above Depuis; from Keikendahls, travelled in an Indian path to Casetunk, which is forty miles, a miserable rocky country. At Goshen, a man told him his wife had lately returned from In river, where she heard that one hundred families were coming from Connecticut, in as private a manner as possible, to settle the land at Wyoming."*

The Indian war path from the Delaware River to the Wyoming Valley came into the Capouse near the northern part of Scranton, and was, before the arrival of the whites, the only known trail approaching the valley from the east.

The first road built in the adjoining county of Wayne, started from Cusetunk (now Damaseus,) and ran from thence to Big Eddy (Narrowsburgh,) thence to the narrows on the Lackawaxen through Paupack, Salem, sloping into this old Indian Meadow, about one mile above Slocum Hollow.

Before this, however, in 1769, the Shohola or Connecticut road, was marked out by the early emigrants from Hartford. Being the nearest route, it was selected, and as it followed this old trail of the Indians, it required less labor to give it the few advantages it possessed over the surrounding wilderness for the passage of wagons.

Providence township, laid out five miles square, covered an area of 6,000 acres, and included within its limits territory now embraced in the city of Scranton, consisting of Scranton proper, Hyde Park and Providence, together with the flourishing villages of Olyphant, Dunmore, and a portion of the present township of Pittston. It was designated in the old Westmoreland Records as "Ye sixth town of Capouse." A few emigrants from Hartford, Ct., buoyed with hope and heroism, and undaunted by the perils incident to the life of the early frontiersmen, in these then savage wilds, marked out their pitches* here in 1771; but were either summoned by the hatchets, or fled from the valley before exulting savages, in the summer of 1778; so that no successful attempt to settle Slocum Hollow was made until 1786.

The close of the revolutionary struggle naturally awakened hopes of permanent repose, to the inhabitants of a region well known to be fertile and inviting.

Settlers began to pour in from New England, and many who had been driven from the country by their savage assailants returned again, as the arrow and the hatchet no more threatened their abandoned firesides. Among them was Philip Abbott, who returned to the Lackawanna Valley in 1786, at the time the renowned Col. Ethan Allen, of Vermont, visited Wyoming Valley, with the view of forming an independent State to be called "Westmoreland," with its capitol at Wilkes-Barre. Philip was a native of Windham county, Connecticut, and had previously owned property in Wyoming, which he had disposed of, in 1777, to his more courageous brother James, who was among the number expelled by the Tories and Indians the ensuing year. Philip built a small log house on the edge of Roaring Brook, but a few feet in front of the location of the old house of Esquire Slocum, in 1788. After Philip had explored the fine water power along the Lackawanna, with the view of supplying the present or any future want that agricultural development in the Capouse Meadow, or elsewhere along the valley, could not fail to inspire, he commenced to erect a mere miniature corn or grist mill, upon the northern bank of the Roaring Brook, just as it enters the Capouse region, and but a few rods above the location of the present grist mill in Scranton, in the year 1788.

This was constructed in a manner simple and original, merely by elevating the mill stones sufficiently from the necessary gearing beneath. A rude leather belt placed on the drum of the water wheel, then twisted and put on the spindle of the mill stones, comprised the total and complete machinery of the mill. The flinty, silicious stones, first used in this mill, for grinding, were brought from an adjoining ledge, and were as rudely shaped as was the mill itself. Slabs split or hewn from the tree, and barks lashed on with withes, composed the roof as well as the sides of this structure; all of which was supported by six strong crutches, cut from the sturdy saplings growing upon the banks of the stream. Its bolt was quite as unique and curious as any part of the contrivance, consisting of a dry deer skin, closely perforated with small holes. This, being operated entirely by hand, made the only separation of the flour from the coarse bran. An old gentleman, who has passed from among us, once told the writer that when a boy he often accompanied his father to the mill, and that while the grist was being ground he was compelled to shake this novel bolt, while "the old man and the miller got jolly on the whiskey punches in the house." Constructed so imperfectly, it could for some time only crack the Indian corn for samp, one of the greatest luxuries here at that period.

James Abbott became interested in this property in October of the same year, and in April, 1789, Reuben Taylor became associated with the Abbotts in the mill. Mr. Taylor built a log house a few rods below that of Mr. Abbott, which was the second house erected in "Deep Hollow." They also cut and cleared off a few acres of land immediately below this point on the bank of the brook. At this time only two other grist mills were to be found, in all the large district of country now embraced in Luzerne, Susquehanna, Wyoming, Wayne, and Pike counties. Grist of grain were brought from the bordering counties to Slocum's mill often upon the backs of the sturdy pioneers, and sometimes even by hardy and heroic women, who performed the journey alone and on foot, while the husband toiled for a sustenance on the new made clearing at home. The mother of the writer informed him that after the settlement of Salem, Wayne county, in 1814, she had often crossed over Cobb mountain, alone, on horse back, to Slocum's mill, with a bag of grain, sometimes carrying a child in her arms. The journey took two days, and was not unfrequently enlivened towards evening by the sublime howling of wolves alarmingly near.

The Slocums were a hospitable people, and usually kept those all night who came too long a distance to return to their homes the same day.

In 1814, Timothy Stevens erected a grist mill in Blakely, upon the Lackawanna, and two years later Edmund Harford commenced another one, upon one of the fair water tributaries of the Wallenpaupack, in Salem, Wayne county, a short distance above the ancient "Lackawa" settlement.

In the spring of 1790, John Howe purchased the mill of the Messrs. Abbott and Taylor, and with his brother, Seth Howe, moved into Taylor's house. Taylor then took possession of the land now known as the Uncle Joe Griffin Farm, but thinking it would never be worth the trifling county and state tax imposed upon it, disposed of it at the first opportunity. Upon Stafford Meadow Brook,* a little below Scranton, the Staffords built a saw mill, which finally passed into the hands of the Slocums.

*This brook took its name from Capt. John Stafford, who made the first purchase upon its head waters, in 1777.

A man named Gwin came from New Jersey, in 1799, to "Slocum's Hollow," as this portion of Capouse was designated after 1798. Howe and Gwin built a log grist mill, in 1804, upon one of the most southern branches of the Tunkhannock, now in Scott township, and hence the impression by many, that the first mill in Slocum Hollow was built by them. In 1798 there stood here but two houses, which were occupied respectively by John Howe and his family and Stephen Gwin.

There had been little or no progress towards extending the settlement at the Hollow up to this time.

In fact there were but fifty-three taxables in the entire valley, above Pittston township, in 1796, as will be seen by the subjoined list:

Joseph Fellows, Sen., had permanently located himself on the hillside, across the yet bridgeless Lackawanna, Reuben Taylor and John La Frouse just below him, Wm. Bishop lived in the woods, where Judge Merrifield's house now stands, in Hyde Park, and the Tripps on the western edge of Capouse Meadow above. While on a visit to Capouse, the extraordinary inducements to men of energy offered by Roaring Brook, with its frequent falls and liberal current, and its banks covered with timber, induced Ebenezer and Benjamin Slocum to purchase the entire improvements of John Howe, in 1798. This was more readily done at this time, as Miss Lydia Howe, a daughter of John Howe, had just committed suicide, in a temporary fit of despondency, by hanging herself with her garters. This appalling event rendered the solitude and loneliness of this Capouse glen to Mrs. Howe so much more desolate than before that she induced her husband to part with the property without reluctance.

The year 1798 was an important one in the history of the Hollow. An unsuccessful attempt had been made previous to this to call the mill and two log houses Unionville, but settlers visiting the mill at that time called it "The Holler," until after 1798, when by general consent or understanding it became known as "Slocum Hollow."

Ebenezer was married to a daughter of Dr. Joseph Davis, one of the most eccentric medical men ever known in the Lackawanna Valley. Half a century ago all the surgical and medical business along the Lackawanna, and much of that in Wyoming Valley, fell into Dr. Davis's hands. He died in 1830, aged 98 years.

Benjamin was a single man. He afterwards married Miss Phebe La Fronse. The old red house now standing on the edge of Roaring Brook, known far and wide as the old "Squire Slocum house," was erected by Ebenezer Slocum in the fall of 1805. There was no clearing here at this time, other than a small patch for a garden, in the rear of this house, a narrow strip by the mill and forge, and a few acres down Roaring Brook. Benjamin built the second frame house in the Hollow, on the bluff overlooking the forge dam. So grand was the view from the porch of this new building upon the forge below, glowing and hissing with its flaming retinue, that an octogenarian informs the writer that it was called in olden time "Looking down into purgatory."

A saw mill was built here by the Slocums in 1799, after the primitive grist mill had been enlarged and repaired, and a distillery had been added thereto. Up the gentle slope towards the present location of the Wyoming House, land was cleared in 1810. The deer, sheltered by the tall pines, spreading their green foliage far up the mountain and down the valley, had ever browsed and loitered over the site of Scranton undisturbed till now. The woods extending over the present depot and round house location were chopped and logged off, in 1816, and one crop of wheat sown and gathered.

To the vigorous mind of Dr. Wm. Hooker Smith, the lower portion of the valley was indebted for the conception and existence of a forge, which at this time was converting the raw ores into ready iron; but no attempt was made to develop the mineral wealth of any other portion of it, until the Slocums erected their forge in Slocum Hollow, in the year 1800. Near the grist mill and the extra dam already thrown across the stream stood this forge, with its fires and single trip hammer, and from the bog ore cropping out along the various creeks in the valley was forged out the iron. Here these sun burnt energetic men, under the shadows of a protecting cliff, fashioned and worked their forges, and the sound of the trip hammer and the roar of the waterfall formed the choral of their domestic life.

Not knowing the mechanical use of the anthracite coal blackening the creek sides around their forge, they had to depend solely upon charcoal for heating. Anthracite, in fact, was used nowhere in the United States for making iron, until 1837, although bituminous coal was employed in England for that purpose by Dudley, about one hundred years before.

The ore, generally found in small pieces, was broken still finer and roasted, then placed in the conical shaped furnaces, constructed of stone. In these furnaces it was mixed with the proper quantity of charcoal, then melted and separated from the slag. The cast-iron being then very brittle, was reduced to malleable-iron by heating again in a bed of charcoal, rolled into balls, when it was caught and shaped by the clattering trip-hammer, into any desired form or size.

Iron thus made here by the Slocums, is said to have been fibrous in texture, very stout, and little liable to rust. About twenty-five per cent was allowed for waste.

The expense of thus making iron was found to be so considerable, that only its increasing demand for mill irons, blacksmith purposes, ploughshares, &c., from many parts, but more especially from the Lake country, enabled them to manufacture it at a living profit.

Up to 1828, a period of twenty-eight years, was this productive forge always at work; and then the difficulty of obtaining the necessary ore, some of which was brought from several miles up the Lackawanna, over close, thick underbrush of the forest, the worn-out condition of the forge, combined with the imperative demands of other business, tended to its final abandonment.

In connection with this forge a sawmill, two distilleries, and their grist-mill, was successfully operated by the Slocums, who, in return for early investments and privations, began to receive ample and well-deserved remuneration.

At various times the Slocums had purchased lands in the vicinity of the Capouse, and at the time of the death of Ebenezer, he owned some 1,700 acres--most of which was coal land.

Ebenezer and Benjamin, it will be recollected, were brothers to Frances Slocum, who was taken prisoner by the Indians at Wilkes Barre in 1778, and whose sad subsequent history, awakened throughout the country, so thrilling an interest. She died at Logansport, Indiana, in July, 1853, among the red tribes, who had taught her to love them, and whose habits had become her own. She left two daughters, one of whom has since gone the way of her mother.

Ebenezer himself was picked up by the savages at the same time. "The mother," says Miner, "stepped up to the savage, and reaching for the child, said: 'He can do you no good; see he is lame.' With a grim smile, giving up the boy, he took Frances, her daughter, aged about five years, gently into his arms, and seizing the younger Kingsley by the hand, hurried away to the mountains."

Strange as was this escape from life-long captivity, or death, it was not more miraculous than an event in his history in 1808. At this time, Ebenezer was engaged in removing some slight obstruction about the race of the forge, when he accidentally fell into the current while the forge was in full operation. The negro who was at work with the trip-hammer at the time, sprang for a piece of wood, which, with great presence of mind, he placed under the hammer in such a manner as to arrest the motion of the water-wheel at once, leaving the buckets so in range with the race, that Slocum passed through with the current, coming out below the forge without sustaining any greater injury than the terrible fright the sub-marine journey gave him. What seems the most incredible is, that while Slocum was a man of more than liberal stature—weighing about two hundred pounds—he could pass alive through an aperture whose actual width was only six inches!

His son Joseph, who was born in Slocum Hollow in the year 1800, and who lives on Stafford Meadow Brook, a hearty, hale, jolly veteran as he is, yet retains the purse, &c., his father had in his pocket at the time of this remarkable adventure. Until after this impressive event, he never acknowledged the existence of another world.

In 1810, although there were but three houses in Slocum Hollow, a Post-office was established here, and Mr. Slocum appointed Postmaster. Ten years later it was discontinued, and the point on the turnpike at Fellows' Corners selected as a more suitable place for the inhabitants in Providence to receive their letters and papers. At this time there was no P. O. in Luzerne County above this point; the next year (1811) Elder John Miller was appointed Postmaster in Abington.

The Slocum Hollow office was not exceedingly lucrative, for the mail was only brought over the mountains from Easton, via Wilkes Barre, once a week, upon horseback or on foot, and the grand total of the mail-bag in those times, for this destination, was often less than the mail matter now received each day by many business firms in the same vicinity.

July 11th, 1821, Ebenezer received a Commission as Justice of the Peace. Previous to his death—which took place suddenly at Wilkes-Barre,—he had such a strong presentiment that “the Hollow” would at some period be a great place, that he often wished he could re-visit it fifty years after his departure. Although half of the time has not yet expired, a portion of his land is so divided and parcelled out, and so changed, that could we summon his spirit from the “vasty deep,” he could, even now, hardly recognize his former quiet home.

Elisha Hitchcock, Esq., a genial old gentleman, moved into the country from New Hampshire, in 1809, and purchased land in Slocum Hollow in 1816. Being a skillful mill-wright, he wrought all necessary repairs upon the mills of the Slocums, and subsequently married Slocum's daughter. For a period of twenty-four years, he was the only settler living in the upper portion of this secluded glen. He lived to see the forest retreat before the intruding axe stroke, and by his long example of usefulness, sobriety and kindness, contributed no little to elevate and improve the generation around him. The fine brick mansion—standing on the slope of the hill north-east of Scranton, from which one of the prettiest views of the valley, with its close headed hills, is obtained; and where the villages, reposing in its bosom, and the sturdy locomotive sweeping along the green-sward, as if it were mere chess play; the rich farms, and the shaded streams, altogether make up a lovely picture, framed by the Moosic range of mountains—was the residence of the venerable old gentleman at the time of his death.

After the forge in Slocum Hollow had ceased to operate, in 1828, there was nothing at this point to arrest the attention of the passer-by but the saw and grist mill and the busy still house of the Slocums. In fact, after the first impulse given to Slocum Hollow, during the period which elapsed from its first settlement in 1798 to 1810, there had been so little, if any, progress made towards expanding the settlement, clearing lands, or constructing roads, that a pause, almost profound, appears in its history from the latter period up to 1828. During this interval, hardly a single house was built, with the exception of one or two rude structures, for the use of the hardy forge-men. Providence, Abington, Greenfield, and Blakely, began to fill up with a thrifty population, while the "Hollow," having little or no land for agricultural purposes, had nothing but its mills and water power to invite hither the settler. Or if the "Hollow" had a gradual growth at this time, it was not due so much to any encroaching ambition of its own, as to the importance given to it by the necessities of the surrounding settlers. Besides this, the Slocums were men of large social qualifications, and had sufficient wealth and generosity to be contented and happy as they were.

In 1828, the North Branch Canal was commenced at Pittston, and it was hoped by many of the citizens along the Lackawanna, that it might be extended up this stream as far as Slocum Hollow or Providence. Meetings were held in Hyde Park, Providence, and Blakely, for the purpose of urging upon the Legislature the propriety of extending "the feeder of this canal, or some other improvement, up the valley as far as would be thought of service to our citizens and the Commonwealth." Among the moving spirits in these gatherings were Thomas Griffin, William Merrifield, Sylvenas Heermans, Elisha Hitchcock, John Vaughan, William W. Winton, Moses Vaughan, Lewis S. Watres, and the veritable John Q. Smith, who appear as a committee to correspond with the members on the subject. While these meetings, as appears by the Wilkes-Barre Advocate of Dec. 19th, 1838, denounced the "black-leg drivellers, in the shape of incorporated companies," they no doubt directed a little attention to the coal and iron hills along the valley, where nothing had been done yet in the way of their development, except by the simple operations of Dr. W. Hooker Smith, at Old Forge, by the Slocums at Slocum Hollow, and by the more comprehensive yet persecuted Maurice and William Wurts. in the forests at Carbondale.

It is a curious fact that the village of Scranton owes its inception to an effort made by the friends of the "Drinker Railroad," to get it constructed. Henry Drinker and William Henry, who were actively and prominently associated in this enterprise during a long series of years of terrible commercial embarrassment and disaster, and who, after great pecuniary sacrifice and physical labor, could not infuse into the inhabitants of the valley,—generally poor and indifferent to anything apparently foreign to their advantage,—the importance of this eastern outlet, although they themselves never despaired of ultimately seeing it opened, concluded to let the age ripen before again urging capitalists to work upon their proposed highway. Among the very few who looked upon this phantom of a railroad with either a friendly or hopeful eye, and who contributed by personal sacrifices to vindicate and renew the Charter of the “Leggit’s Gap” Railroad, simply to revive and advance the welfare of the “Drinker Railroad,” was Dr. A. Bedford, of Abington, a modest gentleman, whose uprightness as a man and influence as a citizen have been more widely felt in Abington for the last half century than those of any other one, with the single exception of the late beloved John Miller, ever living in that enterprising and flourishing township.

Years of reconnoissance along the western end of the contemplated route, made Henry so familiar with the mineralogical character of the country, that at a meeting of the friends of this road, held three days in Easton, in June, 1836, he expressed a belief that if an iron interest was awakened and once developed in the Lackawanna valley, a town would probably be built as well as the road. He proposed to the gentlemen present to erect a blast furnace somewhere on the route above Pittston, and if success attended the manufacture of iron, as he was sanguine it would, it could not fail to accomplish, in a short period of time, the great desideratum years had failed to mature. Men composing this meeting were marked by strong good sense and liberal views, and yet this idea partook so much of the bold and the original, that, with a single exception, it received about the same attention from them that the public generally had given their own favorite project. Edward Armstrong, a gentleman of wealth, residing on the delightful east bank of the Hudson river, not only favored the proposition, but offered himself to Mr. Henry as a partner in the purchase of land, and in the erection of iron works, at any point deemed most judicious by him, after a more minute survey. During the summer of 1839, Mr. Henry traversed the country westward and southward, examining various places along the route, to find the best location.

On the low, wild, narrow strip of land, lying almost in the forks of the Lackawanna and the Roaring Brook, from which Scranton itself seems to have exhaled, he found iron ore, the analysis of which proved so productive and inviting as to determine, at once, the site of the furnace.

This tract of land comprised a portion of the old “Parsonage lot,” which was so wisely set apart by the original laws of the Connecticut settlers in Westmoreland, for the use of the first minister in fee, and which was so shrewdly obtained subsequently of the State of Pennsylvania, and disposed of, by Elder William Bishop, the first Baptist preacher in the Lackawanna valley. This tract of land, after passing through several hands, had fallen into the possession of William Merrifield, Zenas Albro, and William Ricketson. Situated, as it was, upon this brook, where the water comes bubbling down from the mountain sides; imbedded with vast deposits of iron and coal; and being on the surveyed route of the Susquehanna and Delaware Railroad, the location apparently furnished every feature and element essential to success. The ledge of rock here projecting its silicious face over the brook, promised a good article of hearthstones for the furnace, and stone for the erection of the stack. Nor was this all: the North Branch* excitement was reaching its meridian. Col. H. B. Wright, and Chester Butler, esq., two of the foremost politicians of the day in Luzerne county, became interested in the project, and gave assurance of its being carried up the Lackawanna, as far as Roaring Brook, so that limestone, for the use of the works, could be abundantly and cheaply furnished.

Of all these facts, Mr. Armstrong was apprised by Mr. Henry in January, 1840; visited by him in the following March, when every arrangement was made by them to form a co-partnership in the purchase of this property, consisting of 503 acres, and the erection thereon of one or more blast furnaces. Mr. Henry returned to the valley; and, after negotiating some three months for the land, finally purchased it for $8000, equal to about $16 per acre—a price then considered enormous, by people generally, for land possessing no other attractions than the useless minerals reposing within its bosom, and huge boulders and trees concealing the scanty soil. As the purchase money was to be paid by Mr. Armstrong, he required the deed to be made out in his own name. For the first payment, a draft of $2,500 in favor of the owners of the property was given by Mr. Henry, on Edward Armstrong, at thirty days; but before it matured, Mr. Armstrong was laid in his grave. A few days previous to his illness, which lasted but four days, he wrote to Mr. Henry, “to be sure and secure the Sloecum property.” He died with the scarlet fever, a disease which, at the same time, carried off two of his children, and for a long time rendered his wife almost helpless and heart broken. Thus, death at one stern blow, not only made the fireside desolate, but seemed to claim for the sepulchre the efforts of the living partner.

Mr. Maitland, his administrator, at once wrote to Mr. Henry, at Stroudsburg, to abandon the purchase, by all means. Depressed but not daunted by this painful information, he immediately wrote to Messrs. Merrifield, Albro, and Ricketson in Hyde Park, the news of the death of his late partner and the non-acceptance of the draft; asking them to extend the time of payment thirty days, and in the meantime he would endeavor to engage with other parties to step in and take the place of Mr. Armstrong. Mr. Merrifield, returned a prompt reply, that the request would be acceded to on the part of the sellers, provided funds were paid, should the sale be effected, which were par in New York.

* As early as 1817, an act to incorporate a company for improving the Lackawanna was passed.

The death of Mr. Armstrong—a gentleman eminently able, consistent, and liberal—introduced persons into the valley, who, subsequent to this event, began to figure conspicuously in its rapid and healthy development. Not willing to lose a bargain deemed so great, Mr. Henry left Stroudsburg to see some friends in Morris county, New Jersey, who before had been anxious to join an enterprise of this character. Meeting his son-in-law, Selden T. Scranton, who then resided at Oxford Furnace, New Jersey, he communicated these facts to him, urging him to come forward himself or induce his friends to do so, and assume, at least, so far as the purchase and payment were concerned, the place of Mr. Armstrong. At a public meeting held at Stanhope, in the memorable year of coon-skins, Col. George W. Scranton learned from his brother Selden, the nature of the contemplated purchase. It was at once determined by them to go to the Lackawanna Valley with Mr. Henry, and if upon a personal examination of the property it should be found as promising and valuable as represented, they then would assist in carrying out the purchase agreement previously made by Mr. Henry. Mr. Sanford Grant, then residing at Belvidere, was solicited to accompany the exploring party, and join in the proposed purchase.

On the morning of the 17th of August, 1840, the Messrs. Scranton and Grant left Belvidere, and being joined at Stroudsburg by Mr. Henry, proceeded to Slocum Hollow. It was then two days' journey from this point to the valley, over the old Drinker turnpike, which lay ever the swamps and jungles of the Pocono; where nature seems to have concentrated all that is barren, gloomy, and savage. The passer who has escaped with his life over the rude hospitalities of this turnpike, knows that the whole scenery from the Delaware to "The Hollow" (now Scranton), consisted of nothing but mountains undulating far and wide with forests, with no green acres intervening, and save the whir of the pheasant, animating some sunny nook, or the music of the trout-brooks, enlivening many a glen by their cheerful presence, all was solitude and silence.

Hardly a cabin or a sign of love and life appeared anywhere along this lonely road. The first night was spent in Covington, where a little round sign, creaking from a post standing almost in the road, announced that "man and beast" were entertained. The next noon the party reached Slocum Hollow, drove into the woods and tied their horses to a tree, where now stands the residence of Mr. James Archbald, known throughout the country as a gentleman of marked ability and experience, esteemed by all, and especially by the whole mining population, whose interests and welfare he has shown himself anxious on all occasions to promote. Mr. Archbald came to Scranton in 1855, and has been connected with the D. L. & W. Railroad Co., in a prominent position ever since. He is now President of the Lackawanna and Bloomsburg Railroad Co.

From the point where the party alighted, they wound their way among the slim pines and undergrowth of laurel and saplings, down the steep east bank of the Roaring Brook, to the large vein of coal then prominently exposed to view, and since opened and worked. None of the party, except Mr. Henry, had ever seen a coal vein before. Among the brush and leaves, the pick previously concealed by Mr. Henry was exhumed, by the aid of which, large pieces of coal and iron-ore balls lying in the vicinity were dug up. After making a careful examination of the fine water power then murmuring sweetly and idly through the property, they drove over to Hyde Park, having been nearly half a day surveying the unpruned premises without seeing or being seen by a single person.

A single saw-mill, with its clattering saw, and two small wooden dwelling houses, were all the evidence upon this property that it had passed from the Indian to the white man. Immediately below and adjoining, lay the debris of the old Slocum forge, near which now stood the grist mill, two dwellings owned by Barton Mott, then living here, and the next below was the large red stone house and barn of Samuel Slocum, which yet remain, the landmarks of other days; and a little school-house in use but a few years since, made complete the town of Slocum Hollow, in 1840.

Mr. Hitchcock lived in the house now occupied by Charles F. Mattes, which was then considered a good way out of town.

Harsh as the features of the valley seemed, and particularly of the chosen portion of it, it was concluded to purchase, and on the following day, the parties with whom Mr. Henry had negotiated accepted the renewed proposition, and the titles were executed. The parties on their return home, via Wilkes Barre, discussed various plans for an organization preparatory to commencing operations. Mr. Henry submitted a plan and an estimate for a blast furnace, with sufficient houses to accommodate the necessary workmen.

The Company now consisted of four persons, viz: S. T. & G. W. Scranton, S. Grant, and W. Henry. It was decided to unite P. H. Mattes with the enterprise. He examined the purchase and became a partner, when the Company was immediately organized under the firm of Scrantons, Grant & Co.

On the 11th of September, 1840, the first day's work for this Company was done here upon the furnace by Mr. Simon Ward, under the direction and superintendence of Mr. Henry, who had moved his family from Stroudsburg to the house now occupied by Henry Fellows, in Hyde Park.

Hyde Park contained at this time one store, one tavern, and six or eight dwellings; Providence (then Razorville), some ten or twelve, while Dunmore (alias the Corners or Bucktown), simply four brown unpainted buildings.

New men naturally introduced new names into a region which was found so silent and drowsy among the pines. At first it was the simple sweet-sounding Capouse, replete with Indian song and legend. Hardly had the Slocums destroyed the balance between the savage and civilized life by the erection of their structures upon the banks of the brook, before "Deep Hollow," or "Slocum Hollow," became a place famous for its good whisky. In fact, it retained this name from 1798 until 1840, when "Tippecanoe and Tyler too" were sweeping like an avalanche towards the White House, and then Mr. Henry gave to the new work and the location the name of Harrison. This name lost caste after eight or ten years, and Scranton was now substituted as being more appropriate. Shortly afterwards the name of Scranton was given to it—a name probably good enough, but how much more beautiful and musical would have been its primitive one. Capouse, or Lee-haw-hanna, or even Nay-aug, the Indian name for Roaring Brook? Providence, too, has run through the curious and purifying nomenclature of names. After the jurisdiction of Connecticut had departed from the Yankee town and county of Westmoreland (now Luzerne county, &c.,) Providence was called Jamestown; when the "Drinker turnpike" was completed and brought, or was expected to bring, this portion of the county exactly in the center of the world, it was called Centreville, and when a Jerseyman could not exchange his pewter sixpence which he had long carried for some of the inspiring rye, he wet his whistle indignantly with cold water, turned his back to the offending town, which he called "Razorville,"—a name so full of meaning, that for many years afterwards it was retained among Jerseymen. It finally returned to its first love—Providence. But we digress.

While a few tenant-houses and the furnace were being erected, the new county measure and the Canal project up the Lackawanna—two strangulated twin children—began to excite a deeper interest. Already had a law been passed, authorizing the feeder dam to be located at the falls on said river, but as nothing yet had been done towards its construction, hopes were entertained by the sanguine of having the northern terminus of the canal at or near the embryo town of Harrison. For the purpose of raising funds to defray the expenses of some individual to go to Harrisburg and advocate the proposed measure, a subscription was raised in January, 1841. The new company, through Mr. Henry, paid $5; Samuel Slocum and Barton Mott $5 each; John Sax and S. P. Templin, fifty cents each; to make up the $25, Mr. Henry paid $4. For this thankless outside mission, a person whose ingenious persuasions it was supposed none could gainsay or resist was selected, and although he drew up several Bills favorable to the valley, and strenuously urged their adoption, the Canal Board, the Legislature, and even the Governor himself, after looking upon the measure with apparent approbation, averted their kindness and both fell into a common grave.

During this winter considerable progress was made on the furnace, and a small store-house, office, and dwelling, all under one roof, were erected. This building, after being enlarged, was subsequently known as Kressler's

Hotel. It is now torn down to make room for the imposing works connected with the manufacture of iron. In the spring of 1841, Mr. Grant, with his family, came here, and the store of the Company, then opened, was conducted under his management for several years. Mr. Charles F. Mattes, son of P. H. Mattes, and representing his father's interest in the concern, also came here about this time, and from the time the first furnace was put in blast has been actively engaged at the head of some one of the departments; at this time he is the manager of all the company's blast furnaces.

Iron was first made with anthracite coal about the year 1836 in Wales; in 1837 the idea of using anthracite for smelting iron ore began to be agitated in the United States, and but few thought it would succeed, although bituminous coal had thus been employed about one hundred years before in England. Experiments made in 1837 and 1838 proved such failures that those who had witnessed the phenomena saw nothing to hope for in the final result but associations of loss and defeated expectations. The first successful experiment was at the Crane Iron Works, on the Lehigh, and the next at Danville.

The furnace being erected at Harrison was to be adapted to the use of anthracite. It was contemplated from the first to use the iron ore commonly called ball ore, lying adjacent to one of the veins of coal running through the whole coal region, but it was found to be too expensive to mine. Fortunately for the company, in the spring of 1841 a large, rich body of iron ore was discovered on the southern slope of the Moosic Mountain, about three miles from the furnace, which was purchased; but in order to get the ore to the brook at Harrison, nearly four thousand acres of intervening land had to be secured, thus subjecting the Company to an investment not contemplated nor provided for in the original outline and estimate. This unavoidable yet unforeseen outlay, together with the increased cost of the iron works, which were now ready to go into operation, and the cost of a new and expensive railroad built to these iron deposits in the mountain, three and a half miles distant, and the mining houses, etc., exhausted the capital, and left, at the outset, upon the Company an oppressive debt.

In the fall of 1841, Col. George W. Scranton became a temporary resident of Harrison, and at once an energetic associate with Mr. Henry in the superintendence of the affairs and interests of the Company, just as the furnace was ready to be put in blast. The first attempt to start it was made by Mr. Templin, the head founder, but the stack was new and wet, so the experiment failed. The next attempt was made by Mr. Clark, of Stanhope, New Jersey, and this, too, failed to produce the desired result. Alterations in the machinery and in the hot-air ovens were made, and the services of Mr. John F. Davis, a practical workman and the present head founder, being procured, the furnaces were successfully blowed in December, 1841.

During the period of these disheartening attempts to start the furnace, which occupied some three months, it began to be generally feared and predicted in the neighborhood that the thing was a failure, if not actually a "Jersey Humbug!" but when the great obstacles were overcome, and the massive walls of the furnace yielded from the reddened crater great rolls and bars of iron, light broke in on the gathering cloud, and there was genuine rejoicing among the inhabitants of the valley, as well as among the Proprietors themselves, who now looked forward with cheerfulness to the time when their united and untiring duties would be appreciated and rewarded. For several months the operations of the furnace were satisfactory, and although the quantity of iron made was less than had been expected, its quality for foundry purposes was fair and for bar iron superior. In the following spring, some alterations and improvements were made in the machinery.

At this time the only market to any extent for the product of the furnace was on the sea-board. To this, the Company had the choice, or rather the necessity, of only two routes, which were both hard, slow, and expensive, viz: one by the Delaware and Hudson Canal, and the other by the North Branch Canal to Havre-de-Grace. In either case the iron was compelled to be drawn upon wagons. To the canal at Pittston it was seven miles, and to Carbondale, then the western terminus of the railroad running to Honesdale, fifteen miles. The first year's product was shipped to New York and Boston, via Havre-de-Grace, at a time when great commercial embarrassment was pervading the whole Union, and threatening to annihilate manufacturing interests all over the country.—Iron had fallen in price since the commencement of the furnace forty per cent., and in fact the demand for it soon became so small that it could not be sold at any price.

This was not without its influence, even upon a company so sanguine and tireless as this, and had they not been temporarily relieved from the financial difficulty at this time, by a loan made to them by Mr. Joseph H. Scranton and E. C. Scranton* then of Augusta, Georgia, it is difficult to conceive, at this period, the disasters which, after accumulating, might have swept away this struggling company, and left the Lackawanna Valley enjoying its slumber and vision of idleness for at least half a century to come.

The enterprise, so far, had been a losing one, and it soon became apparent that making and selling pig-iron alone would always make it so. All of the company were disheartened, as they were out of money—out of credit—out of everything, and their notes could hardly be sold at forty per cent. discount. Even Col. Scranton himself, with his naturally confident temperament, began to despair. Mr. S. T. Scranton was sent to New York to negotiate for funds, and the effective influence of his peculiar address was illustrated in the result of his mission. The very first man he called upon was John H. Howland, who at once advanced the Scranton Company $20,000, and his son John subsequently became a partner in the concern and furnished additional capital. It was now concluded to make iron into bars and nails, thus giving it increased value, with twenty-five per cent. less tonnage to transport to market. To secure the largest advantage from the location in the coal-basin, where coal was cheap, this plan was adopted, and by the assistance of Mr. Howland began to mature. During this year (1843) the first rolling mill and nail factory were commenced, on the northern border of the brook, where it first came through the mountain rock into the Valley. In February, 1844, the mill was completed, and the nail factory a few months afterwards; both working to the fullest anticipations. Additional business rendered necessary additional houses for employees, and this called for more capital than it was at first supposed would be required. In March, 1844, Mr. S. T. Scranton removed from Oxford Furnace, New Jersey, and settled at the "Lackawanna Iron Works," in Harrison, where he assumed the position occupied by his brother George, who in return took the place just vacated at Oxford Furnace by Selden. For the next two years the business of the company at Harrison was under the immediate supervision of Mr. Grant.

The plan of the village of Harrison was laid in April, 1841, by Captain James Stott, of Carbondale, on a very small scale; however, it began to grow with great rapidity. Starting from nothing as it did, some of the surrounding villages of a dozen houses feared it might at some distant day equal or perhaps rival theirs! During this year an attempt was made by Dr. B. H. Throop and others to get a Post Office established here. There were at this time but two offices in the Township of Providence (now there are four) and letters reached this new company only through the Hyde Park or Providence office. As the application met with opposition from the two named places, and as the Department at Washington saw no necessity for locating an office within half a mile of the old one, at a point, too, so obscure that the Hyde Park office, a number of years before, while Slocum was Postmaster, was removed from it, the measure was easily defeated.

Joseph and Samuel Slocum, Col. Geo. W. Scranton, Wm. Henry, Barton Mott, Sanford Grant, Ebenezer Hitchcock and his sons, Chas. F. Mattes, John F. Davis, John W. Moore, Mr. Kressler, Simeon Ward, S. P. Tremlin, Abram Polhemas, and Martin L. Newman, made up the greater portion of the male population of Harrison in 1841, which was doubled the next year by new comers employed by the Lackawanna Iron Co., in one capacity or another. Dr. Gideon Underwood, now of Pittston, was the first Physician locating in Harrison. This was in 1845, but his practice brought him so bare a sustenance that he abandoned this place the next year and removed to Northmoreland, on the Susquehanna, where he succeeded well, as he was competent and every way a gentleman. Dr. B. H. Throop, standing prominently before the country as the Doctor, settled in Harrison in 1847. The next year Dr. W. H. Pier, present P. M. of Scranton, came here, and with the exception of being absent three years in Wilkes-Barre, filling the office of Prothonotary, he has resided in Scranton ever since, enjoying the confidence of his friends in an eminent degree.

In 1849, Dr. John B. Sherrerd, son of Judge Sherrerd, of Belvidere, N. J., began professional life in Scranton, opening, in connection with Dr. Throop, the first drug store in the town. Two years later, Laton S. and Edward C. Fuller purchased the drug interest of Drs. Throop & Sherrerd, and these gentlemen, seventeen years ago commencing business-life here, have by sterling integrity and attention to business not only built up an enviable reputation, but acquired a comparative competency.

Railroads—those great blood-vessels now pulsating with long, living, snaky trains, in almost every portion of the Union—had begun to awaken unusual attention through the country. This naturally introduced among iron-men the subject of making railroad iron. The English iron-masters across the water had predicted that this was a branch of trade that their ambitious simple Brother Jonathan would never blunder into; consequently, the monopoly of making the heavy T rail could never pass from their hands. How thoroughly this illusion has been dispelled, let the thousands of miles of railroads laid with this superior kind of rail bear evidence.

The T rail was first made in the United States in 1845. The same year, the Scranton Company, after a little deliberation, decided to add this more profitable branch of trade to their business.

A happy circumstance now threw upon the Company a glimpse of sunnier days. The New York and Erie Railroad—that grand aorta which now traverses southern New York, and over a mere corner of the “Key Stone” state, and from which is stolen by this state $10,000 per year, for the simple privilege of crossing its before useless, inhospitable border—was at this time in operation no farther than Goshen, as the Company was environed with difficulties, and as a matter of policy surrendered the whole concern to new and strong-headed men soon afterwards, who at once took hold of this magnificent enterprise, determined to push it with vigor to Lake Erie, its western terminus. English iron, which this road, so far as completed, was laid with, cost the Railroad Company $80 per ton. It was believed by the Scranton Company that good T rails could be furnished the Erie Railroad Company, especially on the Delaware and Susquehanna Divisions, on terms more advantageous to the interests of the road than it had before enjoyed.

Mr. Joseph H. Scranton, in 1845, purchased the entire interest in the concern of Mr. Grant, who retired from a position subsequently filled by Mr. J. C. Platt, who became a partner the next year, and although the firm has been changed several times, and gradually enlarged its borders by the purchase of real estate, and by continuous enlargement and improvement around them, he has ever held the same satisfactory relation to the place.

During the year 1845, a newspaper called the County Mirror was started in Providence (now the 1st and 2nd Wards, Scranton,) by the late Franklin B. Woodward. Harrison at this time had made so humble pretensions that but a single advertisement from the village found its way into this lively paper. In 1852 the Lackawanna Herald, a paper of more partizan bitterness than real ability, was issued in Scranton by Charles E. Lathrop. Three years later the Spirit of the Valley was published by Thomas J. Alleger and J. B. Adams for one year, when the two were consolidated under the name of the Herald of the Union, purchased and edited by the late Ezra B. Chase,—a gentleman of superior literary attainments. Declining health induced him soon after to sell out to Dr. A. Davis and J. B. Adams. In the spring of 1859 Dr. Davis purchased the interest of Mr. Adams, transferring it to Dr. Silas M. Wheeler, and the paper was managed by these medical gentlemen with a degree of originality and spiciness rarely seen in a country newspaper. Dr. Davis at that time moved into Scranton, building the first house erected on Franklin avenue, and now occupied by Dr. G. W. Masser. This paper finally subsided into the Scranton Register, now owned and edited by Mayor E. S. M. Hill.

Theodore Smith established the Scranton Republican in 1856, conducting it in a highly creditable manner for two years, when F. A. McCartney became the proprietor. After being owned by Thos. J. Alleger, and conducted fairly and honorably, it passed into the hands of F. A. Crandall, then again into those of F. A. Crandall & Co., the present energetic and spirited owners. The Scranton City Journal came forth from the hands of Messrs. Benedicts in 1867, and from the acknowledged industry and qualifications of these gentlemen the new paper can hardly fail to thrive.

The above named are and were all weekly publications.

One or two dailies and tri-weeklies have been born and buried within that period; some of them, especially the Morning Herald, a daily published in 1866 by J. B. Adams, evidenced considerable merit, but none exhibiting the substantial prosperity shown by the Scranton Daily Register, now published in Scranton by E. S. M. Hill, Esq.

In addition to the foregoing, a German paper called the Scranton Wochenblatt was started January, 1865, by E. A. Ludwig. It is now edited and published by F. Wagner. Its appearance indicates permanent success.

The year 1846 was one of the most important ones in the history of Harrison; Col. George W. Scranton, having returned to the works to reside permanently, at this time negotiated, by the assistance of his brothers, J. H. and S. T. Scranton, a contract with the Erie Railroad Company for 12,000 tons of iron rail, to weigh fifty-eight pounds to the yard; to be made and delivered at the mouth of the Lackawaxen, in Pike County, during the years of 1847-8, at $70 per ton. To estimate rightly which of the contracting parties gained the most by this arrangement, is now impossible. Mr. Loder, President of the Erie Company at this time, stated in a public speech at the opening of the Northern Division of the Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western Railroad, that had it not been for this contract, and its prompt fulfillment, the road could not have been opened at the time specified to Binghamton, as the Erie Railroad Company must have failed or suspended. To the Scranton Company it was everything. Those even who knew, in spite of all the close economy and foresight with which the affairs of this Company were conducted, how fearfully it was involved, can hardly appreciate the invigorating influence this large sale of iron infused into the Proprietors.

To fulfill this heavy agreement required mills and machinery of a corresponding character. Not only had these to be erected, but the essential wherewith to be obtained.

Several wealthy gentlemen, warm friends of the Erie Road, promptly came forward, and on the simple obligations of the Messrs. Scranton alone, with no security, loaned them $100,000 to construct the works and procure the necessary machinery, so that the contract could be carried out. Extraordinary activity was now displayed in Harrison, in every department of business, the active management of which passed into the hands of Mr. Joseph H. Scranton, who came here to reside in 1847. Up to this time the means of transportation to market of the now largely increased annual product of iron remained as difficult as at the commencement, with the exception of the extension of the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company's Railroad from Carbondale to Archbald, which reduced the distance of hauling by team to nine miles; the iron ore was carted a distance of three miles and a half from the mines, and as the production of the blast furnace was not equal to the wants and capacity of the mill, pig-iron in large quantities was purchased and brought up the canal from Columbia County.

About five miles up the valley from Scranton lives an eccentric but worthy old gentleman, named James Anderson, who moved into Blakely in 1825, and who owns the land from which stone coal was first taken to market from Lackawanna Valley, in 1814. His farm abounds in iron ore of great richness, some two hundred tons of which was used by the Scranton Company in 1844, and about the same quantity during the last winter. His son Allen, with a pair of steers, drew the first load of stone for the original Furnace of this company.

The lime stone and pig-iron purchased at Danville, were drawn from the canal at Pittston, seven miles, and the Railroad iron (which had become the principal product of the works, as the manufacture of nails had ceased), was drawn to Archbald upon heavy wagons, a distance of nine miles from Harrison, requiring the use of over four hundred horses and mules. In fact, during the summer months so slow and difficult was the transportation of the iron by their own force, that all the horses belonging to the farmers in the Township of Providence and Blakely that could be were engaged by this Company to assist in delivering it to the indicated points by the time appointed.

Two large blast furnaces were now in course of construction, as well as a railroad to their ore mines on the mountain. To make the grade of this road so that the cars could be drawn up by mules to the mines, and when loaded return to the furnace by the power of gravity, five and a half miles of road were rendered necessary. This, however, dispensed with nearly all the team power, heretofore essential in delivering the raw material.

The Company had, previous to this, organized under the General Partnership law. Messrs. George W. Scranton, Selden T. Scranton, Joseph H. Scranton, and J. C. Platt being the general partners, and several well known wealthy gentlemen of New York being special ones. With this change, the capital of the Company was largely increased.

On the south side of the Roaring Brook some three hundred houses for the workmen had been built by the Company, while the only building, up to this time, aside from those of the Company, put up on the other, was one by Dr. Throop, for his brother, and now occupied by Mr. Albright. The doctor at this time resided in Providence, but as there was no Physician at Harrison (now there are just twenty at this point, of every variety, size, and calibre,) he removed here, and among the shady pines which gave a fresh and tranquil air to the old road leading from the "Hollow" to "Razorville," he built his cottage home. Here, retired in a spot too lonely to tempt hither the indolent, with no house in sight but his own, he lived many years, where, after the exhausting and often thankless duties of his daily professional drives he enjoyed the cheerful fireside and smoked his pipe in peace, unless disturbed by the clear, deep throated bo-loonk-blunk of the frogs holding their nightly carnival in the neighboring pond. This cottage is yet in good condition, and is now used as a dwelling and a store, surrounded by large blocks of brick stores and hotels, and immediately under the towering spire of the Presbyterian Church. Every one acquainted with the Doctor's inimitable love of social enjoyment and the merry life of a country village, were astonished that he should "seek a lodge in some vast wilderness" like this.

Up to this recent period, from the time railroad iron was first made here, the Company labored under every disheartening influence, and elements, the secrets of which were only known and felt by themselves. To carry out the great programme which they had undertaken, with the limited capital at command, required exertions almost superhuman. Extra work, additional machinery, and various and expensive materials, called constantly for more money and labor. Large iron contrivances, which were essential to the works, had to be carted by the stubborn mule, or the jaded horse, about sixty or seventy miles, over roads leading over mountain covered with a growth of hemlock and spruce as black as night. Teams consisting of eight mules were used for this service—a service so vexatious and wearisome, and so apt to derange the patience of the driver, that it was often impossible to get willing and competent ones anywhere. When it was thought such were obtained, the Company found it necessary to contract with the keepers of the small taverns along the road to furnish meals for their drivers and feed for their teams and forward their bills each month to the office for payment. It was especially provided that no liquor should be furnished them or paid for on any terms; but some of the men, in common parlance, would “whip the devil round the stump,” and bring in bills with “sixteen glasses of leming ayde”—a very poetic drink—“at sixpence a glass, and one pint of whisky”—probably for a cooling lotion for the mules’ backs. These bills came from places where a lemon had never been seen or heard of before.

The business of the Company, so broad, so vast, so comprehensive in its character and so beneficial in its influence, afforded throughout the country, and the Lackawanna valley, where its benefits were more especially felt, a theme for great congratulation. To see a town emerge from the unyielding surface with a growth marvellous as tropical life into a maze of foundries, furnaces, manufacturing works, and dwellings, was an occurrence so rare as to cause no little astonishment and pride among those accustomed to the slow accretions to the valley before. The rise in real estate along the Lackawanna valley since the organization of this Company was at least one hundred per cent, while the relations of the Messrs. Scranton with the public were harmonious, and characterized throughout by general good feeling.

We say general. There were then, as there are yet, and as there always will be, a debilitated and croaking class of persons, who by some hidden process manage to keep a little animation in their useless bodies, who gathered in bar-room corners, and who, with a peculiar wisdom belonging to this class while discussing weighty matters, gravely predicted that “the Scrantons must fail.”

A line of four-horse stages ran through the valley, on the western side of the Lackawanna, from Wilkes-Barre to Carbondale, connecting at each place with a similar line, via Milford and Morristown to New York, and via Easton to Philadelphia, and furnished the only mode of conveyance to or from the Lackawanna valley, and brought New York daily papers to Providence and Hyde Park (where all the mail matter for Harrison was received) on the morning of the third day after publication.

The mills were completed, and as they began to convert the hills into railroad iron, the last lingerer among the dark clouds moved off from the Lackawanna Iron Company. The first fifteen hundred tons of railroad iron that was made on the 12,000 tons contract was delivered at the mouth of the Lackawaxen. Here it was taken by canal to Port Jervis, and laid on the road between that place and Otisville. After that portion of the Erie Railroad was opened for use, the Company, having been so long delayed by injunctions and the want of the piratical legislation to cross the river into Pennsylvania at the Glass House Rocks that they found they were certain to be defeated in opening their road to Binghamton by the time they had specified unless they could get the Scranton Company to deliver the balance of the iron on the line of the railroad at different points along the Delaware river, arranged terms of delivery in pursuance of which the Scranton Company carted by teams about seven thousand tons of iron and delivered it at Big Eddy (Narrowsburgh,) Cochection, Equinunk, Stockport, Summit, and Lanesboro, an average distance of about fifty miles, thus enabling the Company to lay the track at all points along the Delaware Division as fast as the grading was ready, and upon the road for one hundred and thirty miles at once—four days ahead of the time appointed. The difficulty of carting so large an amount of iron in so short a time can be inferred by those familiar with the mountainous roads and the wilderness intervening.

Another effort was now made to get a Post Office established at Harrison, and was, by the assistance of the late Chester Butler (then a member of Congress), successful; he at the time giving the name of Scranton to the village of Harrison. This was in 1848, and John W. Moore, yet residing in Scranton, received the appointment of Postmaster. The same Office, now but nineteen years of age, is the largest in Northern Pennsylvania. The same year Scranton was divested of its superfluous appendage, when "Capouse," "Slocum Hollow," "Harrison," "Lackawanna Iron Works," "Scranton," were all laid aside for the name of SCRANTON.

The rapid expansion and concentration of business at this point, as well as the absence of all necessary communications with the sea-board and the lakes, rendered an outlet east or west most apparent and desirable. The project of connecting the valley by railroad with the New York and Erie Road in a northerly direction was frequently discussed by the general partners; in fact, it was the sanguine expectations of a line of public improvement being extended both north and south at no distant day, that went far towards deciding the original proprietors in locating here.

With a view of bringing the subject of Railroad facilities, and connections with the valley generally, before the minds of capitalists in a manner both advantageous and effective, Col. George W. Scranton was detailed from the active engagement of the affairs of the Iron Company in the summer of 1848.

Valuable coal lands had been secured as a reliable basis of such an enterprise; large delegations of New York and New England gentlemen were persuaded from time to time to visit the valley, and examine the vast mineral resources apparent along its border, and witness the dark croppings of coal, the fertile farms and luxurious intervale, the abundant water-power for mills for manufacturing purposes, the splendid sites and the fine timber; all of which, the moment a railroad outlet appeared, would be trebled in value. By many the valley was considered too wild and remote, or too difficult of access, even for an exploring tour. Such never left the parental roof, and it was left for bolder hearts and stouter arms to plant and reap the harvest. An extra stage coach, with its five miles an hour speed, now and then brought into the valley delegation after delegation from the east, which were hailed with friendly solicitude by the inhabitants. Often and always was the enquiry heard of that firm friend of the public interest, Sam Tripp, "When the Yorkers were coming?" All eyes for a time were directed towards the local movements of the Yorkers, and the hope of every honest citizen then as well as now was, that long life and prosperity would be the fortune of all who came.

The subject of connecting the Susquehanna River, at Pittston, with the Delaware Water Gap, was a favorite idea with the late Henry W. Drinker* as early as 1819, long before his vigorous mind comprehended how much more formidable a railroad project would prove than the turn-pikes his energy was about directing through the trackless forests. In 1826 he obtained a charter for this road; six years later, the first instrumental survey of the contemplated route was made by Captain Beach, who was employed and principally paid by John Jordan, Junr., H. W. Drinker, and William Henry, the last two of whom became intimately associated in the enterprise. They spent years of exhausting toil, and largely of their means, to infuse living functions into this highway; but, wisely as the plan seemed to have been conceived, it failed entirely in its gestation. Time, however—the great administrator of events—has shown that not only was their judgment correct, but greatly in advance of the age in regard to this projected road.

This line was run with a view of inclined planes, operated by water power, and perhaps a canal a portion of the way. The "head-waters of the river Lehigh and its tributary stream," was prohibited from being used for feeding the canal, as it might "injure the navigation of said river."

Another charter, known as the "Leggit's Gap," had been obtained simultaneously with this survey of the "Drinker Road." It authorized the construction of an inclined plane railroad, from some point near Cobb's Gap to the State of New York in a northwesterly direction. Both these charters, kept alive by supplementary acts, were found to be too defective for practical purposes. Upon one, as appears by Drinker's Railroad survey and report, 1824, the use of horse power between the planes, to draw the cars, was contemplated by the original projectors of the road, while the other provided that toll-houses were to be established along the line, and collectors appointed, and that the drivers or conductors of "such wagon, carriage, or conveyance, boat or raft, were to give the collectors notice of their approach to said toll-houses, by blowing a trumpet or horn." These and many other singular features were afterwards replaced by those more in harmony with the times.

The Leggit's Gap (afterwards Lackawanna and Western Railroad) was consolidated with the Delaware and Cobb's Gap Charter, under the name of Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western. The old Drinker Charter was never used. The Company generously paid to all the different parties who had assisted in obtaining the several charters and making the original surveys, over seven thousand dollars, although not legally bound to pay a farthing.

Up to 1847 no car had rolled, nor had a single rail been laid, along the Lackawanna, with the exception of those upon the railroad from Carbondale to Honesdale. This road, too, was a gravity one, worked by stationary steam engines and horse power over the Moosic Mountain, and was one of the first railroads built in the State of Pennsylvania.

The honor of the inception as well as the completion of a locomotive engine road from Great Bend to the Delaware Water Gap, belongs justly to the late Col. George W. Scranton. Mountainous as were the general features of the country through which it had to pass, and formidable as appeared the idea to many of his associates around him, of attempting to girdle mountains defying combat, or spanning streams and valleys in their solitude, he nevertheless advocated and clung to the object of his sanguine hope as the parent clings to his idolized child. At his own suggestion, and under his immediate direction, the preliminary surveys were made upon the route by Major Morrell, assisted by the late Jas. Seymour and E. McNeill, since chief engineer of the whole line. The route was found quite as feasible as Col. Scranton had supposed from his own personal observations, and as the charter of the "Leggit's Gap Railroad" was found suitable for all practical purposes, after a little alteration, it was purchased.

To inspire general confidence in an undertaking which, when completed, would not only make Scranton more prosperous and permanent in its growth, but revolutionize a valley so long buried in its slumber, a bold move was made. The books of subscription were opened at Kresler's Hotel in Scranton, in 1847, by the commissioners, and the whole stock subscribed, and ten per cent. paid in. While these flattering movements were not without some good effect, it was the work of more than two years' ceaseless labor, amidst every possible discouragement, before any real capital could be calculated upon. As this road was to lead to the Erie Railroad, instead of the Erie Canal, it was thought by many moneyed men that the coal market, for a while, would be so limited, that no investment would pay. This road was commenced in 1850. To overcome this objection, as far as possible, and reach and make a more northern market, (for the first loads of coal taken hence were given away, in order to introduce the black stuff into general use,) the Ithaca and Owego Railroad, one of the oldest roads in the country, was purchased by the Iron Company and their associates, in 1849. This old road, like all railroads in the United States, was laid with the flat or strap rail—a rail possessing neither strength nor safety, as one end of it sometimes becoming bent, would dart with the rapidity of lightning with its “snake head” into the passing train, marking its red progress with appalling slaughter upon the living and the loved.

A new company being now organized, called the Cayuga and Susquehanna Railroad Company, for the purpose of building this road, Col. G. W. Scranton, was chosen President, who at once repaired to Ithaca to engage in his active duties, which were discharged with the happiest ability and success.

To carry out the original plan contemplated by the Colonel, of connecting the Iron works with New York City, a survey was made in 1851–2 for the eastward outlet, and in 1853 the present line adopted. While this new absorbing project was taking shape and being, the business of the Scranton Company was still enlarging. The Iron Company organized this year under a special charter, with a capital of $800,000, and Selden T. Scranton elected President and Joseph H. Scranton Superintendent; the latter—a gentleman to whom the prosperity of the Lackawanna Valley is greatly indebted—is now, as he has been for years, the able Manager and President of this immense company.

After the Lackawanna and Western Railroad was consolidated with the Delaware and Cobb's Gap charter, under the name of the “Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western Railroad Company,” work was commenced vigorously on the southern division of this road. On the 21st of January, 1856, the first locomotive and train of cars passed over the Delaware. •

Rapid as has been the sympathetic growth of Carbondale, Archbald, Jessup, Dunmore, Providence, Hyde Park, and Olyphant, theirs has been a snail's pace compared to the stronger development of Scranton. In July, 1840, twenty-seven years ago, five brown dwellings made up the complete town at “The Holler,” where what is now the city of Scranton, founded on the broad basis of manufacturing industry stands, and contains a population of forty-five thousand.

The stranger who visits Scranton may not find as much wildness and sublimity around it as when, from the Pocono range, his eye first catches a glimpse of the truly bold outlines of the Delaware Water Gap, he will nevertheless, as he walks along the walls of Roaring Brook; and gazes on the massive piles of furnace stacks, pouring out, day after day, ponds of rude or finished iron, from the ponderous bar to the delicate bolt, and sees the smooth yet resistless motion of the largest stationary engine on the American Continent, feel proud and pleased with the sights of industry and thrift everywhere around him.

To get and appreciate a bird's eye view of the town and valley, let the tourist ascend the high bluff near the Baptist Church in Hyde Park, overlooking the city, where the charming panorama that unrolls itself before him, will compensate in the highest degree for the trouble of the visit. He will then look down into a region interesting for its scenery, its strata of coal, its beds of iron ore, and its Indian History. The first impression is one favorable towards this portion of the valley, as there appears on every side evidence of animation and thrift.

Yonder the noisy water of the red man, (Roaring Brook,) linked together by a long line of falls or rapids, takes a white leap from one of the loveliest and loneliest nooks carved from the mountain, before it splashes on the busy wheel of the manufacturer, and after being used three or four times in its passage through the city, mingles with the waters of the Lackawanna below. The huge, round, slate-roofed locomotive depot, filled with engines, at first strikes the eye, and reminds him of the Roman Coliseum, while the landscape, sprinkled with brown colored depots, car shops, and Vulcan-shops on every side; the chaste, imposing churches, the long, white line of public and private architecture contrasting finely with the deep green of the surrounding trees, tastily left for shade; the trains of coal cars, serpentine and dark, emerging from the "Diamond Mines," or skimming along the iron veins, down a grade of seventy feet to the mile, from the productive coal works at the "Notch," some two miles distant, on their passage to New York; the locomotive, with its nightingale song and vapory breath, rushing along the western side of the Lackawanna, from the Wyoming Valley, over the Lackawanna and Bloomsburg Railroad, which terminates at Scranton; the villages of Hyde Park, Providence, Dunmore, and half a dozen youthful attempts, arrayed in thrifty garb, far up and down the valley; the Lee-haw-hanna, with its modest throat and richer shade drawn like a gleaming belt of silver along the picture; the neat farm houses, here and there nestling in some lovely meadow, or half hid among the blossoms of orchards, with the background of the unshorn mountain, swelling upwards from Wyoming or the Lackawanna region, all make up a sight as beautiful as the Jewish ruler of old once witnessed from old Mount Nebo. Nor is this all. As he looks into the bosom of "Capouse Meadow," his eye wanders over coal lands which, fifteen years before the completion of a railroad outlet north from the valley, could have been purchased for fifteen dollars per acre, and which now are worth $800 and $1000; and building-lots which then no respectable man was willing to accept as a gratuity, now readily bring from one to five thousand dollars.

The growth of Scranton has been marked by uniform decades.

In 1826, the Drinker Railroad wrought consternation among the pines of this secluded glen; in 1836 the same measure, combined with the North Branch Canal and new county schemes, again awakened hopes partially fulfilled. In 1846, sales of iron made by the Scranton Co. enabled them to defy threatened bankruptcy; in 1856, the first locomotive engine rolled from Scranton, just formed into a Borough, to the Delaware river; in 1866, incorporated into a City; and in 1876, all the townships in northern and central Luzerne will probably take their places in the new County of Lackawanna, with the County Seat at Scranton. In 1866, Scranton, Hyde Park, and Providence, were fashioned by the Legislature of Pa. into a City composed of twelve Wards, with all municipal rights and regulations necessary for its existence. E. S. M. Hill, Esq., was elected the first Mayor. The number of taxables on the assessment list of the City of Scranton, is now, (April, 1867), 7,410, and the ratio of non-taxables to taxables, say $7\frac{1}{2}$ to one, would make the present population of the City over 55,000. It now contains :

24 Churches,	1 Gas Works,
3 Academies and numerous Schools,	3 Planing Mills and Sash Factories,
4 Printing Offices,	4 Banking Houses,
2 Book Binderies,	4 Flouring Mills,
222 Stores and Groceries,	3 Saw Mills,
25 Stationary Steam Engines,	6 Breweries and Distilleries,
11 Foundries and Machine Shops,	1 Race Course,
2 Axe and Scythe Manufactories,	8 Drug Stores,
4 Smelting Furnaces,	2 Rolling Mills,
2 Stove Manufactories,	4 Resident Dentists
4 Bakeries,	1 Patent Medicine Manufactory,
12 Hotels,	29 Resident Physicians and

This sketch of the history of Scranton can hardly be appropriately closed without a glance at the great Iron works now in blast here, capable of smelting about seventy thousand tons of ore a year. The sizes of these blast furnaces may be inferred from the diameter of the boshes, which are respectively 15, 17, 18, and 20 feet, with a height of fifty feet. Into these furnaces air is forced by double, connected, lever-beam engines of vast power. The steam cylinders are fifty-four inches in diameter. The blowing cylinders are 110 inches in diameter with ten feet stroke. The wind is forced by this apparatus into the furnaces, under an average pressure of four pounds to the square inch. The huge fly-wheel which regulates the movements of this enormous apparatus weighs forty thousand pounds. In order to be prepared for any possible exigency, and have increased blowing power, the Iron Company have built appropriate apartments, and set up still another pair of engines upon the very ground where formerly stood, under one roof, the first office, store, and dwelling of Messrs. Scranton and Grant, in Harrison, subsequently known as "Kresler's Hotel."

This pair of engines have cylinders 59 inches in diameter and blowing cylinders 90 inches. Each engine has two fly-wheels, 28 feet in diameter, weighing seventy-five thousand pounds. By this power they are able to force air into the furnaces under a pressure of eight or nine pounds to the square inch, a great advantage, as it is found by experiments that in order for a furnace to yield the greatest product, it must not only have a certain amount of air, but that the air, to be most advantageous, must be introduced under heavy pressure, and at many places simultaneously, when it is more equally diffused through the stack. Some fifty thousand tons of pig metal can now be produced each year.

A walk of five minutes brings one to the rolling mills, which also stand on the north side of the Roaring Brook. Midway between the furnace and the mills, down the bank of the brook to the right, is seen a railroad track leading into a mine directly under our feet, into which a few blackened coal cars, drawn by mules, disappear in midnight. This vein of coal, at this point, which is used in all the iron works now, is the very one first seen by the exploring party, in 1840, led by Mr. Henry, and which, in connection with the adjacent iron deposits, decided the Scrantons and Mr. Grant to purchase this property for sixteen dollars an acre. Entering the rolling mill, one is surprised to see the magnitude and the precision of the whole arrangement. The principal product of the mills is T railroad bars, of which from fifteen to twenty thousand tons a year are finished. A great quantity of railroad spikes and chairs are made, besides some three thousand tons of merchant iron.

Some general idea can be formed of the imposing character of the iron works by the fact that over one hundred thousand tons of anthracite coal per year are consumed by them alone, while they furnish employment to an effective army of fifteen hundred men!

The amount of capital already expended by the Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western Railroad Company in their railroad and coal property, including the Cayuga and Susquehanna Railroad, and the Warren Railroad, in New Jersey, is, at this time, over twelve million dollars, and a large amount will yet be required to complete the double track and properly equip the road.

The influence of the opening of this great eastern and western outlet upon a valley so long shut out from the great world by mountain barriers, make as plain as noonday, facts of yesterday and to-day. It is visible in every hamlet, felt in every cottage by the way side, and is written in vivifying lines everywhere along the Lackawanna; while the vast revolution it has effected in monetary affairs, finds expression in the grand aggregate of prosperity seen throughout every county in Pennsylvania and New Jersey through which the road passes. Much of this prosperity is due to Hon. John Brisbin, President of the road for the last ten years, and who has managed its affairs with singular sagacity and skill.

What Scranton lacks in antiquity, is compensated for in the design of the original village; in its fine streets, laid out with great regularity,—and soon to be illuminated with gas—in its ample Water Works, supplying the purest water from the upper Noy-aug—in its free schools equaled by none in the State; in its churches, representing so great a diversity of religious sentiment, in the magnificence or the modesty of their structures, that "none need fall among thorns, or thieves"; in its Doctors of Medicine, sheltered by broad Latin diplomas, which all the dictionaries in the Vatican would not enable them to read, skilled in the wherewithal to heal the sick, and invigorate the feeble; in its clever lawyers, blustering when opposed and ever ready to mystify and perplex the simplest matter for a fee; in its Doctors of Divinity who, learned in biblical affairs, are ever ready

"By apostolic blows and knocks
To show their doctrine orthodox."

In fact, by the general intelligence and thrift of its inhabitants everywhere observed within its borders. Wyoming Valley, worthy of the fame it has acquired the world over, boasts of its gray obelisk with an honest pride,—of its shire town, filled with elegance, wealth, and intelligence, deriving much of its celebrity from being the residence of some of the finest lawyers in the State, with its streets shaded by long lines of stately elms, and yet it lacks the marvellous and irresistible business impulse which makes up the enchantment of Scranton City. Located in the very midst of unbounded mineral wealth, it will naturally exact tribute from the surrounding country by the aid of the numerous railroads entering within its limits, until the villages that begirt it now will expand and commingle and involuntarily become merged into one of the greatest cities of the State.

Sketch of the Settlement of Providence and Dunmore.

The village of Providence is one of the prettiest in the County, for one of its size. In passing through the State on the old Drinker turnpike, long before the railroad, carrying the moving world along on its back, disturbed the trot of the stage horse measuring with sun-dial correctness its three mile and three quarters an hour, over weary miles enlivened with story and laughter, no traveler can forget a small hill-side village standing on the west border of the Lackawanna, midway between the deep mountain notches, noticed as the finest and fairest along the valley. It stood and still stands on the terraced slope rising from the shallow waters of the Lackawanna into an eminence, commanding a look-out far up and down the valley, veined with brooks, farms, coal works, and villages, all cultivated, active, and thrifty; and although the low Moosic, encircling the prospect, gives out no bold cliffs nor Alpine views, it here shows such graceful swells, and there such gentle depressions in the mountain for the passage of the jolly trout-stream, as to render the village unsurpassed in the beauty of its scenery or the elegance of its location. Nor are the inhabitants of the place excelled in modest bearing, in quiet firesides, or in the general good feeling pervading the entire community. It is true, there are sometimes here as well as elsewhere in the wide world dissensions and strifes, political asperities and personal feuds and other vexations, making up their part of village life the world over; but these are only clouds floating in a genial sky, which may disturb but not destroy the otherwise harmonious relations of a village population, characterized by an absence of display, by general intelligence, by universal kindness of feeling, and by a generous charity for the short comings of others.

The village of Providence dates back to 1788—the Township to 1770. There is but little or nothing in the earliest written or printed records of the Wyoming settlers of either personal or general character, relating to the history of Providence or Dunmore. The Westmoreland Records, made and kept in Wyoming Valley from 1769 to 1786, relate to the passage of laws for common safety and general welfare, and record business transactions of the young and agitated Colony, as disposing of or settling rights and deeds of land, or the judicious deliberations of the settler in regard to the early and relentless controversy, agitated by Pennsylvania, claiming and afterwards possessing these lands by a strange and dubious right. The Pennsylvania Archives and Colonial Records furnish voluminous correspondence of exciting events disturbing Wyoming; but Lackawanna Valley and its local history is looked for in vain within their ample folds.

In 1770 the wilderness, unshorn of its strength only at the wigwams of Capouse, extended from the mouth of the Lackawanna up to its very headwaters among the beech and maple, and was peopled by a race whose camp-fires, undimmed in the grand old forest for ages, glimmered along the Valley for ten years after its first occupancy by the whites.

The first settlement in Providence township was made in 1771 by Timothy Keys and Solomon Hocksey, two brave men who emigrated from Hartford, Ct., in 1769, and purchased a settling right of the Susquehanna Company, on a small stream subsequently known as Key's Creek, now embraced in Lackawanna township.* Simultaneously with this, or but a month later, "Isooc Trypp of west-moreland in ye County of Litchfield & Colony of Connecticutt in New England," penetrated the woods still farther up the stream, and located himself within the Indian clearing of Capouse, already fit for planting or pasturage. Solomon Johnson, Andrew Hickman, Frederic Curtis, Isaac Tripp the younger, and Thomas Peckins, came into Providence and settled in "ye Town of Capouse Meadow" 1772-3. Many of the New England men born on the luxuriant banks of the Connecticut, purchasing land in Providence, never pitched a tent or cleared an acre upon lands afterwards acquired by a more fearless and hardy yeomanry. Thus from 1771 to 1774, records are found of John Stevens and his son-in-law Youngs, Jonathan Slocum, Colonel Lodwick Ojdirik, Ebenezer Searles, Major Fitch and John Aldren, purchasing settling rights in Capouse never occupied by them.

* Lackawanna formed Nov. 1828, out of Providence and Pittston.

That swift, loose-tongued tributary of the Lackawanna, leaping along the rocky staircase in the mountain notch between Abington and Providence, known as "Leggit's Creek," derived its name from Jas. Leggit, who came from "ye Province of New York" in 1775 and erected his rude cabin at the mouth of the creek still bearing his name. This land, passing through the hands of Abraham Stanton and John Staples before being purchased by Mr. Leggit, had never been touched nor tilled by the white man until the last named gentleman had sought its solitude for a home.

Benjamin Baily purchased a lot from Solomon Strong below that of Leggit's in 1775, selling it again the next year to Tripp "for a few firs and a flint gun."* In 1777 Mathew Dalson bought 375 acres of land on "ye Capous River so called" bounded on the north by "Lands belonging to one Loggit."† This purchase included lands now known as "uncle Josh Griffin's farm."

The Revolutionary conflict, after the Indians living along the borders of the Susquehanna and Lackawanna, hitherto friendly, had espoused the cause of the British and Tories, threatened annihilation to every hut or cabin along the Lackawanna. Every settler but four in Providence township either abandoned their dwellings and returned to the safe settlements in Connecticut, or removed to Pittston, where the friendly block-house offered security to all who sought it. Leggit returned to New York, Keys and Hocksey, Isaac Tripp and Mr. Hickman, alone remained, in July, 1778. The kindness and conciliation ever shown the Indians by these too confiding settlers, gave them a hope that their humble homes, isolated from the main valley below, and remote from the Indian plantations above, would be respected with a sacred and scrupulous fidelity. The savages, too, had left Capouse for their country around the lakes, only to gather strength for the meditated and murderous attack on Wyoming. And even when their canoes, sunk to their edge with warriors, British and Tories, bent on revenge and conquest, floated down the Susquehanna, these settlers of Providence remained around their frail cabins at work, in imaginary, but fatal security.

Isaac Tripp the grand son, and Isaac Tripp the elder, were both "taken prisoners in 1778, with two young men by the name of Keys and Hocksey; the old gentleman they (the Indians) painted and dismissed, but hurried the others into the forest (now Abington) above Leggit's Gap, on the warrior's path to Oquago. Resting one night, they arose the next morning, traveled about two miles, when they stopped at a little stream of water. The two young Indians then took Keys and Hocksey some distance from the path and were absent half an hour, the old Indian looking anxiously the way they had gone. Presently the death-whoop was heard, and the Indians returned, brandishing bloody tomahawks and exhibiting the scalps of their victims. Tripp's hat was taken from his head, and his scalp examined twice—the savages speaking earnestly, when at length they told him to fear nothing, he should not be hurt, and carried him off prisoner.” *

The Indians painted his face with their war-paint, which afforded him protection from any tribe he might chance to encounter on the war-path through the forest and then allowed him to return to his home at Capouse, where the next summer he was shot by a band of savages, who overran and devastated the valley with tomahawk and fire brand.

In the spring of 1803, two skulls as white as snow, and some human bones porous and weather beaten by the storms of a quarter of a century, were found in Abington, by Deacon Clark, upon the edge of a little brook passing through Clark's Green, and were at this time supposed to be, as they probably were, the remains of Tripp's two tomahawked companions.

Isaac Tripp the younger, was shot July 8th, 1778, by the Indians, upon the flats at Capouse, while at work in the field unconscious of danger, where he was found by the fugitives, retreating after the great Wyoming disaster. Mr. Hickman, wife and child, fell at the same time and place. Mr. Leach and St. John were tomahawked at Keys's or Keyser's Creek, near Mr. Atherton's, now Lackawanna Township, the next day, thus depopulating the entire Township of Providence of its white population.

After the Wyoming battle, (July 3, 1778,) the Indians, animated by a hope of regaining their loved and lost Valley from the exhausted possessors, became so bold and defiant that it was not until the next year, when Gen. Sullivan laid waste their castles and orchards along the Susquehanna and the Genesee, that the settlers who had escaped the massacre ventured back on their original farms in Providence. Harrassed less by the Indian suddenly traversing the mountain, they yet suffered more hardships, if possible, than before. The great difficulty and danger of procuring corn for seed, owing to the presence of panthers, bears, and wolves along all the roads leading out of the Valley, made their first crop almost a failure, and the little that was raised was cracked at home in the old fashioned wooden or stone mortar for the nourishing na-sump or samp. All the flour used in Providence Township, and this was principally rye, was brought up from Wyoming Valley in bags made from tanned deer or bear skins, carried on the backs of the inhabitants, and sometimes when the snow was deep and drifted, the only way of getting down and back from the mill was upon slow and cumbrous snow shoes.

At this time there was no Hyde Park nor Dunmore. The land where the latter village now stands had early been explored by the hunter and the emigrant in passing to and from Connecticut to Wyoming, but none possessed the courage to begin a settlement in this wild outline of the Moosic, until William Allsworth, of N. Y., in May, 1783, erected his cabin from trees and the sheltering boughs of the hemlock. For many years

Mr. Allsworth's family were the sole occupants of the "Corners," as this point was designated before it took to itself the droll but now obsolete appellation of "Bucktown." John West, Edward Lunnon, John Carey, sen., Chas. and Isaac Dolph, James Brown, Phillip Swartz, and Levi De Puy, settled in the vicinity, about the beginning of the present century. The old tavern, once famous for its old rye and rare sports, and for the hospitality it offered the welcome but uninvited guest, passed through the hands of Wm. Allsworth, Philip Swartz, Isaac Dolph, J. D. Bloom, Henry W. Drinker, and Samuel De Puy, before its bar-room, fortified with long pickets, extending to the ceiling, was supplanted by the brick store of John D. Boyle. In passing on the cars from Scranton to New York, the traveler will observe at "No. 6," below the high dam in the Roaring Brook, the debris of an old grist and saw mill. This was erected in 1820, by Stephen Tripp, Jacob Swartz and Jacob Fike doing the work.

The first physician living and practicing his profession in Providence, was Dr. Orlo Hamlin, who as early as 1813 located about one mile up the valley from Dunmore. He soon abandoned the place. Although the earliest settlers of Dunmore were men of such independence of character that no adverse circumstance could change or depress them, the wardrobe of obscurity was never thrown off from the settlement until the Pennsylvania Coal Company, in 1848, began to convert the rough pasture lots into a town now commanding such magnificent views of neighboring villages and mountain scenery, and marked with every element of life and prosperity. Without seeming invidious towards the good people of that place, who have by their business energy and steady habits contributed so much towards bringing their town into a position with its sister villages, we will say what they themselves gracefully accord, that to no one man is this prosperous condition of Dunmore more indebted than to John B. Smith, who, for a period of over twenty years, has not only given reputation to this coal road by his straight forward fair dealing with the employees of the road as well as others, but whose liberality, never exhausted upon a worthy object, and whose steady adherence to every measure calculated to promote the harmonious interests of the community in which he lives, have earned a place in popular estimation that few so quiet and reserved have been able to reach or sustain.

The formation of Luzerne County in 1786, promising a degree of security hitherto never enjoyed by the Lackawanna settlements, began to stir up emigration towards the wild lands in Providence and the lower portion of the valley. Isaac Tripp, the 3d, accompanied by his son Stephen, came from R. I. during this year, and permanently located in Providence in 1788. At the same time Enoch Holmes came from White Plains, N. Y., and, felling a few trees, fashioned and erected the first house in the vicinity of Providence Boro'. This plain structure, covered with bark and hemlock boughs, was made from the fallen logs, and stood between the Presbyterian Church and the main road from Providence to

Hyde Park. In fact, the population of the township had increased so rapidly, that, including Blakely and Lackawanna, it had 156 inhabitants in 1792. These were compelled to do all public business, as training, voting, paying taxes, &c., in Lakawanuk Township, (now Pittston), after Pennsylvania, by virtue of the Trenton decision, assumed jurisdiction over the disputed territory. Providence Township, existing twenty-two years previous, in the old Connecticut survey, was formed in August, 1792, by the justices of Luzerne County, out of a part of "Lakawanuk." * In this year the petition of Isaac Tripp and others, set forth "that the town of Providence labors under great disadvantage by reason of being annexed to Lackawanna, that the inhabitants live remote from the place where the town meets on public occasions, and that they have a very bad river to cross, which is impassable at some times," etc. †

As there was no bridge across the Lackawanna at this time, nor until 1797, elections were held on the north-east side of the stream. The first town meeting held in Providence was at the house of Stephen Tripp, above Hyde Park, before that energetic portion of the township had assumed any distinctive features of a village. This was in 1813. Voters, then living in Providence, comprising the region of Blakely, Jefferson, a portion of Scott, Greenfield, Lackawanna, and Covington, Slocum Hollow, and Dunmore, enjoyed elective franchise here.

The vote was as follows :

In 1813, Federal vote,	46	Democratic vote,	36
" 1814, " "	47	" "	36
" 1815, " "	51	" "	44

The land now covered by the main portion of Providence village came into possession of James Griffin in the winter of 1812, who immediately moved into the solitary log house previously erected by Mr. Holmes. So laborious the work of cutting down and then burning up the noblest pine that ever met the breeze springing from the west, that the settlement here was slowly advanced. In fact, so slow that as late as 1816 there were but three settlers in the immediate vicinity of the present Borough—Daniel Waderman, James and Thomas Griffin—the latter living near "Lutz's Ford," in the old red house yet standing by the road side below the village. At this time there was no bridge across the Lackawanna at any point along the stream, except one from Slocum Hollow to Fellows' and built of rude logs in 1797, and one at Old Forge, six miles below. Persons crossed the stream either on foot or horse-back by wading the different crossing places or fords. These fords were usually selected in some shallow place in the stream (often impassable when the waters were swollen) where the banks were not abrupt, and if the hardy settler or the brave woman whose presence gladdened the valley chose to visit a neighbor over the river, she stepped bare-footed into the rapid current, and with her dress well tucked in its woollen folds cautiously waded to the opposite bank and went on her way rejoining. Two fords were in Providence; the upper one at Bayley's, above, and the lower one between Conrad Lutz's and Thomas Griffin's, known as "Lutz's Ford." This was on the main wagon road coming from the Delaware and Paupack, over Cobb Mountain, into Providence, and thence passing down to Wyoming. At the present village of Providence there was no ford, nor was there a bridge here until 1826, when one was erected for and by the Drinker turnpike. The grist-mill near the bridge, long known as the "Jeffry mill," now occupied by Joseph Gillespie and Son, was built in 1829, by N. Cottrill.

Nothing, however, contributed so much to give the central location of the village of Providence an impetus and importance as the Philadelphia and Great Bend Turnpike, known throughout the country as the "Drinker Turnpike," chartered in 1819, and to pass through the village with its tri-weekly stage-coach and mail. This then important road was completed in 1826, and was the first road passing through Cobb's Gap; all previous roads going over the rugged summit of this wild range. The Luzerne and Wayne County Turnpike road * passed through Providence and Blakely, intersecting the Drinker Road; the Easton and Belmont and the Milford and Owego Turnpikes were also built this year.

The late Elisha S. Potter, Esq., and our esteemed townsman Nathaniel Cottrill, perceiving the future value of these then unsought lands, purchased fourteen acres of the Holmes tract of Mr. Griffin, for $4,000, in 1828. Soon after, it passed into the hands of Mr. Cottrill. Previous to this, however, the Slocums, Fellows, Tripps, Briggs, Millers, Vaughns, Lutzs, Dings, Whalings, Swartzs, Dolphs, Griffins, Von Storchs, and many others, had located within the township, and as their descendants represent a large element in the subsequent history of the town, they deserve more extended notice than a brief sketch like this, or the article upon the history of Scranton, is expected to present, and which will be more fully given in the new and enlarged edition of the history of the Lackawanna Valley, forthcoming this summer or fall.

In 1821, the wolves frequenting the mountain between Abington and Providence became so bold in their depredations, that a great general hunt was determined upon by the inhabitants, who had suffered from the earliest settlement of the valley until now. Cattle were sometimes attacked and sheep slain by them in broad day, within the narrow clearing, while after nightfall, unless protected by strong stockades, made from the well-driven saplings, no kind of live stock could be kept. After sun-down or night-time, the wolves, whose far resounding howl was sent down into the solitude of the valley from the timbered slope, held loud and long their carnival. Determined, if possible, to rid themselves of these grey-eyed creatures, the settlers of Providence, Blakely, Abington, Pittston, and a few old shots from Kingston, appointed a time and place for one day's excursion on the mountain, that would combine relaxation and amusement, bring abundance of game, and exemption from the so frequent incursions of the wolves. Beside this, a little girl of Mr. Rivingburg's, then living in Blakely, on the "Uncle Pete Miller farm," had gone to the edge of the woods after berries, one afternoon, and as she was looked for in vain for weeks afterwards, it was supposed that a panther, seen there but a few days previous, had caught and carried her away to his den. Singular as it appears, the little child, grown into womanhood, was found sixteen years later in one of the lower counties of New York!

The time chosen for the hunt was in the spring of the year, while a slight fall of snow was on the ground, which not only made the dogs go out with a sharper appetite after old bruin and his greedier competitor, but left tracks fresh from the farmer's barn-yard to the cliffs and notches, affording, in their dark shadows, shelter and hiding places.

The hunters divided themselves into four separate parties; the Blakely people, skilled with the rifle from their very youth, formed a line across the mountain from this point at the appointed time; the Abingtonians, led by Elder John Miller, as good a shot as ever lived, flanked the north side; the Nimrods of Providence, armed with every conceivable kind of weapon, from the long rifle to the blustering shot-gun, and some even with pitchforks, deified upon the other, while the riflemen from Pittston and Kingston covered the mountain above Campbell's Ledge, startling the wolf and the bear from every ravine and precipice by the sharp cracking of the rifle and the loud barking of the dogs, heard from mountain side to summit. The air cut keenly at early dawn, as the bugle, blown by Jacob Swartz, announced the time of departure of such men as Benjamin Fellows, Elias Scott, Benjamin Slocum, John Dings, Joshua Griffin, the Vaughns, Millers, Tripps, Dolphs, Briggs, Taylors, and some three hundred others, who joined the exciting chase. Most of these were young men then, but few indeed are those who are left among us.

There seemed to be no chance for these fleet-footed animals, thus walled in on every side, to escape. The constant crack of the rifle coming on the ear, now on the right, then on the left, quickened the leap of the wolf and the bear, whose wounded mates struggled in vain with the avenging bullet. From morning until middle afternoon the hunt went on with speed and sport unslackened; the buck and the doe were swept forward with panting chest; the wolf, with the cunning bear, forsook their fastnesses and all fled before the cheers and loud huzzas of their pursuers. The parties rapidly approached each other with the affrighted beasts hemmed in the interspace. Every flint was picked and every pan primed afresh.

One of the seams or notches in the mountain which distinguish and diversify the Moosic range its entire length, lying in the rear of Hyde Park, was selected as the first rendezvous, as shooting down into the gorge would endanger none of the party upon the opposite side. As the bugle gave the signal to draw the enclosing lines more firmly together, the men advanced with shouts reverberating from cliff to cliff, commingled with the reports of the rifle and the howlings of the hounds. Many wolves had been shot and left behind with cut and reddened throat, but more rushed into the destructive gorge and with swift vengeance were shot in their efforts to emerge from the trap. A vast number was thus slaughtered. At length, led by a huge bear, defying every attempt to wound or capture, a break was made through the ranks on the northern side of the mountain, when the carnage ceased. So great were the trophies of the hunt, that bear-steak and venison long smoked upon the hunters' table. Only one panther was killed. From this time henceforth the valley was in a great measure rid of the impertinent wolf.

The growth of Providence, from 1828 until now, while it has not approached the astonishing rapidity of the City of Scranton—of which it forms no unimportant part—has been marked by no wild excitement, or no stride of ambitious haste more apt to recede than advance, but a healthy gradual development which has called forth from the valley a neat and substantial village, equaled by few within its border, and surpassed by none.

Hon. George W. Scranton.

In bringing a work of this kind before the people of this community, it is absolutely necessary to sketch the life and some of the public acts of the great and good man from whom this city took its name—but for the want of space and inability of the writer to do the subject justice, it is to be regretted that more cannot be done when attempted. Some one of the present generation should carefully write Colonel Scranton's biography, and lay it by for the benefit of those that are to come; and show to future generations the material of which true men are made, as illustrated in the life and character of this model gentleman.

Colonel Scranton came of good stock. He was a lineal descendant of John Scranton, who came from England in 1638, and was one of the New Haven Colony settling there about this time. In the records of the old French and Revolutionary War, we find favorable mention of this family both as privates and commissioned officers.

In the town of Madison, Ct., Colonel George W. Scranton was born,

May 11, 1811. In early life he showed signs of that untiring energy, promptitude, honesty of heart, and purity of purpose, which, in after life, became manifest in developing the immense resources of this valley and founding a city. His early education was limited to the rudiments of the English branches, and two years at Lee's Academy. He continued in his father's family until the year 1828, when he removed to Belvidere, N. J., to live with an uncle. While there he went through an amount of hard work and endured hardships that none but the most robust could accomplish. About this time Judge Kinney, who had often observed the great business tact, and affable manners of young Scranton, offered him a clerkship in his store, and soon after took him in as a partner. On the 21st of January, 1835, he was married to Miss Jane Hiles, of Belvidere, and soon afterwards relinquished mercantile pursuits and went to farming till 1839.

His brother Selden had been clerking at the Oxford Furnace for Henry, Jordan & Co. They were anxious to retire, and offered their stock and unexpired lease for sale. An unexpected and most complimentary proposition was made to Selden, then a young man hardly of age. He consulted with George, and they determined to accept, contrary, however, to the advice of their friends, who predicted nothing but ruin from the enterprise. It was in the midst of the hard times following the crash of '37, and Iron was at a low figure. Nothing daunted, the brothers took vigorous hold, established a high credit, and succeeded to the astonishment of the neighborhood.

To Mr. Wm. Henry is due the credit of first perceiving the advantages offered for the manufacture of iron in Lackawanna Valley. In '39 he made a purchase of a large tract, including the present site of Scranton, then known as Slocum Hollow. It contained a saw-mill, the old Slocum homestead, and two other buildings, a large amount of timber, and was densely covered with an undergrowth of laurel that was almost impassable. Mr. Henry was unable to comply with his contract. The Scranton brothers visited the spot in company with Mr. Sanford Grant, and concluded a contract in May, 1840. Mr. P. H. Mattes, of Easton, also took an interest in it, and in the course of a few months Messrs. Henry, Grant, C. F. Mattes, and Manness, moved to the scene of their future labors and hardships.

It must be remembered that when this purchase was made the manufacture of anthracite iron was in its infancy. But little was known of the process, and only two other furnaces in the country were producing iron with any success, and they only in small quantities, viz., one at Catasauqua and the other at Danville. The foundation of the furnace was laid on the 20th of September, 1840. It was not ready for work till the fall of 1841, when it was blown in amid the anxious expectation of the little band. Their labor was vain. Despite the most superhuman and exhausting toil, no iron was made. There was no end to the expedients resorted to in the vain hope of inducing a favorable result. Sulphur was procured from Wilkes-Barre to be thrown into the furnace, and salt was added to the fire in the hope of intensifying the heat. All hands resorted to the woods to chop, in order to secure a sufficient supply of wood. But though the most varied experiments were made and the most herculean tasks performed, the refractory ore would not yield its metal. The furnace was too new and too small, the blast too little, and the heating ovens too few, and all lacked experience. During this trying time Col. Scranton is said to have gone two weeks without once sleeping in his bed, and part of the time his meals were taken to him.

On the 18th day of January, 1842, the furnace was blown in a third time, and with success. Between that and the 26th of February 75 tons of iron were made. The first pig was for years in the possession of Mr. Charles Scranton, of Oxford. Additional heating ovens were added, and on the 23d of May the furnace was started again, continuing eighteen weeks to September 25th, and producing 362 tons. The third successful blast began on October 11th, 1842, and continued till the 12th of March following. From this time on, the product steadily increased, but the firm found themselves terribly hampered for the want of means. But for an opportune advance made by Messrs. J. H. & E. C. Scranton, they would have been swamped. As it was, iron was low, and the cost of getting it to Carbondale or Port Griffith, near Pittston,—their only two shipping places—was so great as to entail loss rather than profit.

It was determined to convert the pig metal into manufactured iron; but how to raise the means was the vexatious question over which many a sleepless, trying hour was passed. After many and anxious considerations between the brothers, it was agreed that Selden should go to New York. In a manly, frank way, George went to several of their creditors in this vicinity, explained their embarrassments and the necessity of having the property free from all record incumbrances, and so relieved it of all judgment liens save the original purchase mortgage. Selden started for New York, knowing hardly a man of any wealth in it. He was recommended to George Howland. Introducing himself and mission, he told his story in a plain, unvarnished way, and said that they wanted from fifteen to twenty thousand dollars to meet their engagements and start a nail factory. Mr. Howland agreed to talk with his son, and give him an answer the next morning at a quarter past nine. Punctually to the moment, Selden was on hand, and was told that they should send out an agent to verify his statements, and if correct he could have the money. He accordingly visited the valley, was satisfied, made a favorable report, and Mr. Howland gave the firm his cheque for $3,000 before any of the requisite papers were drawn—a confidence alike creditable to both parties.

This loan enabled the firm to regain their credit, and on the 1st of May, 1844, the rolling mill, designed for bar iron, was commenced, being about one-third of the present building, and the nail mill was begun in November following. In April of '45, the first iron was puddled. In September of the same year, Mr. Grant sold his interest to Jos. H. Scranton, and the firm was changed to Scranton & Platt, thus securing the dashing energy and bold frankness of the present President, and the cautious judgment and exact system of the present land agent. But the bar iron was not of the best grade, and the nails were most unsatisfactory. Stories are told of their brittleness and of the remarkable skill of the then chief manager in driving them. The company found themselves inextricably involved. Ordinary men in their position would have failed, but they would not acknowledge themselves worsted, and cast around for the means of extending their operations and going into the manufacture of Railroad Iron. The Colonel, who had moved to Oxford Furnace, exchanging places with his brother Selden, returned in September, 1846. He and Joseph devoted themselves untiringly for several months following to negotiating the means for manufacturing nails.

We have more than once heard the Colonel refer to this as one of the most trying periods of his life ; but his peculiar and most successful address never appeared to greater advantage. The Erie Railroad needed iron for their track. The two went before the Board and offered to furnish what they needed for five dollars per ton less than the ruling price, $80, on condition that the company would advance them $100,000. Some of the friends of the road acted on the suggestion. They deputed Messrs. William E. Dodge and Benjamin Loder to visit the Lackawanna Valley and examine into the statements made by the strangers. They did so, and spent two days in examining the property. No questions were asked of them as to their report ; but as they were leaving the valley the Colonel inquired, " Well, gentlemen, do you find our statements to be true ? " and the reply was, promptly and heartily, " The half had not been told us." And accordingly after their return, $90,000 was advanced by Messrs. Benjamin Loder, Henry Sheldon, Anson G. Phelps, William E. Dodge, Homer Ramsdell, Samuel Marsh, Philip Dater, and Daniel S. Miller contributing $10,000 apiece, and Wm. B. Skidmore and James Stokes each $5,000. A contract was made with the Erie Company for 12,000 tons, to be delivered at the mouth of the Lackawaxen. It was subsequently altered by the Company so as to secure its delivery at various points along the line of their road. And then was seen one of the most astonishing features of the valley's history. The rails were wagoned over the mountains along almost impassable roads, and sometimes over no roads at all. From fifty to seventy teams a day were loaded and started on their tedious route.

This contract was a fortunate thing for the Erie Road, for it ensured its completion to Binghamton four days before the time limited by its charter. The Erie President admitted, that but for the energy and promptitude shown by the Scrantons, it would have been impossible to comply with their charter. But it was equally fortunate for the Company, for it established them on a firm and secure basis.

In the year 1849, the Cayuga & Susquehanna Railroad from Owego to Ithaca was offered for sale by Messrs. Humphry and Williams. It had been purchased by them under the State's foreclosure. It was ironed with the strap rail, and was in wretched order. The Company purchased it so as to secure an outlet to the West for their coal, and Colonel Scranton undertook to have it in working order by Christmas. It was deemed by many an impossibility, for the ties were standing in the woods; the iron lay untouched in its virgin ore, and the coal that was to smelt it was in the bowels of the earth. But he went at it with his accustomed energy, and, though part of the rails were laid by moonlight and with relays of hands, the trains went over it at the promised time. He then undertook, in behalf of Scrantons and Platt, the construction of the Northern Division of the Delaware, Lackawanna, & Western Railroad. It was built by the day, and under his personal superintendence. Nor were the other members of the firm idle. Apart from their laborious duties in connection with the mill, they were busy in purchasing the immense supplies needed for the men, and in devising ways and means to carry the enormous indebtedness they had incurred, amounting at one time to over a million of dollars. But the firm barely went through it, and the road was completed and opened in October, 1851.

Colonel Scranton early had his eyes on a connection with New York as necessary to secure a ready market for iron, but indispensable for the development of the coal trade. Messrs. Drinker, Henry, and others had for years looked forward to the same thing, and for years had labored for its accomplishment, but without success. He succeeded in what they had so often been disappointed in—in enlisting foreign capital for the construction of a great Eastern outlet. The history of that operation affords the highest tribute to his address, his patience, his courtesy and unflagging energy. We record one instance. One of the leading capitalists of New York had been repeatedly urged to subscribe. He was spoken of several times at the meeting of the friends of the enterprise, and the remark was made, "It is useless to apply to him, he has refused, and when his mind is made up it cannot be changed." The Colonel avowed his intention to call on him, and asked a friend to accompany him, and give him an introduction. He was told it was a waste of time; but the call was made and an introduction given. The Colonel pleasantly alluded to the high reputation of the capitalist, and remarked that he had called to give him a chance to enroll himself amongst the first men of the city. Courteously interrupting him in the statement that he had already refused, he invited him to look at the subscription book; went over many of the names; commented on the advantages of the proposed road, and secured $20,000 subscription in less than half an hour, to the infinite surprise of all who knew the circumstances.

This road was put under contract in June, 1853, and its completion was celebrated on the 27th of May, 1856. It is no disparagement to the efforts of his associates to say that had it not been for the energy and dauntless patience of Colonel Scranton, years must have elapsed before it would have been in operation, even if it had been undertaken at this day.

The Colonel's health gave way under his exhausting labors, though he continued an active and most useful member of the board. Originally of most vigorous constitution, in the prime of his life he was a superb specimen of physical manhood, weighing some two hundred pounds, but his incessant toil broke down a matchless physique, and laid the foundation of the disease which bore him to an untimely grave.

In politics the Colonel had always been a whig. He worked most faithfully for the election of Clay in '44, but disappointed by the defeat of that great statesman, took but little interest in current politics, though always a consistent friend of the Protective Policy. Against his personal wishes, he was presented as the champion of this policy in the congressional contest of 1858, and after a brief but animated canvass, that was free from the personality and abuse that so often disgrace our political contests, he was triumphantly elected by 3,900 majority, in a district which is some 2,000 Democratic.

Recollections of Slocum Hollow.

BY JOSEPH SLOCUM, ESQ.

My father, Ebenezer Slocum, was born January 10th, 1766, in Kent, R. I., and emigrated to Wyoming Valley in November, 1777, with his father, Jonathan Slocum and family.

Two years later my grandfather's youngest sister, Frances, was carried away into the forest by the Indians, and lived with them until her death. (See Miner's or Peck's History of Wyoming). My father, accompanied by his four children, came into Unionville, as this place was called, in July, 1798. He moved into a two-roomed log-house, standing on Roaring brook, below the mill. He built a smith-shop from logs and a double log-house or two near the present location of the old red house. At this time a man named Duwain was in company with father. In the spring of 1800 the dams were washed away by the freshet.

Mr. Duwain now retired from partnership, and my uncle, Benjamin, immediately took his place. The dams were now re-built for the grist and saw-mills and forge, while the single still-house, smith-shop and five log-houses, made up the village of Unionville. The old red house was raised in the fall of 1805, Chester Kimble doing the mason work. Elisha Hitchcock came here in 1809, and in July, 1811, married my youngest sister, Ruth, who yet lives, in her 76th year, and to whose excellent memory I am indebted for very many of the subjoined facts.

The forge had two fires, and one trip-hammer and smith-shop attached, worked by Thomas Williams, George Worton, Henry Stark, (colored) and John Gorden, foreman, who wrought from the rude ore and iron all the needed implements of the country for many miles away. Mr. Oster was the first collier who supplied the forge with coal. The grist-mill grinding the grain of the Valley, and even of the adjacent country, was carefully kept in repair by Mr. Hitchcock, who was a clever and skillful mill-wright. A second still was built here, and while the wood-choppers cleared the land about Unionville, the place turned out such large quantities of whisky, lumber, iron, flour and feed, as to bring the settlement before the country as one of promise and importance. All transactions here, and all the charges upon my father's day books, bear the name of Unionville as late as 1828; but it was known far and near as Slocum Hollow, and named so in 1816, by a jolly Dutchman, named James Snyder. The season of this year was known as the cold season. Little or no corn escaped the ravages of the frost, which killed everything that could be killed. This Dutchman, who was fond of whisky and convivial sports, employed at the forge, had ever before called the place "Skunk's Misery," but when this frost, with its disastrous breath, froze everything it could reach; he indignantly exclaimed that this spot "Was fit only for a Slocum to live in, and he should name it Slocum Holler." Father kept many teams on the road carting whisky, pork, beef, flour and feed to Easton, Wilkes Barre, Montrose, Paupack, and Bethany. Ox-teams were used to haul coal and ore. About the different works from 30 to 50 men were employed. As the ore began to fail the forge diminished its product, and June 10th, 1826, the last iron was made in Slocum Hollow, by the Slocums. The last whisky-makers (I wish that there never had been any made afterwards), were William Johnson and Jacob Meyers, in December, 1826. As business slackened and declining years came over father, and wishing to divide the property, one still-house was abandoned, and a division of the lands effected. April 15th, 1828, I took my father's place in business here, in connection with my brother Samuel. The stone-store house, cooper shop, and other improvements, were in a tolerable good condition, excepting two or three log-houses abandoned in 1817. We erected a new barn in the rear of the red house, in 1829, and carried on farming and business generally. By father's advice, Mr. Hitchcock put in a tub water wheel and new gearing for the mill, which proving a failure, lost the use of the mill for nearly a year. Father's death July 25th, 1832, placed the entire property into the hands of Merritt Slocum, as Administrator. He turned the still-house into a dwelling, and proceeded to apportion and divide the estate into four shares. Lot No. 1, or saw-mill lot, consisting of 503 acres, valued at $4,415, fell into the hands of Alva and Sylvanus Heermans, afterwards owned by Messrs. Merrifield, Albro and Rickerson, and from thence passed to the Scrantons. Lot No. 2, or grist-mill lot, of 372 acres, valued at $7,500, went to Ebenezer Slocum, jr., and Aaron Brown, and after two other changes, was sold to the Scrantons. Lot No. 3, or house lot, of 388 acres, valued at $3,560, and No. 4, or Griffin lot, of 595 acres, valued at $1,700, passed to Joseph and Samuel Slocum conjointly. We dissolved partnership in 1837. I built the saw-mill in 1848, which I afterwards sold the Company, re-purchased and re-sold again.

The house where I now reside I built in 1859. My mother died November 1st, 1842, aged 71 years.

Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad.

The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company have a capital of about $15,000,000. They own the Railroad running from Great Bend, where it connects with the "Erie Railway," to the Delaware River, a distance of 113 miles. At the Delaware, they connect with the "Warren Railroad," which they operate under a perpetual lease—it is about 17 miles in length, and connects with the "Central Railroad of New Jersey" at New Hamton Junction, over which their coal is transported a distance of 48 miles to Elizabeth Port, at which point they are possessed of extensive facilities for stocking and shipping.

In addition to this line of road, they hold under lease the Cayuga and Susquehanna Railroad, in New York State, running from Owego, on the Erie Railway, 36 miles west of Great Bend, to Ithaca on Cayuga Lake, a distance of 36 miles. They also run their coal and freight trains over the Erie Railway to Binghamton and Owego, and from Binghamton to Syracuse, a distance of 80 miles over the Syracuse, Binghamton and New York Railroad, under perpetual agreement for trackage with the Companies owning those roads.

Their principal shipping ports, at which they are able to ship direct from their cars into vessels or canal boats, and at all of which they have large stocking grounds, are :

1st, Elizabeth Port, from whence the eastern market is mainly supplied.

2nd, Port Washington, on the Morris Canal, from whence supplies are shipped to Newark, Paterson, Jersey City, and other points in New Jersey.

3rd, Port Dickinson, near Binghamton, on the Chenango Canal, whence coal is shipped to Utica and other large towns in Eastern and Central New York.

4th, Syracuse, from whence Northern and Western New York is supplied, via Erie, and Oswego and Syracuse Canals, and the New York Central Railroad.

5th, Ithaca, on Cayuga Lake, over which, and the Erie Canal, coal is shipped to Western New York.

Besides these primary shipping ports, the Company have large yards established at various points in the cities of New York and Brooklyn, at Jersey City, N. J., at Rochester, Buffalo and Oswego, in the State of New York, and at Chicago, in Illinois.

The entire shipments of coal during the year 1866, were a little over one million six hundred thousand net tons. Since the 1st of January, 1867, and up to the 1st of May, they have shipped about 525,000 tons, an increase over last year's shipment, during the same time, of more than 100,000 tons.

The shipments for April alone being 150,000 tons—the largest ever made.

This enormous business requiring about 7,000 coal cars, and 100 first-class locomotive engines, has mainly sprung into existence in the past ten years.

The business of the Company, for the year 1866, gave employment to about 5,000 men, and the total disbursements for the same year, through the hands of H. A. Phelps, Pay Master at Scranton, amounted to nearly $4,000,000 ; and during the same year large disbursements were made by the Treasurer of the Company in the city of New York, the correct amount of which we have not the present means of ascertaining.

The first of their charters, was the incorporation of the " Legget's Gap Railroad Company " in 1832, authorising the construction of a Railroad from Great Bend to the Lackawanna Valley. In 1849, the " Delaware and Cobb's Gap Railroad Company" was incorporated, authorising the construction of a Railroad from the Delaware River to said Valley, and in 1853 these two companies were consolidated, under the name of "The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Company." In addition to their coal business, their earnings from freight and passengers in 1866, were over $1,000,000.

Historical Statement of the Rise and Progress of the Machine Shops and Rolling Stock of the Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western Railroad Company, at Scranton.

The conception of the vast interests of the Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western Railroad Company, centered at Scranton, was chiefly due to the late Col. G. W. Scranton, whose energy resulted in gaining a charter for the Leggit's Gap R. R. Co., and, under his supervision, shops were erected for the business then contemplated, viz:

The transportation of coal west, via Great Bend, and it was not until the year 1851 that the Company became merged into the D., L., & W. R. R. Co., and in the year 1852 and 1853 to its present corporate name.

In the year 1854 the shops of the Company consisted of one brick building on Washington Avenue in the form of an E, the main building being 210 feet long by 75 feet in width, the two wings being each 200 feet long by 55 feet wide. The main building being used for a Smith and Pattern Shop, Office, Engine and Boiler Room, the west wing for repairs and building of cars, and the east wing for the repairs of engines and engine house.

In the year 1855 the addition of an Iron Foundry was made to the foregoing, on the same street, 75 feet in length by 44 feet in width, also an engine house 225 feet in diameter, the whole being covered with a dome 98 feet high, and capable of holding 30 engines.

This building is situated on the north ends of the east and west wings, and was not completed until the year 1856, at which time the wing heretofore used in part as an engine house was vacated for that purpose, and thereafter used wholly for repairing engines.

During the years from 1857 to 1860 no material change was made, but as the business of the shops increased in consequence of an increasing business of the road, a like increase of shop-room was found to be necessary, and an addition in size 100 x 100 feet was made between the two wings adjoining the engine house.

In the year 1862 the ever increasing business of the Company required yet more shop capacity, and a Smith Shop was erected on the south side of Washington Avenue, adjacent to the beforementioned buildings, in size 50 x 180 feet, in which was put a steam hammer and some 32 forges, to which all the smiths were removed from the main building, which thereafter was used for repairing engines and cars.

In the further progress of events, the additions named being yet too small, and as room was not to be found for further additions in the immediate vicinity of the shops, it was concluded by the Company to purchase the ground remaining between Washington Avenue and Cliff St., and north of the other shops named, and erect additional buildings thereon.

These buildings were commenced in 1865. The Round House is 300 feet in diameter, and is open in its center, depth of stalls under cover 67 feet, number of tracks 40. The inside circle or front is of cast iron, outside walls of brick. Roof consists of iron rafters with white pine purlines, pine matched roof boards covered with slate, and is considered almost fire proof. This building was completed and used in July, 1866.

The present Machine Shops were commenced at the same time as the Round House. The main building being 270 feet in width and two stories high. The lower story containing 11 tracks for repairing engines.

The second story for Pattern Shop, Carpenter, Tin and Copper Smith Shops, and Offices.

There are also two wings running south of the main building 200 x 75 feet. The east wing is used for a Smith and Boiler Shop, the former containing 21 forges. The west wing is occupied with tools, such as Lathes, Planing Machines, Drill Presses, &c. The engine which drives the machinery is located in the south end of this wing, has a cylinder 18 x 36 inches, and was made by the Dickson Manufg. Co.

The capacity of these shops is equal in room for the employment of about 330 men, and doing the repairs of at least 120 locomotives.

The character of engines used by this Company are, as a class, the heaviest known to any road in the States, which is owing to the character of the road and business. It may be interesting to add, that, in going either north or south by this road, a grade of 75 feet per mile is encountered, and out of 101 engines now in use by and owned by the Company, they have but 9 known as 8 wheel or Passenger engines, the remaining portion being 10 wheel engines, weighing, when in running order, 76,000 to 82,000 lbs. Sixty-one of this latter class burn anthracite coal, and the balance wood, and in view of the greater economy of coal for fuel, the question naturally arises, Why is wood used at all? The answer to which is, that the successful use of coal for locomotive engines has been obtained at a comparatively recent date. The first anthracite coal burner came on the road in 1854, and was built upon the plan at that time adopted by the Philadelphia & Reading R. R. Co.

The boiler had about 20 feet grate surface and two sets of flues, with what was known as a center combustion chamber. She failed to make steam on the long and heavy grades to be overcome, and, as the Southern Division of the road was about to be opened for business, it was thought best by the Company to use wood as fuel, and in the mean time experiment with the engine they had. In the year 1857 they succeeded in getting coal burners to work satisfactorily, since which time all engines purchased by the Company have been built to burn coal, and as fast as practicable, they are altering the wood burners to coal.

In the year 1865 the large dome on the first Round House built by the Company, which added somewhat to the looks of the city, was found to be settling, and on examination was found unsafe and was taken down. The building was altered so that at present it is used for an engine house holding 30 engines.

The Company, finding their Iron Foundry too small for their large increase of business, are now laying the foundation for one 100 x 100 feet, with facility for making about 10 tons of engine and car castings per day.

It might be interesting to some to know that the Company now have running under engines and cars no less than 33,000 journals, all of which are to be kept in order at the shop of which we have given a slight description.

The following will give, at a glance, the increase in the Company's shops since the year 1854. They at that time employed 188 men. Number Locomotive Engines 13, No. Passenger and Baggage Cars 10, No. House and Platform Cars 60, No. Coal Cars 854. They now employ 650 men. No. Locomotive Engines 101, No. Passenger and Baggage Cars 22, No. House and Platform Cars 718, No. Coal Cars 6182. The consumption of Lumber used in repairing and building cars in the year 1866 was 2,571,300 feet. Amount of castings made in the same year was 2493 tons.

Delaware & Hudson Railroad and Canal.

The Delaware and Hudson Canal Company, the western terminus of whose Railroad is in the City of Scranton, had its origin in this State, under an act of the Legislature, passed in March, 1823, granting authority to Maurice Wurts, to "Improve the navigation of the River Lackawanna."

In April following, the State of New York passed an act incorporating the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company, with authority to cut a canal and make a complete slack water navigation between the rivers Delaware and Hudson.

In April, 1825, the Legislature of Pennsylvania authorized the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company, by and with the consent of Maurice Wurts, to improve the navigation of the river Lackawanna, in the manner provided by the act of March, 1823.

The object of the projectors of this enterprise was to open an outlet to the seaboard, from the rich anthracite coal fields of this valley. The canal was built from Rondout, on the Hudson River, to the forks of the Lackawanna, (now Honsdale), and from thence a Railroad crossing the Moosic Mountain, to the coal beds on the Lackawanna River, near Ragged Island, (now Carbondale).

Both Railroad and Canal as originally constructed, were of small capacity, as compared with the present magnitude of these works; nor had the originators of the scheme any adequate idea of the immense tonnage destined to be passed over the line of their improvements.

The first shipment of coal by this route was made in 1829, during which year seven thousand tons were sent to market. From that time onward the Company have been steadily increasing their business and the capacity of their works, until in 1866, their total business in coal mined and forwarded, amounted to nearly 1,600,000 net tons, to which is to be added a large and rapidly increasing passenger and miscellaneous freight business.

The paid up capital stock of the Company, $10,000,000, divided into 100,000 shares of the par value of $100 each.

The business of this Company for the year 1866, gave steady employment to 8,309 men and boys, and the total disbursements for the same time amounted to between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000.

The Railroad as originally constructed from Honsdale to Carbondale, a distance of sixteen miles, was a single track, laid with a light strap rail, spiked on longitudinal stringers. The cars had four wheels each, and had hardly one-half the carrying capacity of those now in use. The motive power employed was horses, with the exception of the inclined planes, ascending the mountains from the Lackawanna, which were operated with stationary engines, the loaded cars being lowered down the eastern slope of the mountain to Waymart, by inclined planes worked with hempen ropes, the motion being regulated by brakes, and the greater weight of the loaded cars in passing down the long planes, raising up the empty ones.

This Company have the honor, however, of having introduced to this country, and of running a short distance on their Railroad, the first locomotive engine ever worked in America. This locomotive, called the "Stourbridge Lion," was built in England, of the best workmanship and material, and most approved pattern of that date. As compared with the powerful, compact, and simply constructed engines of the present day, it was complicated, unwieldy, topheavy, and of inconsiderable power.

It was soon found that the road track had not sufficient strength to admit of being traversed by the locomotive, and it was switched off—a house built over it, and after many years of idleness, taken to pieces.

Subsequently, the Railroad was changed to a gravity road, which necessitated a double track. Extensions of the road were made from time to time down the Valley of the Lackawanna; first, to Archbald, then to Olyphant, afterwards to Providence, and lately to Scranton, its present terminus, near which it connects with the Union Coal Company's Railroad leading to Wilkes Barre, and there connecting with the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and the system of roads running to the south and west.

The length of the main line of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad is thirty-two miles, mostly double tracked. Its motive power now consists of twenty-eight stationary engines, five locomotives and four gravity planes.

Whole length of Canal, 108 miles, with an additional three miles of slack water navigation.

Width of Canal at surface water line, 48 feet; depth of water, six feet. It has one hundred and nine locks, 100 feet by fifteen feet wide.

This Company, the pioneer in developing the coal interests of this Valley, from small beginnings, has risen to be one of the largest, wealthiest, and most respected institutions in the country, and throughout the entire section traversed by its improvements, it has the entire confidence of the community in an eminent degree, which its management has earned by an unbroken record of prompt, honorable dealing in all its transactions, public and private.

The following is a list of officers, with their places of business :

Lackawanna & Bloomsburgh Railroad.

This road commences at Scranton and extends to Northumberland, a distance of eighty miles, having no double track ; but from Scranton to Plymouth, a distance of about twenty-one miles, it has a third rail laid to allow the passage of coal trains belonging to the Delaware, Lackawanna, & Western Railroad Company, to and from their coal mines, in the vicinity of Kingston and Plymouth.

The amount of stock authorized by their charter is $1,900,000. The amount of stock subscribed for and paid up is $1,335,000. The total cost of construction and equipment was $3,812,146.04. The number of shares of capital stock is 26,700, at a par value of $50 per share. The total amount of its funded and floating debt was, in November, 1866, $2,470,525. They have nine engine houses and shops; twenty-one locomotive engines; six first-class passenger cars, seventy-five freight cars, and one thousand two hundred coal cars. Their track is laid on a solid foundation of gravel, ballast, and cross-ties. The amount of anthracite coal transported during the year 1866 was about 600,000 tons, and other freight amounted to 181,749 tons.

Union Railroad

Now in course of completion, connecting at Wilkes Barre with the Lehigh & Susquehanna and the Lehigh Valley Railroads, and at Scranton with the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, and at no remote day anticipate connecting with the Albany & Susquehanna Railroad.

This Road of some twenty miles in length, is an important link, connecting the extreme south and the remote north, with the unbroken guage of 4 ft. 8½ in. roads. This road was commenced in the fall of 1866, and is expected to be completed about the 1st of June, 1867, and in the unprecedented short time of about nine months, and will afford another outlet for the coal from the lower portion of the Wyoming Valley to tide-water, through the Delaware & Hudson Canal, at Rondout. It was projected and carried out by a few enterprising gentlemen from New York and elsewhere, foremost among whom was E. A. Quintard, of the City of New York.

The officers are—E. A. Quintard, President, New York; S. L. Crosby, Treasurer, New York; Jos. J. Albright, General Agent, Scranton, Pa.

The Dickson Manufacturing Company.

This establishment was organized in 1856, under the firm name of Dickson & Co.

Ground was broken for their buildings on the 29th of January, and the Foundry and Machine Shop were in full operation on the 1st of May following.

During that year they made a contract with the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company, for the building of the engines and boilers for the new Railroad over the Moosic Mountain. This work being well and substantially built, established the reputation of the firm as "engine builders."

During the following year, 1857, the great financial panic occurred, prostrated nearly every branch of industry in the country, but was successfully weathered by this firm.

In 1862, a special charter was obtained from the Legislature of Pennsylvania, and the business has been conducted from that time to the present, under the name and style of "The Dickson Manufacturing Company;" the capital stock at its organization being $200,000, which has been increased from time to time, as their operations have been extended, until it has reached $500,000.

In 1862, the "Cliff Works" were purchased, and the manufacture of locomotives and cars added to their business.

In 1864, the "Planing Mill," adjoining the Cliff Works, was purchased, and the manufacture of doors, sash, blinds, etc., was entered upon, and large quantities of lumber are manufactured and sold each year in this department.

In the spring of 1866, the Company purchased the Foundry and Machine Shops of Messrs. Lanning & Marshall, at Wilkes Barre, for the purpose of establishing a branch at that point. Large additions have since been made to the property,—new tools and fixtures added, making it a first-class establishment, and capable of employing several hundred men.

The operations of the Company now extend over the whole county, giving employment to an aggregate of over five hundred mechanics.

While the operations of the Company embrace a diversity of manufacturers, their main attention is given to Mining Machinery, and the manufacture of Stationary and Locomotive Engines and Cars.

The machinery erected for mining purposes by this Company has placed this region far in advance of any other in the economy of mining and preparing coal, and has resulted in earning for the Manufacturing Company a reputation which few establishments of the kind ever attain.

Locomotives built by the Company are being used upon several of the most prominent Railroads of the country, and are giving good satisfaction.

The Company contemplate erecting a new and commodious brick Foundry at their main shops, (to take the place of the present one, which is of wood), during the present season. Considerable additions will also be made to their stock of tools.

In brief, it is their intention to give their patrons no cause to complain of any lack of promptness in the manufacture or delivery of work entrusted to them, as the Management are liberal in their appropriations for new appliances, when the occasion seems to require it.

The following are the officers of the Company :

President —Thomas Dickson	Scranton.
Vice-President —John C. Phelps	Wilkes-Barre.
General Agent —Geo. L. Dickson	Scranton.
General Superintendent —John A. Dickson	Scranton.
Secretary and Treasurer —Wm. H. Perkins	Scranton.
Superintendent —S. R. Marshall	Wilkes-Barre.
Agent —John S. Law	Wilkes-Barre.

The Pennsylvania Coal Company.

Early in 1847, a number of gentlemen, principally stockholders in the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company, associated themselves together under the name and style of the "Wyoming Coal Association," for the purpose of buying lands, with a view ultimately of mining coal and shipping to New York, via the Delaware & Hudson Canal, which they proposed to reach at or near Wallenpaupack Creek, in Wayne county. In August of the same year, their plans were so far matured that they entered into articles of agreement with the Delaware & Hudson Company, for the permanent transportation of coal upon their Canal. With this in view, Mr. James Archbald, the Superintendent and Engineer of the Delaware and Hudson Company, was selected as Engineer, and under his general direction the surveys for the proposed Railroad, from the canal to the coal fields, were begun, in the summer of 1847. These surveys were conducted, and the construction of the Road commenced, under a charter granted to Wm. H. Dimmick and other citizens of Honesdale, in 1838, incorporating them under the title of the "Washington Coal Company." This charter came into the hands of the association, through the purchase of a large body of lands located in the present borough of Dunmore, then held by Messrs. William and Charles Wurts of Philadelphia.

By the close of the year 1847, the route of the eastern portion of the Road was determined upon, and a point at the junction of Middle Creek with the Lackawaxen selected as the terminus. Here a large and commodious basin was constructed in connection with the Delaware and Hudson Canal; and the water at Middle Creek brought in at a suitable elevation, to form a water power sufficient for the various labor of hoisting, screening, and otherwise preparing the coal for market. Here also the car-shops of the Association were built, and a machine shop and foundry erected. A busy town soon sprang up, filling the narrow Valleys of the Lackawaxen and Middle Creek, and reaching up the steep slopes of the hill-sides. This, in honor of the executive officer of the Association, was called Hawley.

These improvements, as well as the eastern portion of the Road, were under the immediate supervision of Mr. Gideon Frothingham, who brought to his work a life of experience as an engineer and a more than usual enthusiasm for professional duties. While the works we have mentioned were in progress, the surveys were extended over the Moosic Mountain, into the Lackawanna and Susquehanna Valleys, and the construction of the Road begun early in 1849. This part of the work was under the immediate charge of Mr. Wm. R. Maffet, a young engineer, who in the service of the Lehigh Company had acquired experience as an engineer of gravity roads.

The machinery of the Road, consisting of the stationary engines and other arrangements requisite for hoisting the coal from the mines, and taking the loaded and light cars over the inclined planes, and the necessary apparatus for separating, screening, and delivering the coal, was under the charge of Mr. John B. Smith, who supervised its construction, from the crude metal to the finished engine, and finally placed it in position to commence its life of labor, which sixteen years of almost constant service seems but to have begun.

The land purchases of the association were extended southward in Wyoming Valley, nearly to what was then the north line of the Wilkes-Barre Township. By the purchase of the interest of Mr. James W. Johnson, upon whose land the present thriving borough of Pittston is located, they came into possession of a charter granted by the Legislature in 1838, incorporating James W. Johnson, Charles T. Pierson, Charles Fuller, and associates, under the style and title of the "The Pennsylvania Coal Company." It is somewhat remarkable that this charter was granted by the same act of the Assembly which incorporated the Washington Coal Company. The two charters, coming into the hands of the Association through sources so different, were by a further act of 1849 incorporated into one—"The Pennsylvania Coal Company"—which was then adopted as the working charter of the Association, and by which title they have since been known. By subsequent acts of the Legislature the Company were authorized to hold all the lands owned by the Washington Coal Company and the Wyoming Coal Company. Later acts have added to these privileges, until the Company are now authorized to hold 12,000 acres of land, exclusive of that derived through the above named sources.

The road was completed in the spring of 1850, and the first coal sent forward in May of that year. During the season 111,014 tons were sent forward; the newly opened mines at Dunmore and Pittston not being then capable of greater production. In the season of 1851, 316,017 tons were sent forward, which was about three-fourths the quantity shipped by the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company during the same year.

An agreement was entered into between the two Companies, terminable on the first day of May of any year, by six months previous notice from either party, by which the coal sent forward by the Pennsylvania Coal Company was sold by the Delaware & Hudson Company. Under this agreement, the shipments of 1850 and 1851 were sold by the Delaware & Hudson Company. The Pennsylvania Coal Company, conceiving that this agreement bore upon its interests unequally, terminated the agreement on the first day of May, 1852. Soon after the opening of canal navigation for that year, differences of opinion arose as to the rightful interpretation of the original contract between the Canal Company and the Wyoming Coal Association, fixing the rates of toll. The question was referred by the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company to the courts of Pennsylvania and New York for decision; thus beginning a litigation which has lasted to the present time.

The shipments, increased yearly to meet the increasing demand, were in 1853, 512,659—18,332 tons greater than those of the parent Company for the same year—in 1860, nearly a half greater—the total for that year being 701,523 tons. During the year 1864, 758,587 tons were sent forward; being the highest production in any one year. The total shipments for the sixteen years—1850 to 1866 inclusive, were 9,308,396 tons, an average of 581,775 tons per year.

The figures here given, indicate the actual shipments from Hawley, and are exclusive of country sales and the quantities used about the Company's mines and road—these two sources consuming about 60,000 tons per annum.

The course of litigation upon which these two companies entered in 1852, continually increased in extent, branched off in various shapes, and seemed almost interminable, and in 1862 there was added to it a legal proceeding by the State authorities of Pennsylvania, upon request of the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company, seeking to annul the contract, as being against public policy and beyond the chartered powers of the two companies. This was finally decided in favor of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, but while it was on foot that company, in view of the proceeding and the other extensive litigation then pending and the unpleasant relations growing out of it, and partly with a view to increasing the amount of their business and securing also the advantage of winter transportation, determined to obtain another outlet to market for their coal, and accordingly concluded a contract with the Erie Railway Company, by which provision was made for the construction of a branch railroad from Hawley to the Lackawaxen Station on the Erie road, a distance of sixteen miles, and a permanent arrangement was made for the transportation of the Company's coal over the Erie Railway to Newburg on the Hudson river and to Jersey City.

During 1862 and the following year this branch road was constructed, and it was opened for business in the Fall of 1863; and in pursuance of the original agreement, is leased and run by the Erie Railway Company. Ample deposit grounds have been secured at Newburg and Jersey City, and machinery erected; and a large portion of the Company's production since has been sent forward by this route.

The location of the machine and car shops at Hawley has already been mentioned; this location was afterwards found to be very inconvenient, because of its distance from the mines. Consequently, when the original wooden buildings required renewing, it was thought advisable to build entirely new and enlarged buildings at a more suitable point. The present location at Dunmore was selected and the fine stone buildings now in use erected. At these shops the Company manufactures every description of machinery required upon its road and about its mines; also, all its coal and freight cars.

The Company employs an average of about 2,723 men, exclusive of boatmen, who are distributed as follows:

Pittston mines	1670
“ other duties	78
Dunmore mines	220
“ shops	122
“ screens	126
“ other duties	63
Hawley, dumping, etc.	164
On line of road	279

The Railroad is essentially the same as that of the Delaware & Hudson Company, except that locomotives are not used on any portion of it; and consists of a series of ascending and descending planes, the ascending having a general grade of one foot in ten, or five hundred and twenty-eight feet per mile, and the descending of 44 feet per mile. The cars are drawn up the planes by three stationary engines, of fifty horse power each, placed at the head of the plane, and then descend the “level” by their own gravity. For the information of those who may be curious regarding such details, we add the following:

Length of loaded track, Port Griffith to Hawley	47 miles.
No. of ascending planes	12
Total height that loaded cars are raised	1876 feet.
Height of summit of mountain above Port Griffith	1400 feet.
“ Hawley “ “ “	329 feet.
Longest descending plane, loaded	14 12-100 m.
Empty car track, Hawley to Port Griffith	47 miles.
No. of ascending planes	10
Longest descending plane	20 72-100 m.
Gauge of track	4 ft. 3 inches.
Average weight of coal car	4400 pounds.
“ capacity “ “	4 tons.

This kind of a road is open to the objection that a break at one point of an engine, a shaft, or a rope, severs the chain and stops all traffic until that is repaired; but at the same time the experience of the past ten years has shown that the road can be relied upon for a smaller average of delays than a locomotive road located in the bottoms of deep valleys, while it is certain that roads of the latter class, encountering steep grades, cannot be worked so cheaply as a gravity road.

The working capacity of this road, as at present constructed, is equal to 1,200,000 tons per annum, and could be easily increased to two million tons per annum, should the necessities of the Company require it, by doubling the planes of the loaded track.

The Company have at this time, upon their own lands, eleven shafts, four slopes, and four adits or tunnels, besides two shafts and one slope on lands leased by them—in all twenty-two openings, with a mining capacity of over four thousand tons per day, or one million two hundred thousand tons per annum. They mine all the coal sent by their road—purchasing none from other parties.

The coal fields of this Company are generally considered as among the most valuable owned by any one corporation in the Wyoming Coal basin. They consist at present of over eight thousand acres of coal land, about two thousand of which occupy the western portion of the borough of Dunmore. The remaining six thousand acres, located in Wyoming Valley, extend from the mouth of the Lackawanna nearly to the borough of Wilkes-Barre, and are underlain by large veins of the purest anthracite. Besides this, the Company have nearly ten thousand acres of woodland, some eight thousand of which, being heavily timbered, are carefully preserved against a future day of need.

The Capital Stock of the Company is $3,200,000, besides $600,000 of bonded debt. With this amount of money the original real estate was purchased, roads constructed, mines opened, &c., &c. All expenditures since for extension of Railway, purchase of lands, &c., &c., have been met out of the current earnings, besides paying regular dividends.

On the organization, in 1849, under the Pennsylvania Coal Company's charter, Mr. Wm. R. Griffith was elected President. He was succeeded in 1850 by Mr. Irad Hawley, who in turn was succeeded by Mr. John Ewen, in 1852, who has since retained the position.

On the opening of the road in 1850, Mr. Archbald was the General Superintendent—dividing his time between the Pennsylvania Coal and Delaware & Hudson Canal Companies. Mr. Maffett was placed in charge of the Road, Mr. Smith of the Machinery, and Mr. Hosie of the department of Mines at Pittston, and Mr. Bryden that of Dunmore. Mr. Smith soon after succeeded Mr. Maffett in charge of the Road, and on the resignation of Mr. Archbald, in 1854, to take charge of the engineering department of the Michigan Southern & Northern Indiana R. R., was promoted to the vacant position, which he has since retained.

The officers of the Company at the present time are

President	John Ewen.
Secretary	Edwin H. Mead.
Treasurer	George A. Hoyt.
Gen. Supt. of the Company's works in Penn'a	John B. Smith.

Superintendents of Mines at Pittston -----	{ William Law, And'w Bryden.

Roaring Brook Colliery.

MR. A. B. GALATIAN—DEAR SIR: In reply to yours, asking for information relative to my mining operations in the valley, would state:

I commenced mining operations in 1851, and managed the Black Diamond Colliery, at Wilkes-Barre, three years; came to this place in 1856, built the works known as the Stafford's Brook, managed it successfully four years; it is now under the management of the Messrs. Connell. In the Spring of 1862 I opened a tunnel at Plymouth and managed it successfully two years. In the Fall of 1863 the firm of Hunt, Davis, & Co. was formed, and about the middle of November of the same year commenced to build the works now known as the Roaring Brook Colliery, located midway between Planes No. 6 and No. 7 on the Pennsylvania road near Dunmore. This company commenced shipping coal the 20th June, 1864, being about seven months from the time the works were commenced, and shipped some 60,000 tons the same year. In 1865 we shipped over 90,000, and in 1866 shipped 125,000 tons. The shipments for the present year will probably amount to 140,000 tons.

In February, 1865, Hunt, Davis, & Co. dissolved and formed into the Roaring Brook Coal Co., Mr. Hunt becoming President, W. D. Briggs Secretary and Treasurer, and myself General Superintendent, which organization exists at the present time. I have just completed a first class colliery belonging to the Mineral Spring Coal Company, of which I am Superintendent, located on the Parsons property near Wilkes-Barre, which company was organized on the 13th June inst. and bids fair to be a successful operation.

Respectfully yours, &c.,

J. R. DAVIS.

Scranton, June 20, 1867.

Lackawanna Iron & Coal Company.

The Lackawanna Iron & Coal Company, incorporated June 10th, 1853, manufacture Forge and Foundry Pig, Railroad Iron, Car Axles, and Merchant Bar. Their works, located in the City of Scranton, are known as the "Lackawanna Iron Works." The present officers are

President—Joseph H. Scranton,

Treasurer—David S. Dodge,

Secretary—Edward C. Lynde,

Assistant Treasurer—Edward P. Kingsbury,

Real Estate Agent and Store Keeper—Joseph C. Platt, General Superintendent—Charles F. Mattes.

In July, 1840, several members of the present Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company purchased the present site of the City of Scranton. The place at that time consisted of five small dwellings, a grist-mill, saw-mill, cooper-shop, and school house. The foundations of the first Blast Furnace, now in ruins, were laid in September, 1840, and after several ineffectual attempts in 1841, was finally blown in, January 18th, 1842; making no iron of consequence for the ensuing two weeks; after that, the Furnace began to work fairly, and the blast was continued until February 26th, when the heating oven gave out, having run five and a half weeks, making in all seventy-five and a half tons Pig Iron. The Rolling Mill buildings were commenced in May, 1844, and here in July, 1847, the first Stationary Steam Engine was started in the Lackawanna and Wyoming Valleys, between Carbondale and Wilkes-Barre, where now not less than five to six hundred are in constant operation—this Company having thirty—in the prosecution of their business.

They have four Blast Furnaces, built in 1848, 1852, and 1854. Nos. 1 and 2 being eighteen feet each, in the bosh; No. 3, nineteen feet; No. 4, twenty feet; all fifty feet high. They are blown by four low pressure beam engines; Nos. 1 and 2 having steam cylinders fifty-four inches in diameter and blowing cylinders eighty-six inches in diameter; Nos. 3 and 4, steam cylinders fifty-eight inches in diameter, and blowing cylinders ninety-three inches in diameter, all ten feet stroke,—built by I. P. Morris & Co., of Philadelphia—the steam being generated entirely by waste heat.

Three of the Furnaces, Nos. 2, 3, and 4, are now in blast. No. 3 Furnace made in one week in February, 1862, 375½ tons pig metal, the largest week's product ever made by any Anthracite furnace in this country.

The aggregate productive capacity of all these furnaces is about 60,000 tons per annum.

The Puddling and Rolling Mills of the Company comprise—the former one building, one hundred and fifty by ninety feet, containing twenty furnaces; one building, three hundred by ninety feet, containing thirty-two furnaces; one building, four hundred and fifty by eighty-two feet, containing twenty-eight furnaces, and three high train puddle rolls; in all, eighty furnaces, with steam boilers over each; the main Rolling Mill building is five hundred by one hundred and forty feet, with fifteen heating furnaces, six trains of three high rolls, ten steam engines, and one seven ton Nasmyth steam hammer. These mills have a productive capacity of 35,000 tons finished iron per annum; principally Railroad bars.

This Company have also a Steam Saw Mill, Grist Mill, Foundry, Machine Shop, Carpenter Shop, Car and Wheelwright Shop, and Brick Yard—all used in the prosecution of their business.

Attached to the works are about seven thousand acres of coal and timber lands, with two hundred and fifty tenement houses for workmen. About 150,000 tons of coal are mined annually, nearly all of which is consumed at the works.

The Lackawanna Petroleum Company.

This Company was first organized in Scranton, on the 28th April, 1865, under the general Act of Assembly passed in 1863, and takes its name from the fact that the majority of the Stockholders reside in the Lackawanna Valley and its principal office is in this City. The Capital Stock of the Company is $500,000, the par value of each share $5.

The first meeting elected Elisha Phinney, George Fisher, T. F. Hunt, Samuel Sherrerd, and William Matthews, Directors. Elisha Phinney, President; Alfred Hand, Secretary and Treasurer; and William Skelton, Superintendent.

The Real Estate of the Company consists of thirty-four acres of land on Shafer Run, in Venango County, and the undivided half of one hundred and forty acres in Clarion County. Since its organization the Company has been engaged in sinking Wells, and at present has two Wells in active operation. No. 1 Well has been sunk to a depth of seven hundred and eighty-five feet at a cost of $10,139.43, and yields fifteen barrels of oil per day. This Well has yielded this steadily since December, 1865. No. 2 Well has been sunk to a depth of nine hundred and eight feet at a cost of $8,533.15, and yields fifty-five barrels of oil per day. The Machinery of the Company is in good condition, the wells cased, and every convenience for cheaply and permanently working them has been adopted by the Company. The Company have spared no expense in testing their property in Venango and the result has warranted their expenditures. The first dividend of five cents per share was declared April 25th, 1867, out of the net earnings of the Company. The Company has no debt and anticipates a reasonable return in the shape of dividends for the investment. The present officers are Elisha Phinney, Sanford Grant, Charles Schläger, George Coray, William Matthews, Directors. Elisha Phinney, President; Alfred Hand, Secretary and Treasurer; William Skelton, Superintendent.

Finch & Co.'s Scranton City Foundry & Machine Works.

These works are situated on the Hyde Park side of the Lackawanna, a short distance above the railroad bridge. They were established in 1856 by Mr. A. P. Finch, who at that time was connected with the Cliff works then a horse shoe factory. The grounds were purchased from Mr. Wm. Swetland, and comprise about eighteen city lots, with a front of something over two hundred and forty feet on the railroad.

The main buildings are two stories in height, one hundred and forty feet long by forty wide, with additions running back, which contain the boilers, heavy iron planer, core oven, &c. There is also a boiler shop, thirty by fifty feet, with rolls, shears, punching machine, and all the tools requisite in boiler making. In the rear of the grounds is a separate building, stored with valuable patterns. In the spring of 1857 Mr. B. G. Morss, of Red Falls, N. Y., became associated with Mr. Finch in the business, and, until the spring of 1865, they carried on a general foundry and machine business under the firm name of FINCH & MORSS. At that time Mr. I. A. Finch purchased Mr. Morss's interest, and the firm was changed to FINCH & Co. Both members of the present firm are practical engineers and machinists of long experience, and give their personal supervision to the planning, construction, and setting up of all their work.

Mr. A. P. Finch has had nearly thirty years experience as proprietor and manager, and has kept even pace with the times in all the improvements appertaining to his business. Among the latest of his inventions is a turbine water wheel, now attracting much attention from mill owners, which is said to yield a greater per cent. of the power of water used, than any other wheel.

The machinery of their establishment is driven by a twenty-five horse power engine of their own make, a neat, plain machine, which moves so smoothly and silently that not the slightest click or jar is audible as it faithfully performs its work. They have lathes, boring, drilling, turning, and planing machines, capable of doing the heaviest class of work, and are doing a thriving business in the manufacture of stationary and portable engines and mining machinery, and are largely engaged in the manufacture of circular saw mills of undoubted superiority. Many handsome fronts on Lackawanna Avenue attest the excellence of this firm's building castings. They have now in process of construction a heavy iron front for the elegant hotel now being erected by Mr. Jacob Robinson on the corner of Lackawanna and Franklin Avenues. An efficient corps of good workmen are employed by Messrs. Finch and Co., and they are doubtless willing that their work should be the criterion whereby a discriminating public may judge them.

Maclaren's Brass Foundry, located on Cliff Street, near the Stone Bridge. This is one of the most extensive Brass Foundries in this section of Pennsylvania. It is owned and the business is conducted by John Maclaren, a thorough practical mechanic, who has no superior in the manufacture of Brass Cocks and Globe Valves and all kinds of Brass work used by Engineers, Plumbers, Coppersmiths, Brewers, and Distillers. Six years ago he commenced business in a 7 x 9 room in the town of Pittston, where he was his own core-boy, moulder, and finisher. He at once established a reputation as a superior worker and finisher of Brass work, that commanded the attention of parties (and received their patronage,) who had previously purchased all such work in New York or Philadelphia. On the first of January, 1866, he purchased the property in Cliff Street on which he erected a substantial brick building, where he has in operation six beautiful improved Lathes, Polishing and Lapping Machines, propelled by machinery, employing about ten men. His business has steadily increased, so that his establishment has become one of the largest of the kind in this section of the country, and is a credit to the city of Scranton. All work done at his manufactory is executed under his immediate personal supervision, so that his patrons can rely upon getting a superior article of Brass work. His establishment is well worthy of a visit from those who need articles in his line.

The Scranton Stove and Manufacturing Company.

This company was organized in July, 1865, under the name of "Fisher & Co." The first manufactured articles were produced in December of the same year. In May, 1866, there were added to the Company, A. E. Hunt, C. H. Dowd, W. G. Dowd, Sanford Grant, and J. A. Price—the capital stock was increased, and the Company then incorporated under a Board of Directors consisting of H. S. Pierce, T. F. Hunt, A. E. Hunt, C. H. Dowd, W. G. Dowd, S. Grant, and J. A. Price. At the first meeting of the Directors, H. S. Pierce was elected President and J. A. Price General Superintendent and Treasurer. Under the incorporation, the facilities for manufacturing have been greatly increased and the number of workmen nearly doubled. The buildings of the Company are situate on Lackawanna Avenue, on the Hyde Park side of the river, near the Delaware, Lackawanna, & Western and Lackawanna & Bloomsburg Railroads. They consist of one Foundry Building, one Pattern Shop, and two Ware Houses. The present capacity of the Company is from fifteen to twenty stoves per day, of various kinds and sizes and of original designs. The jobbing department is open for all kinds of light work—none but the best and most experienced workmen are employed in any mechanical capacity about the works, and for smoothness and neatness of castings the Company challenge any in the country. The Hollow Ware department turns out nothing but the best articles of its kind and is constantly increasing.

Sash and Blind Manufactory.

The manufactory of Hand & Coston at Providence is an acquisition in that part of the city of no small importance. These gentlemen have a large building with Machinery suited to the manufacture of SASH, DOORS, BLINDS, MOULDINGS, BRACKETS, &c., &c.—also for planing lumber for building purposes, and do a business of more than one hundred thousand dollars a year. The above business has been successively carried on at this point by several different parties, who after operating for a short time relinquished their interest in it and sought other employment for their time and capital; none of whom could see any money in it until the present energetic managers and proprietors took hold of it. The business was commenced in 1846 by Hand & Von Storch with a capital of $2,000, who operated till 1851, when E. J. Hand & Son purchased the concern. About one year afterwards they added the name and services of L. White to the firm, altering the name of the firm to Hand, White, & Co. The firm during the next six years, was successively Hand, White, & Co., Hand, Ward, & Co., and by the purchase of an interest by S. Bristol was changed to Hand & Co. In the fall of 1865 the interest of Mr. Bristol was purchased by S. B. Coston, who was the owner of a Factory in Seelyville, Wayne county, Pa., who consolidated this with the Factory in Providence under the name and firm of Hand & Coston, by whom the business is at this time so successfully conducted.

These gentlemen have large facilities and are prepared to furnish Window Sash, Blinds, Doors, Mouldings, Brackets, Planed Lumber of all descriptions, and are also dealers in Builders' Hardware, Glass, Paint, Oils, Putty, &c.

Scranton & Providence Passenger Railway Company.

This Company was chartered by an act of Assembly, dated 27th March, 1866, and the following gentlemen named as corporate members, viz: George Sanderson, William Breck, James S. Slocum, Jacob Robinson, George S. Kingsbury, and William A. Chittenden. On the 22d October, 1866, the first meeting was held for the purpose of organizing and maturing their plans for future action. The following officers were chosen, viz: President, George Sanderson; Secretary and Treasurer, George S. Kingsbury. The following are the Directors, viz: Jacob Robinson, Wm. Breck, Wm. N. Monies, and George Sanderson. The route selected by this Company commences at the Depot in Scranton and runs to Providence, through the following avenues and streets, viz: Lackawanna Avenue to Penn Avenue; up Penn Avenue to Mulberry Street; up Mulberry to Wyoming Avenue; up Wyoming Avenue to a point where it connects with the Delaware and Hudson RR.; thence on said railroad for a distance of three-fourths of a mile, where it branches off to the west and crosses the Lackawanna River at a point just below the Von Storch tract, and thence to Providence. The Delaware & Hudson RR. Company will abandon the use of their track from Providence to Scranton for the benefit of this Company, consequently there will be no interruption to the free passage of the street cars. The management are determined to make this a desirable and cheap mode of traveling for our citizens, and no pains or expense will be spared to effect this object.

“The People’s Street Railway Company of Luzerne County.”

This Company was chartered by act of assembly on the 23d March, 1865, and the following gentlemen named as corporators, viz: Ira Tripp, J. T. Fellows, D. R. Randall, Daniel Howell, J. B. Stark, A. B. Dunning, and W. W. Winton. Capital stock of the Company is $35,000. The first meeting for the purpose of organization was held on the 19th of June, 1866, at which time the following named gentlemen were chosen Directors, viz: H. B. Rockwell, T. F. Hunt, Ira Tripp, James Blair, and Daniel Howell. James Blair was chosen President, Alfred Hand was chosen Secretary, and W. W. Winton, Treasurer. The cost of grading and equipping the road amounts to $35,000. The route extends from the Delaware, Lackawanna, & Western Railroad Depot on Lackawanna Avenue to Wyoming Avenue; up Wyoming Avenue to Mulberry Street; from thence to Penn Avenue; up Penn Avenue to Carbon Street; down Carbon Street to the old Providence road, and thence on said road to Providence, a distance of two miles. This road affords a cheap, quick, and easy mode of transit to the citizens of our City, and its gentlemanly officers have spared no pains in rendering it what its chartered name indicates, “The People’s Railway” line.

Historical Sketch of the First Presbyterian Church in Scranton.

The earliest regular PRESBYTERIAN preaching in this valley was performed by the Rev. Cyrus Gildersleeve, of Wilkes-Barre, as early as 1827, and the few communicants residing here were connected with the church in that place. Once in four or six weeks Mr. Gildersleeve traversed the valley and preached on week days in school houses, barns, and private dwellings, sometimes in the open air. The chief points in this vicinity, occupied by this missionary, were Lackawanna, Hyde Park, and Providence. The spot now occupied by Scranton, then called Slocum Hollow, was, for the most part, an unbroken forest, not more than six families residing within the limits of the late borough for the next ten or twelve years.

The present organization of the First Presbyterian Church of Scranton was not effected until the autumn of 1848, although the congregation had enjoyed church fellowship and ordinance for several years previously. The Rev. John Dorrance, of Wilkes-Barre, and Rev. Thomas P. Hunt, of Wyoming, made occasional visits to this region from 1834 onwards. The latter especially preached frequently at all the stations occupied by the missionaries on this wide field, and bestowed upon them much gratuitous and acceptable labor.

In 1835-6 the Rev. Thomas Owen, a Welshman, traveled the whole length of the valley on foot, and preached at all the stations. He left in 1837, and was succeeded by an Irishman of the name of Turbitt, for about six months. For some years afterwards no missionary was regularly employed in this vicinity, but the Rev. Mr. Hunt preached with considerable regularity at Providence, Hyde Park, Lackawanna, and Pittston.

From 1842 to 1844 the Rev. Owen Brown and the Rev. Charles Evans successively occupied the field, laboring at Pittston, Lackawanna, Harrison (now Scranton), Hyde Park, Abington Center, and Falls (now Newton). In 1844 the Rev. N. G. Parke (now of Pittston), came to the valley and occupied the same missionary field. The place now called Scranton was first occupied as a preaching station in 1841. The year, previously, when Mr. William Henry commenced erecting a smelting furnace here, it contained but three families. They were joined by one or two other families in the neighborhood, and immediately took measures to build a church. The building was completed in 1842 and was to be under the supervision of the METHODISTS, who were numerically in the majority, though other denominations were not to be excluded from using it. (This edifice was removed in 1856 from the corner of Lackawanna and Adams avenues to the corner of Adams avenue and Vine street, and occupied by the German Methodists.)

These movements in Slocum Hollow stimulated the Presbyterians in the vicinity to provide themselves with church privileges.

A Committee of the Presbytery of Susquehanna, composed of Revds. Messrs. Dorrance, Hunt, and Brown, met in the old School House, near the Blast Furnace, on Friday, February 26th, 1842, and organized a Presbyterian Church. Messrs. Elisha Atherton, of Providence, and Couch, of Blakely, were elected Elders, and 'Hiram B. Daily, Deacon.

This was called the "Lackawanna Church," and covered all the ground from Providence to Pittston, including both places.

Scranton was therefore the cradle of Presbyterianism in this Valley.

In June, 1844, when the Rev. N. G. Parke was called to take charge of this Church, there were but four members residing in Scranton, two in Hyde Park, and two in Providence, the larger portion of the members living at what was called the Lackawanna station, about three miles down the valley. When a Committee was appointed to select a site for a "Presbyterian House," composed of Messrs. Atherton, Henry, and Koons, the majority decided upon "Lackawanna," near where Mr. Atherton then lived, and a Church edifice was built and dedicated in 1846, at that place. Harrison (as this city was then called) was merely a preaching station, yet the communion was sometimes administered here, for the benefit of the increasing population of this place.

The growing villages of Pittston and Harrison each claimed the Lackawanna Church; they all belonged to one organization, though it was admitted that Harrison was the chief point.

After much consultation it was decided to seek a separate organization for Harrison (or Scrantonias as it had then come to be called) and accordingly a petition was sent up to the Presbytery to that effect.

The Committee of Presbytery, composed of Revds. Messrs. Dorrance and Parke, met on the 14th day of October, 1848, and proceeded to organize the "First Presbyterian Church," consisting of eighteen members, viz: Selden T. Scranton and his wife Mrs. Ellen C. Scranton, George W. Scranton and his wife Mrs. Jane H. Scranton, Nathaniel B. Hutchinson and his wife Mrs. Rebecca A. Hutchinson, Mrs. Mary Coursen, Miss Mary A. Coursen, Mrs. Sarah Coursen, Miss Catharine Miller, Miss Temperance Miller, Mrs. Maria Fellows, Peter Clark, James Hutchinson, Charles Fuller, Richard Hollenback, Simon Ward, and John L. Richardson.

An election for Officers was held, resulting in the choice of N. B. Hutchinson, Geo. W. Scranton, and Charles Fuller for Elders. Mr. Scranton declined to serve. Messrs. Hutchinson and Fuller were installed. In accordance with previous engagements, Rev. N. G. Parke supplied the congregation until the year expired in June, 1849. In August, 1849, Rev. J. D. Mitchell was called to the Pastorate, but was not installed until April 17, 1850. In October, 1853, Mr. Mitchell resigned on account of ill health, and the Church was without a Pastor until May, 1854, when Rev. John F. Baker was installed. In January, 1855, Mr. Baker resigned, and was succeeded by Rev. M. J. Hickok, the present pastor. The present church edifice is located on Washington avenue, near Lackawanna avenue, built in the Gothic style of architecture, and is capable of seating eight hundred people. Its original cost was about $30,000, but the Church property at the present writing, including the Parsonage building and grounds, cannot be estimated at less than $60,000 in value. The Sunday School is in a very flourishing condition, numbering five hundred and twenty-five scholars, with an average attendance of three hundred and twenty-five on each Sunday. The number of classes taught is seventy, and the number of volumes in the library is one thousand thirty-seven.

St. Luke's Episcopal Church.

The Parish was organized and an application for incorporation was made in November, 1851. At Easter, 1852, the Rev. John Long became the missionary in charge. Services were held from time to time in the Methodist Chapel, in the Odd Fellows Hall, in the third story of Hunt's building, and also over Chase's store. In the Summer of 1853, through the untiring efforts of Mr. Long and the gift of friends abroad, a frame church was erected upon lots that were kindly provided by the Coal and Iron Company. The church cost $2,600. In the following year a parsonage was built at a cost of $1,200. Mr. Long officiated at eighty-five baptisms, twenty-eight marriages, forty-three burials, besides thirty-three persons were confirmed.

After laboring for more than six years, Mr. Long resigned the charge of the parish, and was succeeded by the Rev. W. C. Robinson, who remained four years. Under Mr. R. the parish ceased to be a missionary station, and became self-supporting. Mr. Robinson officiated at eighty-three baptisms, twelve marriages, thirty burials; persons confirmed, twenty-six.

Mr. R. was succeeded by Rev. A. A. Marple, who after four years of service now remains in charge. Mr. M. entered upon his duties as Rector in January, 1863. The same year the parish freed itself from debt, and through the Ladies' Sewing Society began the work of collecting money for the building of a new church. Lots have been secured on Wyoming avenue—one hundred and eighty feet front, by one hundred and sixty feet deep. The solid foundations have been laid, upon which it is proposed to erect a stone church, containing about one hundred pews. Mr. Marple has officiated at seventy-nine baptisms, forty-five marriages, fifty-one burials: persons confirmed, forty-nine. The Sunday School numbers one hundred and eighty scholars, and the communicants amount to one hundred and five.

The Scranton Baptist Church.

This church was organized August 18th, 1859, at the house of Mr. N. Hallstead, in Franklin avenue, with 25 members, nearly all of whom had previously been connected with the Baptist church at Hyde Park. It was publicly recognized as a regular Baptist church on the 24th of the same month. The services of recognition were held in the old Odd Fellows Hall, at the corner of Lackawanna and Jefferson avenues, and were participated in by Revs. C. A. Fox, T. J. Cole, L. O. Grennell, E. L. Bailey, D. W. Hallstead, N. Callender, and Isaac Bevan.

Measures were taken immediately to organize a Sabbath School and to hold regular meetings every Sabbath in the hall. For some time the Sabbath School held its sessions in the morning, and then changed to the afternoon. At this time the Rev. Theophilus Jones was pastor of the Welsh Baptist Church, which held its meetings in the brick edifice they had erected in Mifflin Avenue, now owned by the German Lutheran Church. He, after preaching twice on the Sabbath in his vernacular, preached in English in the hall every Sabbath evening for two months, and did acceptable service for the church. The church held its prayer meetings at private houses.

A unanimous call was extended to Rev. Isaac Bevan, who was then Corresponding Secretary of the Pennsylvania Baptist Convention, to become pastor. He accepted, and assumed the pastoral charge Nov. 1st of the same year. He has continued with the church to this date.

For nearly two years the church held its meetings on the Sabbath in the Odd Fellows Hall, and then took possession of Washington Hall for its Sabbath services. It continued to occupy this hall until it entered its lecture room in the new edifice on Penn avenue, July 2nd, 1865. Part of the time its prayer meetings were held in the Young Men's Christian Association Rooms, on Wyoming avenue, and in the Young Men's literary and debating room, on Lackawanna avenue. For the first three years the church could procure no place in which to hold continuous evening meetings, and for nearly six years it labored under very great disadvantages in not having a church edifice of its own. And yet, through the blessings of God, it has continued gradually to prosper. From the first it has been self-supporting, only as it has received generous aid from the benevolent people of this place.

The church has been favored with three seasons of special revival, which have added much to its growth and efficiency. One was enjoyed in the winter and spring of 1863, the other in the winter and spring of 1866, and the last the present year. There have been added to the church, by baptism and otherwise, 238, and it has on its register at present 186 members, several of whom reside out of the place and are no help to the church.

The church has struggled with many difficulties, but has on the whole been well united and prosperous. Its new church edifice is 80 feet long by 50 wide, and, when completed, will cost about $20,000. In accomplishing this work the people of this city have, with their accustomed liberality, rendered very considerable assistance. The lots on which the house stands, were secured from the Lackawanna Iron & Coal Company, through the President, J. H. Scranton, Esq., at a reduction in the price of $1400. The Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western R. R. Company, through their President, J. Brisbin, Esq., gave to the church $500. The Dickson Manufacturing Company, through their President, Thos. Dickson, Esq., $75.68. Elisha A. Coray, Esq., of New York, has given the church $2,000. Many others have contributed less sums, which have been most gratefully received, and will ever be warmly appreciated.

The Sunday School numbers on its books 25 teachers, 206 scholars, 150 average attendance, 400 volumes in library.

The church is incorporated and has the following board of Trustees : L. Lewis, H. Ladd, N. Halstead, R. A. Henry, D. Cone, and D. Morris. Its deacons are L. Lewis, T. Peckens, R. A. Henry, N. Halstead, and T. Moore.

It is hoped that the church edifice will be completed and dedicated in July. When finished it will be a very neat and commodious place of worship.

Methodist Episcopal Church.

The first mention made in the Minutes of the Wyoming Circuit, is in 1791. Anning Owen was the first Methodist in the valley of Wyoming. He became a preacher, and formed a society on Ross' Hill, in Kingston, in 1788; and during the following three years formed classes in several places, but it is not known that he visited the Lackawanna valley above the Old Forge (now Drake's Station) during this period. In 1793 William Colbert, a pioneer preacher, visited "Capouse, and preached to a few people at Brother Howe's, and lodged at Joseph Waller's." Howe lived in Slocum Hollow, and Waller on the main road in or near what is now Hyde Park. In 1798 Daniel Taylor's, below Hyde Park, was a preaching place. Anning Owen, after this, preached at Capt. Vaughan's. For years subsequently, the preaching was at Preserved Taylor's, who lived on the hill-side in Hyde Park, near the old Tripp place. When Mr. Taylor removed, the preaching was taken to Razorville, now Providence, and the preachers were entertained by Elisha Potter, Esq., whose wife was a very exemplary member of the church. Up to this period, preaching was held in private houses; when school houses were erected the people assembled in them to hear the Gospel.

The Lackawanna Valley was embraced within the Wyoming Circuit until 1831, when Pittston Circuit was formed from that portion of it which lay above Wilkes-Barre on the east side of the Susquehanna.

In June of 1841 a proposition was entertained by the Quarterly Conference of the circuit, to raise subscriptions for the purpose of erecting a "meeting house" somewhere in the Lackawanna Valley. Barton Mott, Erastus Smith, and Wm. Silkman were appointed a Committee to receive subscriptions, and to proceed to the accomplishment of the work. Wm. Henry was associated with the above named gentlemen, and the four resolved themselves into a building Com., appointing E. Smith Pres. Wm. Silkman Secretary, and B. Mott Treasurer. The iron works—called also Harrison—subscribing more than any other place, secured the location. A lot was purchased of Scranton, Grant, and Mattes, the site now occupied by Jifkins' meat market. The subscriptions provided that when the house was not occupied by the Methodists, other evangelical denominations should have the privilege of worshipping in it, a provision of which the Presbyterian brethren availed themselves for several years. The two denominations held a union Sabbath school, in the utmost harmony, until the Presbyterians secured for themselves better accommodations.

The population and business of the place—now called Scranton—so increased that the Methodist society began to look at the possibility of erecting a more convenient and appropriate place of worship. In 1854 the charge was divided, one half was called Scranton and Hyde Park, the other Providence and Archbald, missions. The Rev. A. H. Schoonmaker was appointed to the charge of Scranton and Hyde Park, and finding no comfortable quarters, he proceeded to the erection of a parsonage, which he completed in an incredibly short period of time.

Towards the close of Mr. Schoonmaker's first year arrangements were commenced for the erection of a fine brick church. The old lot was exchanged with the Iron Company for lots adjoining on Adams avenue. A contract was concluded for the erection of the building, and the work proceeded until the contractors failed, leaving the inside wholly unfinished.

In July, 1856, the Rev. George Peck took charge of Scranton Mission, now independent of Hyde Park, and commenced preaching in the old Church to a small congregation. In the Autumn following, the basement of the new Church was finished, and it was used as a preaching place for two years. In the mean time the audience room was completed, and it was dedicated to the worship of Almighty God on the 22d of September, 1858, by the Rev. P. Coome, of the Philadelphia Conference. The following gentlemen occupied the station after Dr. Peck, for two years each, with one exception: Revds. B. W. Gorham, G. C. Bancroft, J. V. Newell, J. A. Wood (for one year), and N. W. Everett, which brings the history down to the present day. The Church structure was completed last year, by the erection of the steeple, painting and penciling the brick work, and making sundry repairs.

The statistical report of the church for the present year is as follows :

Present membership-----	225
Value of Church property-----	$20,000

Methodist Episcopal Church of Providence.

The present Church in Providence was contracted for in April, 1850, by Artemas Miller, T. W. Wykoff, Sweet Gardner, Joseph Hutchins, and A. B. Silkman, who were the building committee. The usual difficulties and delays obstructing the progress of the work, it was three years in being completed. On the 21st day of April, 1853, it was dedicated to the worship of Almighty God, by Rev. Dr. Peck. The text employed on the occasion was Matthew 16-18: "Upon this rock will I build my Church and the gates of Hell shall not prevail against it."

Since the Church was dedicated the following persons have occupied the Pastorate: Revds. H. Brownscombe, J. F. Wilbur, C. Perkins, G. M. Peck, J. W. Munger, A. H. Schoonmaker, G. H. Blakeslee, and Geo. Peck. Under the ministry and pastoral care of these men the Church has enjoyed a good degree of prosperity. Latterly the congregation has been somewhat diminished by the drawing off of the Welsh, who have erected two Churches in the vicinity, in which the service is conducted in their own tongue. The congregation is still however respectable for numbers, and is increasing.

The following is the statistical report for the present year :

Membership-----	148
Value of Church property-----	$10,000
Number of Sunday School Scholars-----	230

The Welsh Calvinistic Methodist Church, built at Scranton, 1849. Principal men here at that time were John R. Williams, Isaac Coslett, John J. Davis. Two lots were then presented to them to build upon by the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Co. From eight to ten years after, the members of the Scranton Church built a Church at Bellevue. Principal men in building Bellevue Church were Walter Phillips, John T. Griffiths, Thomas Jenkins. Ministers were John Moses, Thomas J. Phillips, and John R. Williams; they had no regular Pastor. About five years after, the Bellevue members built a Church at Hyde Park; they had no Pastor; the same Ministers acted at Hyde Park that did at Bellevue until about a year ago, when they had a Pastor; his name is Joseph E. Davies, he is not Pastor at this present time.

Rev. John R. Williams is the present Pastor of the Scranton Church.

Evangelical Lutheran Zion Church,

Mifflin Avenue, between Spruce and Linden Streets. This congregation was organized by its present Pastor, Ph. Fr. Zizelmann, in the summer of 1860; at the time of its organization twenty-one members signed their names to the constitution. Until November, 1863, the congregation assembled and held Divine Service in Wyoming Hall, when they bought from the first Welsh Baptist congregation of Scranton their Church and property on Mifflin Avenue. In Spring, 1864, the congregation erected the parsonage on their adjoining lot. In Fall, 1866, the basement rooms under the Church were built for School and Lecture purposes. A day School, where both the German and English languages were intended to be taught, was commenced on the second of January, 1867; the teacher being capable to teach only the German language, this aim would only be reached by appointing a teacher who understands both languages thoroughly; it is reached now, as in the person of Mr. H. Koehler, assistant teacher in the Orphans' Home at Germantown, a suitable teacher has been found and his services secured from the first of May, 1867.

The congregation has been steadily increasing, and counts now between four and five hundred communicants.

On Sunday, the 14th of April, 1867, thirty-seven young members joined the Church by being confirmed. The Church is already too small, though between four and five hundred persons can be accommodated. Soli Deo Gloria!

Liberal Christian Society.

Rev. Aaron Porter, pastor of the Unitarian Society at Northumberland, Pa., visited Scranton in September, 1866, as a Missionary of the Unitarian Association, for the purpose of seeing if there were not friends of Liberal Christianity here that would encourage the holding of meetings for public worship in this city. He found little to encourage him at first, and for some time but few attended his meetings. But with a perseverance worthy of success he continued to hold meetings, and though but few heard him he had a feeling that success must crown a persistent effort. In December, a few of the friends met at the office of Loomis and Chase for the purpose of making a temporary organization. This was accomplished by the election of Dr. C. A. Stevens, President, Benj. Jay, Esq., Treasurer, F. E. Loomis, Secretary.

The first meeting was held in Washington Hall building, but the accommodations not being sufficient, more congenial quarters were found in the rooms of Gardner's Business College, where the meetings continue to be held. From a small beginning the meetings continue to grow and the prospect looks brighter.

Mr. Porter still continues to preach every second Sabbath, and other Clergymen have from time to time supplied, so that meetings lately have been held every Sunday.

The German Presbyterian Church of Scranton was dedicated to the worship of God on the 6th November, 1859. The building of the church was commenced in 1857 under the ministry of Rev. Charles D. Rosenthal.

The present pastor, William Wunderlich, took charge of the church in 1864. This church numbers 198 members at present, the Sabbath school 234 scholars and 25 teachers.

Catholic Church.

Among the earlier settlers of Scranton, those professing the Roman Catholic religion must have been few. No record, however, has been handed down from which facts might be gathered. The only authentic account extant dates 1846, when Rev. P. Prendergast, residing at Carbondale, paid the first visit to these scattered few, and after organizing the little band and securing for their use a small room in a private dwelling on Division street, continued visiting occasionally and attending to their spiritual wants. Thus matters went along for two years, at the expiration of which the congregation had grown in numbers sufficient to warrant, with the timely aid of the Lackawanna Iron & Coal Co., in the shape of a large plot of ground, free of charge, for church and grave yard use, the speedy erection of a small building 35 feet in length 25 feet in width, and which was immediately commenced and the following year finished by the Rev. J. Laughran, who at this time had assumed the temporal and spiritual charge. The Rev. J. Cullen took charge in 1852, and finding the congregation had out-grown the small building on Division street, soon commenced a very substantial frame edifice 96 feet in length and 45 feet in width on Franklin avenue, and which was completed the following year, 1854, by Rev. M. Whitty, who, by this time, had been appointed to the charge. The congregation now growing rapidly, the pastor found it necessary to provide more church room, and in 1856 succeeded in getting built a good frame church 75 feet in length and 45 feet in width in the village of Dunmore (Rev. E. Fitzmaurice soon after taking charge) in order to accommodate that part of the Parish, who, to this time, had been worshipping at Scranton. The members still increasing, in was deemed desirable to provide still further, which was done by the speedy erection in 1858 of a frame church 70 feet long and 30 feet wide, near the village of Providence (now within the city limits) for the use and benefit of that part of the Parish, which, up to the time, had also worshipped at Scranton. By this judicious arrangement the congregation were enabled once more to appreciate the comforts from which an overcrowded church had estranged them. Time rolled on in this way until the year 1864, when Scranton, it would seem, called for a building worthy its fame and population. In the fall of that year the pastor, Father Whitty, commenced on Wyoming avenue one of the largest and perhaps handsomest church edifices within the State of Pennsylvania. The church is built in the Grecian style of architecture (designs furnished by J. Amsden, architect) and is 158 feet in length and 68 feet in width, inside the walls, two stories high, and will seat 2300 persons. The building is lighted by nine large windows on each side, beside thirty-two smaller ones—all of stained glass. The edifice was opened and dedicated to the service of Almighty God the 10th of March, 1867. The cost to the present time is, we understand, about seventy thousand dollars, and when the large tower, which is to be 170 feet high, and other things in contemplation by the pastor added, the whole cost will slide into the nice little sum of one hundred thousand dollars.

The German Catholics, aided by the energy of their pastor, Rev. P. Nagel, erected a year ago a good substantial building, ninety-five feet in length, forty-five feet in width, at a cost of about eleven thousand dollars. This is now under the charge of Rev. J. Schelle.

There are two Roman Catholic parochial Schools in Scranton for the education of youth. There are also two beneficial Societies, the St. Patrick's and the Hibernian, whose object is to give aid and comfort to the members and their families in case of sickness, accident, or infirmity from old age.

There is a Cemetery covering four acres of land, rather tastily laid out, belonging to the English speaking congregation, gifted by the Delaware, Lackawanna, & Western Railroad Co., in 1862.

The German congregation have one also, but of smaller dimensions.

Schools.

The graded school system was inaugurated December, 1856, in the borough of Scranton, and the success which has attended it is attested by the following statements. The first report to the State Department for the first three years of the borough as a separate school District shows the following facts, viz :

	Year ending June 1st, 1857.	Year ending June 1st, 1858.	Year ending June 1st, 1859.

The school board consists at the present time of the following named gentlemen, viz: E. C. Fuller, James Ruthven, R. A. Henry, Frederick Kreilick, John Nape, Julius Welner, and others.

Its officers are as follows:

President.....James Ruthven.

Secretary.....E. C. Fuller.

Treasurer.....R. A. Henry.

The graded school building, to which the other schools in the city are subordinate, is located on a beautiful eminence on the corner of Washington avenue and Vine street, commanding a view of the whole city, including Hyde Park and Providence. The site is admirably selected, both on account of its healthfulness and beautiful scenery which it affords. On the preceding page is an electrotype cut, taken from a photographic view of this building, which we have obtained expressly for this report.

The old borough of Hyde Park is included in Wards 4th, 5th, and 6th of the present city of Scranton. The city charter has left intact the school organization, and the said three wards are a district under the common school law of this State. The graded school of this district has had for the present school year a corps of nine teachers. J. P. Hand, a graduate of La Fayette College, of this State, has been the principal for the last two years.

The schools are conducted in two brick houses, in one of which seven teachers are employed, and in the other two teachers. The average number of children sent to the graded school the present year will be five hundred or within a small fraction of it.

Three hundred and twenty dollars a month is paid for tuition.

The school is in a prosperous condition, and one or two additional teachers are needed yearly.

Providence Borough graded school was instituted October, 1858, under the direction of James S. Kennedy, D. R. Randall, Wm. Silkman, J. R. Wint, Pulaski Carter, Dr. B. A. Bouton, with Prof. E. W. Rogers Principal. Has a fine suit of buildings situated on Prospect Hill, a view from which overlooks the entire valley. Has five graded departments and six teachers, 450 scholars. It is now under the supervision of Prof. T. R. Johnson, giving instruction in all the common and higher English branches.

The Board of Directors are: H. Roberts, J. S. Kennedy, G. W. Miller, J. R. Fordham, P. Carter, D. E. Evans.

Miners' Benevolent Society, Hyde Park.

This society was organized September 10th, 1862, and has for its primary objects the amelioration of human suffering and the promotion of moral conduct, subordinate to which is the mutual protection and support of each other by the members as laborers. It has a regular Constitution and By-Laws, the former of which provides that the officers of the association shall consist of a President, Vice President, Recording Secretary, a Corresponding Secretary, Treasurer, and four Trustees.

The association is divided into eight branches, numbered from one to eight, respectively, and is composed of about one thousand members.

Its regular meetings are held the first Saturday in each month, at Fellows' Hall, Hyde Park.

Election for officers is held each year in the month of January.

A monthly due of twenty-five cents from each member is required, to cover expenses and create a fund for the assistance of invalid members, who are entitled to three dollars a week while unable to labor. Over one thousand dollars was dispensed in this way during the last year.

The society is in a healthy and flourishing condition, and is quietly yet effectually carrying out the objects of its organization, namely, ameliorating human suffering and infusing a moral tone, not only among the members themselves, but throughout the community in which their influence is exerted.

The officers for the present year are :

President	Thomas Evans.
Vice President	David Mosier.
Secretary	William Hennessy.
Treasurer	Thomas Watkins.

The Hibernian Benevolent Association of Hyde Park.

This association is, as its name indicates, a charitable society, and was chartered September 11th, 1858. Since its organization it is no exaggeration to say that it has accomplished a good work in aid of suffering humanity, by attending and relieving the sick, extending succor to the poor and needy, sympathizing with the afflicted and distressed, and performing the last sad offices to the dead.

The primary objects of the association are charity and brotherly love to all, to encourage virtue, temperance, and morality, and inculcate that love of order and good will among all men that should denote the good citizen.

To indicate the active working of the organization, it will suffice to remark that a lot has been purchased, a large and substantial stone foundation laid, on which the society propose to erect a handsome and commodious hall in which to hold their meetings. It is also proposed to found a library and establish a lyceum as soon as their finances will permit.

The site of their proposed hall is on the corner of Chestnut street, in the 4th Ward, opposite the residence of E. Heermans, Esq., and is one of the beautiful locations of the city. From its elevated position a view of unrivaled beauty and magnificence is obtained. The silvery waters of the Lackawanna wind their serpent-like course in the valley beneath, while on either bank is seen substantial evidence of the wealth and enterprise of the flourishing city of Scranton.

The regular meetings of the society are held on the 2nd Saturday in each month, at Graber's Hall, Hyde Park. Average number of members, one hundred and fifty.

Present officers of the society :

President	M. O'Meara.
Vice President	Garrett Walsh.
Secretary	Edward Mahon.
Treasurer	Daniel O'Grady.

The Scranton Lyceum.

The Lyceum was temporarily organized August 2d, 1866, in the rooms formerly occupied by the Young Men's Christian Association, on Wyoming avenue, by P. C. Carling, M. Norton, E. Mellon, F. Gunster, J. Gunster, F. J. Amsden, C. H. Welles, C. E. Pryor, E. H. West, and J. A. Price, and in the same month a permanent organization was formed by the election of J. A. Price, President, and P. C. Carling, Secretary. A few months existence proved the Lyceum to be a growing institution, and the rooms on Wyoming avenue became too small to accommodate its visitors and members, when the Christian Association rooms were vacated for the more spacious room known as Wyoming Hall, on Lackawanna avenue, where it at present holds its meetings. Its present officers are:

President	J. T. Howe.
Vice President	H. R. Crawford.
Secretary	L. C. Mosier.
Treasurer	J. Gunster.

Since its organization it has obtained the membership of some of the most prominent citizens of the city. An application has been filed for its incorporation, with a view to make it one of the institutions of the young City of Scranton.

Its present membership consists of something more than fifty.

The White Star Lyceum

of Hyde Park was organized March 12th, 1867, with the following officers:

President	A. S. Whitaker.
Vice President	D. W. Connelly.
Recording Secretary	William E. Walsh.
Financial Secretary	J. E. Powell.
Treasurer	R. H. Holgate.

The Lyceum meets every Tuesday evening at Eynon's Hall, Hyde Park, Penna. The public are respectfully invited to attend.

Masonic.

There are in the present City limits five Lodges, one Chapter, one Council, and one Commandery.

On the 30th of July, 1863, the Masonic Hall was burned and many of the properties belonging to the different orders destroyed. They now occupy a capacious Hall fitted up in the building now owned by the First National Bank, where all the orders meet, except Hiram Lodge, No. 261, Hyde Park Lodge, No. 339, and Mt. Carmel Council, No. 30.

LINCOLN LODGE—PROVIDENCE.

Lincoln Lodge, No. 492 (formerly Dunmore), was instituted at Dunmore, June 27th, 1853, Joseph Godfrey, Henry W. Derby, C. H. Derby, R. W. Kipple, Geo. B. Wert, charter members; was removed to Providence, its present location, November 1st, 1864. Officers: Elisha Hunt, N. G.; John Levi, V. G.; John Long, Secretary; John Lewis, Treasurer; C. H. Derby, Rep. to G. L. Has fourteen Past Grands, and one hundred and thirty members, and is in a very flourishing condition.

Independent Order of Good Templars.

SCRANTON LODGE, No. 158, was organized Feb. 6th, 1866, with the following named charter members, viz :

A. H. Coursen, E. R. Walters, Moses Caldwell, A. E. Albright, J. W. Brock, G. B. Silsbee, George Coray, R. S. Benjamin, D. N. Green, J. E. Lent, J. B. Siste.

The Lodge is in a healthy and thriving condition, numbering at this time 405 members, with an average attendance each evening of one hundred and fifty. The Lodge room is a well ventilated and spacious apartment, handsomely decorated and furnished, located in the third story of Charles Schläger's building, known as Wyoming Hall, on the corner of Washington and Lackawanna Avenues. Meetings are held on every Monday evening at 8 o'clock. The present officers of the Lodge are—

Sons of Temperance.

Scranton Division, No. 283, Sons of Temperance, was instituted June 29th, 1866, with eight members—to wit: Benjamin Jay, T. N. Watson, J. S. Ruple, Geo. B. Chase, I. B. Sisty, G. P. McMillan, J. B. Adams, and J. R. Barlow,—in addition to these, Charles Fuller and F. S. Gerard were petitioners for a charter and subsequently became members of the Division. Although the Division has not increased in members and power as rapidly as could be desired, yet there has been a steady and healthy growth of earnest workers in the cause, who are Temperance men from a conviction of its vital importance as a means of moral reform. The Division at this writing numbers some 60 members. The present elective officers are: J. S. Ruple, W. P.; D. K. Kressler, W. A.; M. F. Stilwell, R. S.; J. B. Adams, O. R. S.; G. B. Chase, F. S.; Watts Cooke, Treas.; J. J. Maycock, Chap.; F. W. Watson, Con.; H. S. Robeson, A. C.; Jas. F. Randolph, I. S.; Fred. Fellenser, O. S.

Scranton Base Ball Club of Scranton.

This Club, now eminently and justly an organization which Scranton and vicinity may well be proud of, was first organized under the name of "Wyoming B. B. C." by James A. Linen, M. D. Botsford, H. C. Dowd, F. H. Simpson, P. C. Carling, and C. H. Welles, May 6, 1865.

Up to this time Base Ball—now the great National game—had hardly been thought of in this community, and the original organizers named above, had scarcely faith enough to attempt to start the enterprise, but Mr. James A. Linen, to whom the Club is really indebted for its birth, and largely its grand success, infused his spirit into others, and with this commencement it rapidly grew in favor and support. The first challenge for a match was received from the Susquehanna Club of Wilkes-Barre, and accepted August 29th, 1865; game to be played upon the grounds of former, Friday, Sept. 1, 1865, play to be called at 3:30 p. m. This announcement to the public gave a new incentive to the interest in the club, now rapidly increasing. The match came off at the time and place appointed, in the presence of a large number of citizens of both sexes, amid great enthusiasm, and proved a signal victory for the Scranton Club, which lucky star has followed the organization to the present time.

On the 11th July, 1866, the name of the club was deemed inappropriate, as it had no local significance, and no claim could be made to it, it was therefore changed to its present title, under which the organization has been chartered by an Act of Assembly, approved the 23d day of March, A. D., 1867, with power to hold lands, execute leases, sue and be sued, &c. The Club has labored under a great disadvantage in procuring suitable grounds within convenient limits, till in the spring of 1866 they succeeded in securing grounds of the Lackawanna Iron & Coal Co., situate on the banks of the Lackawanna river, for a term of five years, but the onward march of improvement put a railroad through the centre of the same, destroying them for Base Ball purposes, causing a loss to the Club of about $500. This compelled them to locate new grounds, which they have succeeded in doing on the lands of Ira Tripp, Esq., known as the Scranton Race Course, directly alongside of the track of the People's Street Railway of Luzerne County. These grounds have been secured for one year, with the privilege of three years additional, and at the present writing are being put in condition for play and practice. The present grounds are pleasantly located, and it will be the effort of the club to make them attractive to visitors and all lovers of the game of Base Ball. Since the organization of the Club it has played some fifteen matches with various Clubs from this and New York State, and out of that number has vanquished all but one, and that the famous "Athletic," of Philadelphia. The record of the Scranton B. B. C. is one that any Club in the country may justly be proud of—and it is the aim of its members, (which number about 150 active and sustaining,) to preserve its laurels and trophies untarnished, and keep this manly and noble game pure from immoral influences or anything calculated to render it in any degree less than what it should be—beneficial to all connected with it, morally, physically and mentally, and to discountenance the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage.

The following have composed the 1st nine, winning the glory on the field up to the present time: J. A. Linen, Captain and Pitcher; M. D. Botsford, Catcher; Wm. M. Silkman, 1st Base; H. C. Dowd, 2d Base; R. J. Matthews, 3d Base; Walter Chur, Left Field; Charles A. Hurlbutt, Centre Field; Wm. T. Hickok, Short Stop. The position of Right Field has been filled by different ones.

April 3, 1867, the Club re-organized under its charter, and elected officers for the ensuing year as follows: Fred. Fuller, President; Wm. M. Silkman, Vice-President; M. D. Botsford, Treasurer; F. L. Hitchcock, Recording Secretary; H. A. Coursen, Financial Secretary; Alex. Ruthven, Scorer. A brilliant season is anticipated for the present year.

Scranton Fire Department.

By authority of an ordinance, passed by the councils, Lady Washington Engine Co., No. 1, Scranton, and Franklin Engine Co., No. 1, Hyde Park, elected the following as officers of the Fire Department, in July, 1866, viz:

Chief -----	John R. Keeley.
1st Asst. Chief -----	J. B. Adams.
2nd Asst. Chief -----	Samuel Heller.
Treasurer -----	J. W. Gregory.
Secretary -----	Wm. Brock.

There are at this time within the city limits the following companies:

Lady Washington Steam Fire Engine, No. 1.

Lady Washington Engine Co., No. 1. (Company disbanded.)

Franklin Engine Co., No. 1.

Nay Aug Hose Co., and

Neptune Engine Co., No. 1.

Besides these engines, manned and fully equipped for active service, the councils have made an appropriation for the purchase of three carriages, ladders, hooks, and ropes for the 4th, 2nd, and 8th Wards. They are purchased and will be fully manned on the arrival of the carriages.

Homeopathic Medical Society.

The Homeopathic Medical Association for Luzerne Co. was organized in Scranton, October 24th, 1866, at the office of Dr. Chas. A. Stevens.

The following Physicians were present: Dr. A. P. Gardner, of Dunnings; Dr. Wm. Brisbane, of Wilkes-Barre; Dr. J. P. Pfouts, of Wilkes-Barre; Dr. G. Sperling, of Pittston; Dr. A. F. Crans, of Carbondale; Dr. A. E. Burr, of Scranton, and Dr. Chas. A. Stevens, of Scranton.

The officers elected were

Dr. Chas. A. Stevens, M. D.-----President.

Dr. A. P. Gardner-----Vice President.

Dr. William Brisbane-----Secty.

Dr. A. E. Burr-----Treas.

Drs. Sperling, Crans, and Pfouts were appointed Censors.

The Medical Men of the Valley.

In this brief mention of the medical men who have lived and still do live in this vicinity only a brief space can be allotted, and from the necessity of the case many will be noticed who have never lived in what is now the city limits, but they practiced their professions among the early settlers of old Providence township. All these will be classified as far as practicable according to dates, making certain landmarks of the most conspicuous, filling up with names of others together with time of the entrance to and exit from the scenes of their labors.

As landmarks we mention the names of Doctor Joseph Davis, Dr. Silas B. Robinson, Dr. B. H. Throop, and Dr. B. A. Bouton—two dead and two living—who perhaps more than others have made a lasting impression upon the people of this community.

1771—DR. JOSEPH SPRAGUE.

The first practicing physician of the upper Lackawanna, was Dr. Jos. Sprague, a native of Hartford, Ct. He settled between Spring Brook and Pittston Ferry. As the inhabitants were few he paid more attention to speculation in land than to medicine. He died in his native State in 1784.

1772—DR. WILLIAM HOOKER SMITH.

Although living in Wilkes-Barre, attended to medical calls in this part of the county; he at one time erected a furnace for smelting iron at Old Forge, and is the first man in the valley who succeeded in burning stone-coal. He lived an honorable and upright life, and died in Wyoming county at the advanced age of 91 years.

1773—DR. JOSEPH DAVIS.

The third Physician coming to the valley was Doctor Davis, who more than any man of his time was famous for his bold and skillful appliance of the healing art. He was born in New Haven, Ct., in 1732, and graduated at Yale College; he settled here soon after the Revolutionary war, and such was his ability and force of character, that in spite of uncouth manners and eccentric habits he controlled the whole surgical practice of the two vallies and a large extent of country for 150 miles around. The Doctor as he waxed old became a persistent hoarder of money, and quite a sum of silver dollars was found in an old wooden chest some years after his death, which occurred July 30th, 1830, at the extraordinary age (for a physician) of 98 years.

1789—DR. NATHANIEL GIDDINGS.

Came to this valley in 1789. He was a man of few words, fine attainments, and a christian gentleman of the old school. In 1851 he died full of honors and full of years.

1812—DR. REUBEN MONTROSS.

A singular character by the name of Doctor Montross lived in Northmoreland about the year 1812. He possessed a great deal of shrewdness and knavery, and by his strong will gained an immense reputation among the superstitious and ignorant. He boasted of being the 7th son of the 7th son, no daughter intervening to break the magic number. He was one of the natural bone-setters; performed incantations and talked away burns—Doctor Hollister (from whose notes these sketches are taken) in his forthcoming history of medical men, relates many amusing anecdotes about old Doctor Montross.

1813—DR. MASON CRARY.

Practiced medicine in this locality for 11 years. He died in Wayne county, September, 1856.

1815—DR. WILLIAM N. NICHOLS.

Practiced in this territory somewhat extensively, although settled in the adjoining town of Abington at Clark's Green. He died suddenly in 1824.

1823—DR. SILAS ROBINSON.

The next land-mark indicating a new era was Dr. Robinson, who lived long and observed many of the stirring events in the Upper Lackawanna. He was a connecting link between the old stage coach days of Slocum Hollow and the fast Iron age of Scranton city. He was the first Doctor settling in Providence township, which at that time (1823) contained three hundred and sixty-eight souls. A modest and unassuming man, making no pretensions to eminence, he was a man, of strict integrity, charitable disposition, and had a kind heart. He died in 1860, deeply regretted by a large circle of friends and former patients.

1824—DR. ANDREW BEDFORD.

Settled in Abington in 1824, and although never a resident of Scranton or Providence, yet he has been so intimately connected with its growth and prosperity that honorable mention is made of him in this connection. Dr. B. practiced medicine for 16 years, since which time he has turned his attention to the Drug trade—and other pursuits—occasionally acting as consulting physician. His social qualities, affable manners, and strict integrity render him exceedingly popular as a citizen. He still resides in Waverly borough.

1834—DR. HIRAM NICHOLS.

Resides at Clark's Green, where he settled in 1834, soon after graduating.

1834—DR. DAVID SEAYER, born in the adjoining County of Susquehanna, moved into Providence Township in 1834, where he remained until 1837, when, owing to the prevalent financial crash, he was forced to leave to avoid imprisonment for debt.

1839—DR. HIRAM BLOIS

settled in Providence in the year above stated. He made his exit from Providence to Honesdale in 1841.

Also in the same year came to Providence, Doctor Osgood, in the character of a Root doctor. His name is mentioned here because he came and went.

1840—DR. B. H. THROOP.

Doctor Throop was born, 1811, in the village of Oxford, N. Y., read medicine with the celebrated Dr. Packard, of Oxford, and graduated in 1833, at the Fairfield Medical College. Soon afterwards he settled in Honesdale, where he rapidly rose to the head of his profession.

Not being satisfied with this locality, he removed to Oswego, N. Y., where he practiced one year. In 1835, Dr. Throop located in N. Y. City, where he became enamoured with the passion of speculation which has never yet deserted him. The years 1837-38-39 were passed by the Doctor mostly in Carbondale and Providence and he was not considered a permanent resident of this Valley until 1840. Doctor Throop is a bold, quick thinker, of great perceptive powers, and in his treatment of disease pays more heed to common sense than any other physician in the Valley; he is now in the prime of life, and is too well known in this community to need an extended notice in a work of this character.

1845.—DOCTOR WILLIAM H. PIER.

Doctor Pier is a native of this State, and settled in Hyde Park in 1845, making, with Dr. Throop and Dr. Silas Robinson, the only physicians practicing between Pittston and Carbondale. In 1846 Doctor Pier moved across the river to Scranton, where he has since continued to reside, with the exception of a temporary residence of three years at Wilkes-Barre, while Prothonotary of this County. Dr. Pier is a square, frank, honest man, and very popular among all classes as a physician. He is now Post Master of Scranton.

1846—DOCTORS HANFORD & HOLLISTER.

Dr. Nehemiah Hanford settled this year, 1846, in Providence, where he enjoyed a limited practice for two years, when he returned to N. Y. State and died soon afterwards.

Doctor H. Hollister was born in Wayne Co., in 1822, studied medicine with Dr. Throop, and graduated in 1846, whereupon he immediately located in Providence. He is a shrewd, industrious, and eccentric character; has devoted much time to literary pursuits and historical research and is really destined to make a mark upon our times which will be remembered long after every physician now residing in northern Pennsylvania is dead and forgotten. Doctor Hollister has an extensive and lucrative practice; is the author of the history of the Lackawanna Valley; is proprietor of a batch of family Medicines, and last, though not least, has gathered together a large and valuable collection of Indian relics, the last remaining trace of the red man once existing in our midst.

1847—DR. WHEELER.

1847—During this year Dr. Silas M. Wheeler, a native of the State of New York, settled in Waverly. He practiced medicine for several years. Selling his property to Doctor H. S. Cooper, he removed to Hawley, Wayne County, Pa., and a year or two afterwards moved to Hyde Park, where he continued until 1861, when he returned to Waverly, where he enjoys a large and lucrative practice. The subject of this sketch is a man of rare ability, devotedly attached to principle, and whose opinions, right or wrong, are adhered to with a tenacity and firmness never seen except among those in the full consciousness of being right.

1847—DOCTOR J. C. MILES, a native of Susquehanna County, commenced his professional course in Abington, in the year above mentioned. He is of a speculative cut, and devotes a considerable portion of his time to mercantile pursuits. He is still living at Waverly, Pa.

1850—DR. ROBERTS.

At this time Dr. Henry Roberts removed from Skinner's Eddy to Providence, where he continued for three years, when he transferred his property and practice to Doctor Bouton. After an absence of many years, engaged in other pursuits, he again came to Providence, where he still follows his calling.

1850—DOCTOR JULIAN N. WILSON was the first physician who settled in Dunmore, after the departure of Doctor Hamlin. Thirty-four years before, after practicing here for two years, he removed to Salem, Wayne County, where he has resided until lately. We believe he has settled in Carbondale.

1851—DR. JAMES MCMILLAN

opened an office in Dunmore, but not being pleased with the location he removed to California the year afterward.

1851—DOCTOR JOHN B. SHERRERD took up his abode in Scranton and soon after went into a partnership with Doctor Throop. The second drug store in Scranton was erected by Dr. Sherrerd, which at that time was considered too far down town for a success. It is the building next to and above Hunt Brothers hardware Store. Soon after Dr. Sherrerd had finished and stocked his drug store he was prostrated by typhoid fever and died universally regretted by every one.

1852—DR. GEO. W. MASSER.

Hearing of the prosperity of the coming city, left an extensive practice at Mauch-Chunk and emigrated, as many had done and many were destined to do, to this fast growing town. At this time himself, Dr. Pier, and Dr. Throop, were the only physicians of any note in Scranton proper. In 1862 Dr. Masser, in company with Dr. Allen, of Hyde Park, reported to the Medical Director at Fortress Monroe, where he was immediately invested with important duties in that department, in which position he continued until his transfer to the department of the West, where he continued until nearly the close of the war. Dr. M. still resides in Scranton, and holds the office of examining Surgeon for Pensions.

1852—DR. ANDREW NILES.

Opened an office in Dunmore where he practiced a short time and removed to Waymart.

1853—DR. B. A. BOUTON.

Is the oldest medical practitioner in this valley, and one of the best.—For upwards of 40 years he has been a faithful observer and earnest worker at the bedside of the sick and suffering, knowing little of what is going on in the busy world around him, and thinking of nothing but the details of his business. The Doctor with step unsteady but eye undimmed, still continues to bring to suffering humanity the aid of a long experience and wonderful fertility of resource which few can command. Dr. Bouton was born in New Haven, Ct., graduated at Philadelphia, and first settled in the village of Tunkhannock, where for over a quarter of century he stood first and foremost in the estimation of the people along the Susquehanna. In 1853 he removed to Providence, where at a ripe old age he continues his arduous routine of professional duties, and will probably die in the harness.

1853—DR. JOHOTHAM LEAVITT.

Opened an office in Scranton, but only practiced a short time (one year) when he accepted a tempting salary as Physician on the Panama Rail Road, since which time but little is known of him.

1853—DR. GEORGE B. LEAMANS.

A student of Dr. Miles and graduate of the Pennsylvania Medical College, settled in Dunmore, he being the 5th Physician of that place. In 1865 Dr. S. removed his family to the State of Delaware, where he intends permanently to reside.

1853—DR. J. P. KLEEGER.

Came to Scranton, practiced medicine in a few families, when he left for the Panama Rail Road.

1854—DR. A. DAVIS.

Removed from Factoryville to Scranton and built the first house on Franklin avenue. In 1857 in connection with Mr. Adams, was Editor and Proprietor of the Herald of the Union, in which capacity he continued for three years, taking in as a partner Dr. S. M. Wheeler, one year after Mr. Adams retired. In 1861 he removed across the river to Hyde Park, where he has since practiced, with the exception of nine months as Surgeon in one of the Pennsylvania Regiments, in the Army of the Potomac.

1854—DR. LUCIUS FRENCH.

A native of New York State opened an office in Hyde Park. Soon afterwards he formed a copartnership with Dr. Squire, which terminated in 1859, when Dr. French returned to N. Y. Dr. F. joined the army in 1862, and is now a resident of Davenport, Iowa.

1855—DR. R. A. SQUIRE.

After practicing one year with his preceptor, located in Hyde Park where as above mentioned he formed a partnership with Dr. French.—Soon after Dr. French left Hyde Park Dr. S. came to Scranton, where he still continues to practice with an industry and success excelled by none and equalled by few.

1856—DR. S. B. STURDEVANT, son of Hon. John Sturdevant, was born 1830, read medicine with Dr. Bouton, received his degree of M. D. at the Jefferson Medical College, and opened an office in Dunmore in the above mentioned year. In 1863 Doctor Sturdevant joined the army of the Potomac in capacity of Surgeon, where he followed its varying fortunes until peace was declared. Dr. S. is now following his calling in Providence.

1856—DR. M. H. CAPWELL,

a native of Factoryville, Wyoming County, settled in Dunmore, in 1856; practicing here for several years he returned to his native village, where, unlike most prophets, he is honored in his own country.

1857—DRS. FROTHINGHAM, GIBBS, MARSH, AND MARR.

In 1857, Drs. Frothingham, Gibbs, Marsh, and Marr located in this vicinity nearly at the same time. Doctor William Frothingham continued to practice medicine until the commencement of the late war, when he joined a New York Regiment as Surgeon, where he continued, until ill health forced him to resign. He is now practicing in N. Y. City.

Doctor J. W. Gibbs located in Hyde Park, where he at present resides and has command of a lucrative practice.

Doctor A. F. Marsh, the 16th regular physician settling in Scranton Borough, was an Englishman by birth and exhibited many of the peculiarities of the foreigner who never means to be Americanized. In 1859 Dr. M. went to Maryland, and from thence to the Army of the Potomac as Surgeon, and was taken prisoner in the retreat of McClellan from Richmond. Soon after being exchanged he received the appointment of Medical Director in the Department of the South and was honorably discharged at the end of the war. He is now located at Port Jervis, N. Y.

Doctor Marr is dead.

Doctor E. W. Wells, a student of Dr. Bouton, opened an office in Scranton, carrying on at the same time the business of a Druggist. He is now engaged principally in the manufacture and sale of Patent Medicines and resides in N. Y. City.

1859—DOCTORS GREEN & LADD, located in Scranton borough. Doctor William Green continued in Scranton until 1862, when he removed to the state of New York, and engaged in the drug trade. Doctor Horace Ladd was born in 1826; after practicing two years in Philadelphia, located in Scranton, where he still resides.

1861—DOCTOR FRANCIS WAGNER, was born in Hanover, Germany; graduated in Goettinger, in 1857, practiced in Honesdale two years, and located in Scranton, 1861.

DOCTOR GEORGE B. BOYD,

first came to Scranton in 1853 or '54, and purchased of the estate of Dr. Sherrerd, the drug store built by him; he continued in the drug trade until nearly the commencement of the war, when he entered a hospital in Philadelphia, and continued in the Medical Department of the U. S. until the close of the war, and then commenced practice in Scranton.

1866—DOCTOR N. Y. LEET.

born in this State, in 1831; graduated in 1853, at the University of Pa.; entered the army at the beginning of the war as surgeon, and remained in that capacity until hostilities ceased. January 1st, 1866, Doctor Leet entered into partnership with Doctor Throop, in Scranton, where they both continue to practice.

1866—DOCTOR A. W. BURNS, a native of Susq. Co., graduated in 1866, at Burlington, Vt., and settled in Scranton in July of the same year.

1867—DOCTORS BENTON & FISHER.

Doctor J. B. Benton, a native of Owego, N. Y., was born in 1811, practiced for the most of his life in the State of New York, and came to Scranton, May 1st of the present year.

Doctor Chas. H. Fisher commenced practice in the army, entering the service as a medical cadet and leaving it as Surgeon U. S. C. V.; he commenced practice in Scranton in connection with Dr. Benton.

HOMŒOPATHISTS.

1854—DOCTOR A. P. GARDENER

was the first Homœopathic physician locating in Scranton; this was in '54, where he continued until ill health forced him, in 1859, to relinquish his practice and move to his farm in Madison township, where he now resides.

1855—DOCTOR REYNOLDS

opened an office in Scranton, about this year, and only remained a short time.

DOCTOR A. F. HUNT

located in Scranton in 1858, and remained until 1862, when he went to Massachusetts.

1862—DOCTOR CHAS. A. STEVENS, a native of Delaware County, N. Y., was born 1818, graduated at Geneva Medical College in 1841. Soon after he investigated homœopathy, adopted it, and for the last twenty-five years has been successfully practicing that system, locating in Scranton in June, 1862.

1865—DOCTOR A. E. BURR

graduated at the Albany Medical College in 1859, first located in Carbondale, in 1859. From there, after spending six months in California, he came to Scranton in 1865.

Notices of Business Firms.

A SPLENDID BOOT MAKER.

Peter Kahler, of Wyoming avenue, is admitted on all hands to be one of the best boot makers in this city. So celebrated is the skill of Mr. Kahler that orders for boots come pouring in from the surrounding country, for a distance of hundreds of miles. Mr. Kahler has had the honor to manufacture boots for the late President of the United States, Mr. Lincoln, and also for the present President, Andrew Johnson, from both of whom he has letters speaking in the highest terms of the fit and workmanship of his boots. Mr. Lincoln was particularly enthusiastic in his praise of Mr. Kahler's work, and in his letters assures Mr. Kahler that in all his experience he has found nobody who can compare with him in the ease and beauty of fit of his boots, or in the taste and finish of their workmanship.

MUSICAL DEPARTMENT.

The Music House of L. B. Powell, located at 116 Penn. Avenue, was established in August, 1863, and constituted an era in the growth and development of the science of music and trade in musical merchandise, not only in Scranton but in a very large section of the adjacent country. There had been previous to that time comparatively few instruments sold in the place and the demand for musical instruction was very limited. Nothing up to this time had ever been attempted in the way of advertising the sale of musical instruments through the newspapers, and when Mr. Powell announced through the different advertising mediums his intention to establish and conduct a distinct musical business, the project was regarded by the most of the citizens as an impracticable scheme and it was generally predicted that the life of the establishment would be of short duration. Trade came in slowly at first and many would have been discouraged at the result of the first half year's labor ; but by continued effort and a stern determination on the part of the proprietor to overcome all obstacles, the trade has gradually increased until the business has become one of the most extensive in the State, and the amount of goods in stock greater than can be found, with but few exceptions, outside of our largest cities. Mr. Powell has succeeded in making his establishment the centre of a large wholesale trade, and is at present furnishing dealers, not only in Pennsylvania but through a large portion of New York State. The result is all the more gratifying when we take into consideration the fact that his efforts have not only tended to build up his own trade, but have been the means of inducing others to embark in the same business, and by infusing life and activity, have consequently contributed to the success of the efforts made through other channels in this department of trade. The great increase of the music business in Scranton has also created an increased demand for musical instruction, until now the teachers in this department within the limits of the city number nearly twenty, some of them ranking very high as pianists and vocalists.

GARDNER'S BUSINESS COLLEGE.

This Institution, located on Lackawanna Avenue in this city, although commenced but little more than six months since, has by the liberal patronage which has been bestowed upon it attained a high rank and importance among the institutions of learning which grace our city. At first the enterprise was an experiment, and its success depended entirely on the ability of its managers, Messrs. Gardner & Wheeler, who have proven themselves "masters of the situation." Mr. Wheeler withdrew his interest in the management on the 1st Dec. last, and Mr. J. N. Gardner has since then had the sole conduct of this institution. He employs the services of four competent and highly educated teachers, who serve in the various departments allotted to them. A student may here obtain a thorough commercial and business education as well as a classical one.—The commercial course includes, Reading, History, Commercial Arithmetic and Correspondence, Practical Business Penmanship, SINGLE and DOUBLE ENTRY BOOK-KEEPING, Wholesale and Retail Business, Rail-roading, Shipping, Jobbing, Forwarding and Commission, Negotiating Loans, Bills of Exchange, Banking, &c. There is also a Ladies' department under the management of a competent Lady Teacher, which we are informed is well patronized, a large number of young Misses being in attendance fitting themselves for teachers.

PRODUCE AND FISH.

The Produce and Fish Market of Stewart and Slockbower, on Lackawanna avenue, just east of the Wyoming House, is a very neat and tasteful institution. This enterprise was started the first of April, by the above named gentlemen, and the success which has attended it ever since its opening, is well attested by the crowds of purchasers who flock there daily. These gentlemen are both experienced market men, and possess unrivalled facilities for procuring fresh vegetables, fresh fish, &c., &c., for their market. Families will be sure to have their tables well supplied by patronizing this market.

W. G. NEWMAN & CO.

The fish and vegetable market of W. G. Newman & Co., on Penn avenue, is really metropolitan in appearance, and a person can easily imagine, while passing through this elaborate institution and seeing the great profusion of vegetables, fresh fish, clams, oysters, lobsters, etc., etc., exposed here for sale, that he is in Washington Market in New York. These gentlemen possess facilities for the purchasing of every thing in their line that few market men have. One of the firm is stationed in New York City, and remains there, whose business it is to make purchases from day to day and send the same, by express, to the market here, thus enabling them to keep a fresh supply on hand constantly. Attached to this market is a very fine confectionery establishment, doing a large and lucrative trade.

SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS.

The following was published in the Scranton Republican, under date of April 19th :

Energy, honesty, industry, and perseverance are virtues which when properly employed are sure to carry on a successful business. As an instance of this we would call attention to the boot, shoe, and trunk store of F. E. Nettleton, on Lackawanna Avenue, opposite the Wyoming house. Mr. Nettleton not only deserves credit for the zeal and integrity with which he conducts his establishment, but deserves the support and patronage of our citizens.

Those of our citizens who have not visited the extensive and well regulated Boot and Shoe establishment of Mr. F. E. Nettleton, 406 Lackawanna Avenue, opposite the Wyoming House, are not aware of the vast improvement made in the Boot and Shoe trade of the city of Scranton.

We have long needed a first class Wholesale and Retail Boot and Shoe House in our City, and that want has been fully met by the energy and business talent of Mr. Nettleton. He is one of the best manufacturers of custom work in this section, and we understand he is prepared to supply dealers in Boots and Shoes at wholesale prices.

With an experience of 14 years in the Boot and Shoe business in one of the best Houses in New York State, there is no reason why Mr. Nettleton should not be fully up to the times in every department of his business.

Those of our citizens who have been accustomed to go to New York and Philadelphia to make their purchases cannot fail now to be accommodated in our own city. We wish success to enterprises of this kind.

MEGARGEL & CO.,

at No. 114, Lackawanna avenue, have become famous for selling good groceries of all descriptions, at the lowest possible figures. Who, in this section of country, for miles around, has not heard of Megargel & Co's cheap grocery and provision store, and great tea emporium? This firm is composed of men who perfectly understand the art of buying, and the "selling part" is a consequence that naturally follows. Housekeepers will buy of those they can make the best bargains with, and Megargel and Co. are endeavoring to make the impression that their store is the place to accomplish so desirable an object.

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

Messrs. H. & A. D. Holland, dealers in groceries and provisions, No. 426, Lackawanna avenue, have a fine stock of groceries, and are young men eminently deserving the patronage of the public. With business integrity, based on well grounded moral principles, their success in life may be considered a foregone conclusion, when we consider that to their other qualifications they unite business capacity of a superior order. Knowing them well and thoroughly, we take pleasure in commending them to the people of Scranton as gentlemen who deserve, in an eminent degree, their confidence and support.

FURNITURE.

Colvin & Co., furniture dealers, 316 Lackawanna avenue, have a splendid assortment of goods in their line, to which they invite the attention of buyers, with full assurance that they can offer them as good bargains as can be found at any other establishment of the kind in Northern Pennsylvania. They invite those in want of anything in their line, to call, inspect their wares, learn their prices, and if they are not satisfied that they can do as well or better then they can do elsewhere, they will not be urged to purchase.

FISHER & WHITMORE BROS.

Wholesale and Retail dealers in Dry Goods, are doing a very large and lucrative trade. Their store No. 319, Lackawanna avenue, is an extensive establishment filled to its utmost capacity with everything in the Dry Goods line. The basement story, which extends under the whole of their building, is also crammed full of Goods, and is used exclusively as their wholesale department. The amount of trade which this firm transacts in the course of a year is enormous, and is still on the increase. These gentlemen have transacted business in this city for a number of years past, and their uniform course of honorable dealing has done much towards establishing their large and increasing trade. Country merchants and others can here be supplied with everything in the way of Dry Goods at the lowest wholesale prices.

PERSONAL.

Among the number of retail Grocery and Provision Stores in Scranton, none are kept in neater or better style than the store of J. A. Ladd, on Penn Avenue, near Lackawanna. A large and general assortment of everything in his line is here found, and customers are politely treated by Mr. Ladd and his assistants. By an honorable and fair course of dealing he has now an enviable reputation and a large trade. Give him a call.

HOTELS.

Scranton boasts of three well conducted Hotels, viz: the WYOMING HOUSE, the ST. CHARLES HOTEL, and the FOREST HOUSE. The Wyoming House, located on the corner of Wyoming and Lackawanna Avenue, is a large brick structure, conducted by S. M. Nash, Landlord. Travelers and others will find his table well supplied with everything the market affords, and clean and comfortable apartments for lodging. The St. Charles Hotel is also a large brick building, conducted by Charles H. Brainard, Landlord, and is kept in "FIRST CLASS STYLE." It is located on Penn Avenue, near Lackawanna Avenue, and is convenient to the Rail-Road Depot. The Forest House, kept by Reed & Schoonmaker, is located on the corner of Spruce street and Wyoming Avenue, and is well conducted; having neat and clean apartments, attentive and obliging waiters, and a table supplied with all the delicacies and substantial of the season. A traveller cannot go amiss by stopping at either of the above Hotels, and we vouch for it that his wants will be well cared for.

MESSRS. DALE & KEENE

Who are actively and profitably engaged at No. 324, Lackawanna avenue in the Grocery and Provision trade, have turned their attention almost exclusively to the WHOLESALE TRADE, and intend eventually to cease the retail business altogether. They are now ready to supply the trade with all articles usually kept by Grocers at the very lowest wholesale figures. Dealers will consult their interests to a great extent by making their purchases at this establishment, thereby saving more than their expenses, and a tedious ride to New York City.

CONE & LENT.

Wholesale and Retail Grocers and Provision dealers, No. 206, Lackawanna avenue, are among the foremost of enterprising and successful dealers with which the city of Scranton abounds, and who add credit to her name and fame abroad. A community is honored by the fame of its honorable men, and in this respect, Scranton can justly claim to be the peer of any other city in the State. It is a sure basis of individual as well as of general prosperity.

G. A. & I. F. FULLER & CO.

We have rarely seen a finer store or a more attractive stock of goods, both in quality and the taste with which they are displayed, than the store and goods of the enterprising firm whose name heads this notice. Their store is No. 402, Lackawanna avenue, and their speciality Groceries and Provisions, of which they keep a large and well selected stock. The members of the firm are business men in every sense of the word ; prompt, energetic, and obliging. They have a large and growing trade which their merits as dealers and character as gentlemen fully entitle them to. In the present as in the future record of the prosperous and deserving business men of the city of Scranton, the position of the Messrs. Fuller is and will continue to be at the head of the list.

W. H. ACKERSON & CO.,

Dealers in stoves, tin and shelf hardware, cutlery, &c., &c., No. 119 Penn avenue, are young men of rare merit and good business qualifications. They commenced doing business in a basement room on Lackawanna avenue, with a small stock, and by close attention to the same have succeeded in increasing their wares, so that now, in their present location on Penn avenue, they are prepared to fill almost any order a customer may give them. Their stoves are of the most desirable and improved patterns, made with heavy castings, and the work they manufacture is the most durable and substantial kind. Their stock of hardware, cutlery, and agricultural implements is from the best manufacturers, and the assortment is well selected. Final success is a foregone conclusion for these young men if industry and close attention to business will accomplish so desirable a result.

SEWING MACHINES.

George Blake & Co., General Sewing Machine Agents, and dealers in Paper, Yankee Notions, &c., No. 322, Lackawanna Avenue, present a fair illustration of the success which invariably attends intelligent business enterprise backed and assisted by a liberal and judicious use of printer's ink. Their constantly increasing trade attests the appreciation by the public of the efforts of this firm to make themselves prominent and useful in the speciality they have chosen as a business pursuit. With one of the finest business rooms and most attractive store fronts in the city, they are bound to keep pace with the demands of their increasing custom.

GROCERIES AND FLOUR.

Among the Wholesale business Houses of Scranton, that of Messrs. Phelps & Chase, No. 212, Lackawanna Avenue, Dealers in Groceries, Provisions, and Flour, ranks among the first. These gentlemen have a well deserved reputation for fair and honorable dealing that inspires confidence on the part of all who have occasion to do business with them, either in buying or selling goods. Their success is an earnest of their thorough business ability.

WARNER & WINTON.

• This enterprising firm of Dry Goods dealers are among the leading business men of the city. In the branch of trade to which they direct their energies, they have no superiors ; and the intelligent activity displayed by them has brought its reward in the shape of a large and lucrative business, which is constantly increasing. Their Store, No. 329 Lackawanna avenue, is stocked with every variety of merchandise, and the crowd of customers with which it is daily thronged, is a sure indication that their efforts to please are fully understood.

STEAM BAKERY.

Monies & Pughe are proprietors of a Steam Bakery, No. 501 Lackawanna avenue, which is altogether the finest and largest establishment of the kind in the city. Their facilities for doing business are equal to the large and growing trade with which they are favored. They deserve the success which has thus far attended them.

MERCHANT TAILOR.

Thomas Parrott, Merchant Tailor, No. 420 Lackawanna avenue, has large experience in the trade, and as he always keeps on hand a choice stock of goods for gentlemen's garments, and fills his orders promptly, in a superior manner, there is no mystery about the success which attends his efforts. His customers are numerous, and all go away well satisfied that Parrott has done them full justice. His motto is, small profits and quick returns.

D. MORRIS,

Merchant Tailor, No. 324 Lackawanna avenue, has a fine store, a beautiful stock of cloths and furnishing goods, and is, altogether master of the business in which he is engaged. Those in want of a tasty garment, or anything in the furnishing line, cannot fail to be suited by calling on Morris, where they will receive polite treatment, and get fits as is fits, at prices, too, as cheap as first class goods made up by first class workmen can be afforded.

WATCHMAKER & JEWELER.

Mr. Peter Hättich, Watchmaker and Jeweler, No. 314½ Lackawanna avenue, is a practical mechanic of superior skill and large experience in his profession. His growing trade is an evidence that his efforts to please, are appreciated by the community in which he is located for the prosecution of his business. We predict for Mr. Hättich that full measure of success which industry and attention to business, when united with capacity, never fails to secure.

FURNITURE WAREROOMS.

From small beginnings the furniture establishment of J. H. Günster & Co., No. 213 & 215 Lackawanna avenue, has grown into one of the most extensive and thriving establishments of the kind in Northern Pennsylvania. The proprietors are gentlemen of liberal views, well posted in all the details of their business, which is prosecuted with vigor, securing to them a reward well deserved and honorably earned. Their motto is: "onward."

WATCHES & JEWELRY.

A. Petersen, Watchmaker & Jeweler, No. 309 Lackawanna avenue, has the finest establishment of the kind in Scranton, being full and complete in all its departments. His stock of watches and jewelry is unsurpassed for quality and quantity in Northern Pennsylvania, and Mr. Petersen enjoys the reputation of a high minded honorable dealer. Those who patronize him will be sure to get what they bargain for in all cases.

HARDWARE AND STOVES.

C. H. & W. G. Dowd, dealers in Hardware, Stoves, &c., No. 509 Lackawanna Avenue, are fully up with the times in the management of their business. With a large and full stock of wares such as is usually found in a well organized, first class Hardware and Stove Stores, they are prepared to offer inducements to buyers, seldom found in this part of the Country. The Messrs. Dowd do business on the square. They are an enterprising go-ahead firm, with large facilities for trade, and judging by the extent of their transactions meet with a reward commensurate with their merits.

HUNT BROTHERS,

Dealers in Hardware and Stoves, No. 430 Lackawanna Avenue, have a fine establishment, are gentlemen of enterprise and liberality, fully up to the times in everything that pertains to their business, which is a large and flourishing one, and only ask an examination of their stock and prices, fully convinced that they can do as well, if not better, by purchases of articles in their line than any other dealers in this section of the country. Make a note of these facts, and when you want Hardware, Stoves, or any other article kept in a Hardware Store, call on Hunt Brothers and be convinced of the truth of what is herein stated.

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

W. S. & J. L. Harding, No. 305 Lackawanna Avenue, have a fine and well selected assortment of Groceries and Provisions, which they offer to the public at prices that defy all efforts to undersell them. The Messrs. Hardings have established a character for fair and honorable dealing that inspires confidence that whatever is purchased of them will be as represented.

BOOTS & SHOES.

Starkweather & Son have rejuvenated their store at No. 110 & 112 Penn avenue, and filled it with the neatest and cheapest stock of Boots and Shoes to be found in the city of Scranton. They solicit the attention of purchasers, in the full belief that they can do as well or better by them than any other dealer in their line. All who call will be cheerfully waited on, and if not satisfied that we can give them bargains, they will not be urged to buy.

HARDWARE, STOVES, &c.

Messrs. Connell & Silkman, Hardware and Stove dealers No. 112, Penn avenue, have a large and varied assortment of Hardware, Stoves, and also of all goods usually kept by first class dealers in that line of trade. They are enterprising and liberal merchants, fully imbued with the spirit of the times in the transaction of their business. In addition to their ordinary trade, they are the agents in this locality for the "tin lined lead pipe," recently introduced to the public by the inventor and patentee, and which is justly esteemed one of the most important health preserving improvements of the day; as it entirely does away with the deleterious effects of lead pipe upon water and other fluids conducted through it.

PHELPS & CHASE.

Wholesale dealers in Flour, Groceries and Provisions, Lubricating Oil, Kerosene Oil, Tobacco, &c., at No. 212 Lackawanna avenue, are both gentlemen of merit. Mr. Phelps came here from Corning, N. Y., in 1863, and acted as secretary or clerk for his uncle then in business here, for nearly a year, when he commenced the business he now carries on, in the building at present occupied by Maurice Goldsmith. Mr. Chase took an interest as equal partner the 13th of December, 1865, and the business has ever since been prosecuted by them under the firm name of Phelps & Chase. Mr. Chase is an old resident of Scranton, having come here about twenty years ago. He was engaged in mercantile pursuits up to the time he entered into partnership with Mr. Phelps, and has always borne the character of an honest and fair dealer, and commanded the respect and esteem of the whole community. We would call the attention of our readers to their advertising page.

A. O. SNOW.

This Boot and Shoe manufactory at No. 117 Penn avenue, is fast gaining an enviable reputation for nice fitting and durably made work. Mr. Snow who attends to the fitting and cutting department is a workman of more than ordinary skill in his line, and never fails to give entire satisfaction. He being an excellent judge of stock, and keeping none but the very best tanned leather in his establishment and being an expert in the art of fitting withal, ensures a good job of work to his customers. Those who patronize him once are sure to do it again. Give him a trial.

The Premiums are payable in Cash, quarterly, semi-annually, or annually; but when a party desires it, one-half of each annual premium may be paid by a note, and the remaining half in cash, either semi-annually, or annually.

Its Directors will be declared annually—all the profits being equitably divided among the Policy-holders, and are payable in cash, or are paid by their application to and cancellation of the notes above mentioned.

The non-forfeitable System applied liberally to ordinary Life and Endowment Policies.

Its Directors are all pecuniarily interested in managing its affairs with strict economy.

Its business is prosperous and largely increasing, and carefully selected, which is shown by the smallness of its losses, thereby leaving an excellent prospect of large returns to the insured in the shape of dividends.

OVER DALE & KEENE'S STORE, SCRANTON, Pa.,

Where she is prepared to furnish

Wigs, Curls, Switches,

HAIR JEWELRY,

AND HAIR WORK OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,

ON THE MOST REASONABLE TERMS.

Specimens may be seen at the door. Persons in want of such articles will do well to give her a call.

Then henceforth let no maid nor matron grieve

To see her locks of an unlovely hue,

Frowsey or thin, for liberal art shall give

Such piles of curls as nature never knew.

Eve with her veil of tresses, at the sight

Had blushed outdone, and owned herself a—fright.

MYRON J. CLARK,

Merchant Tailor,

AND DEALER IN

Men's and Boy's Furnishing Goods,

(NEXT DOOR TO THE POST OFFICE,)

No. 310 Lackawanna Avenue,
SCRANTON, PENN'A.

I keep the largest stock of piece goods to be found in the City, consisting of French, English, and American Cloths and Cassimeres.

My facilities for manufacturing Men's and Boys' Clothing in a good and workmanlike manner cannot be excelled.

My foreman has had long experience as foreman for some of the best Merchant Tailoring Establishments in New York city, and my workmen are the best that can be procured. My Gent's Furnishing Goods department is, and always shall be, stocked with the best and most fashionable goods which can be procured in that line.

Orders received and promptly filled for the

“DIAMOND SHIRT.”

A large stock of these Shirts always on hand. Those in want of anything in my line will do well to call and examine my goods.

Remember the locality, next door to the Post Office,

DELAWARE, LACKAWANNA, AND WESTERN RAILROAD.

This Broad Guage Railroad is connected with the Central Railroad of New Jersey, at New Hampton N. J.; the Morris & Essex Railroad at Washington, N. J., the Belvidere Delaware Railroad at Manunka Chunk, N. J.

A daily (Sunday excepted) Passenger Train is run over this road, making close connections with trains on the roads just named, from and to New York and Philadelphia, stopping at all stations.

At Scranton close connections are made with trains on the Lackawanna and Bloomsburg Railroad and, the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company's Railroad; at Great Bend with the Express Trains on the Erie Railway.

DISTANCES.—From New York to Scranton, 142 miles; to Great Bend, 190 miles; from Philadelphia to Scranton, 165 miles.

This is the SHORTEST ROUTE FROM NEW YORK TO THE LACKAWANNA AND WYOMING COAL VALLIES; AND ABOUT AS SHORT FROM PHILADELPHIA as by any other road.

This road passes through the celebrated Delaware Water Gap, a popular summer resort, over the summit of the Pocono Mountain, from which is obtained one of the grandest prospects in the State—to Scranton, a city of 40,000 inhabitants; thence to Great Bend on the Susquehanna river, where it is connected with the great Broad Guage Erie Railway.

Between Scranton and Great Bend, there are two trains run, morning and afternoon.

For the departure and arrival of trains at the several stations of this road, distances, &c., the reader is referred to Appleton's Railway Guide and the Local Newspapers.

At present the Mail Train from New York, leaves there at 9 A. M., arriving at Scranton at 4:10 P. M.; at Great Bend at 7 P. M.

The Mail train to New York leaves Great Bend at 7:15 A. M., arriving at Scranton at 9:45 A. M., and at New York 5:25 P. M.

The Passenger Train leaves Scranton at 10:10 A. M., arriving at Great Bend at 1:35 P. M., and from Great Bend at 2:40 P. M., arriving at Scranton at 6:20 P. M.

Eastman's National Business College,

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., ON THE HUDSON.

The past year of this Institution has been one of great prosperity and its influence for good has been felt in all parts of the country. Hundreds of young and middle aged men who had found it impossible to get a satisfactory start in life, have during the past year been placed on the road to prosperity by the practical training they have received here.

In one establishment alone, (the extensive wholesale and retail stores of Lord & Taylor, New York,) more than forty graduates of this Institution are employed as Bookkeepers, Cashiers, and Salesmen, while more than eighty are at present filling positions in the best Banks and Banking Houses of the city.

THE PRESENT SUMMER.—The attractions of our beautiful city and its surroundings bring a large number here from the cities during the summer to complete our course. In no place in the United States can a student spend the few months necessary to pursue a course of his Commercial studies with so much profit and pleasure as here, and in no other place are expenses more reasonable.

The coming fall and winter promise a more extended patronage than the Institution has previously enjoyed. Beside the increase from the West consequent upon the closing of the "Eastman College at Chicago," the South will send a large increasing number here. The System of Actual Business Training (that has made it so superior to the Commercial or Mercantile Colleges,) is being revised, and every improvement will be made to meet the wants of the masses, who now understand that the age and exigencies of the times demand men who are practically, usefully educated.

GROVER & BAKER'S Sewing Machines

Were awarded the Highest Premiums at the State Fairs of

New York,
Vermont,
New Jersey,
Pennsylvania,
Ohio,
Indiana,
Michigan,
Wisconsin,
Iowa,

Kentucky,
Tennessee,
Missouri,
Alabama,
Mississippi,
Virginia,
North Carolina
California, Oregon.

At the Fairs of the American Institute, Franklin Institute, Maryland Institute, Massachusetts Mechanics' Association, Pennsylvania Mechanics' Institute, St. Louis Agricultural and Mechanics' Association, and at numerous Institutes and County Fairs, including all the Fairs at which they were exhibited the past three years. First Prizes have also been awarded these Machines at the exhibitions of

LONDON, PARIS, DUBLIN, LINZ, BESANCON, BAYONNE, ST. DIZIER, CHALONS,

And they have been furnished, by special command, to the Empress of France, Empress of Austria, Empress of Russia, Empress of Brazil, Queen of Spain, and Queen of Bavaria.

The GROVER & BAKER ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING MACHINES are superior to all others for the following reasons :

1. They sew with two threads direct from the spools, and require no rewinding.
2. They are more easily understood and used, and less liable to derangement than other machines.
3. They are capable of executing perfectly, without change of adjustment, a much greater variety of work than other machines.
4. The stitch made by these machines is much more firm, elastic, and durable, especially upon articles which require to be washed and ironed, than any other stitch.
5. This stitch, owing to the manner in which the under thread is inwrought, is much the most plump and beautiful in use, and retains this plumpness and beauty even upon articles frequently washed and ironed until they are worn out.
6. The structure of the seam is such that, though it be cut or broken at intervals of only a few stitches, it will neither open, run, nor ravel, but remains firm and durable.
7. Unlike other machines, these fasten both ends of the seam by their own operation.
8. With these machines, while silk is used upon the right or face side of the seam, cotton may be used upon the other side without lessening the strength or durability of the seam. This can be done on no other machine, and is a great saving upon all articles stitched or made up with silk.
9. These machines, in addition to their superior merits as instruments for sewing, by a change of adjustment, easily learned and practiced, execute the most beautiful and permanent embroidery and ornamental work.

New and Important Invention.

No. 1 Shuttle or Lock-Stitch Machine.

No. 1 Shuttle or Lock-Stitch Machine.

The attention of TAILORS, MANUFACTURERS OF CLOTHING, BOOTS AND SHOES, CARRIAGE TRIMMERS, and all others requiring the best and most effective LOCK-STITCH Machines, is invited to this latest novelty in Sewing Machines.

This Machine is distinguished from others of its class by the following

POINTS OF EXCELLENCE.

1. Movement is imparted to the needle by a revolving shaft without gears, or cog-wheels, or cranks.
2. A stationary, noiseless regulator causes the precise motion required to be imparted to the needle throughout each revolution of the shaft during its continuous rotary action.
3. In consequence of this arrangement the Machine is almost noiseless, even in rapid action, runs with a steadiness and rapidity never before realized in heavy machines, and is the most powerful and strongest machine in use.
4. The simplicity and durability of its mechanism so far surpasses other machines of its class, that liability to derangement and getting out of repair is effectually precluded.
5. By new and simple devices, the difficulties resulting from unevenness of tension upon both shuttle and needle thread are overcome in this Machine.
6. It uses with equal facility silk, cotton, and linen thread, and executes perfectly all kinds of sewing, from the thinnest muslin to thick leather.

ENGLISH AND GERMAN

JOB PRINTING OFFICE.

The undersigned has lately made large additions to his JOB DEPARTMENT, and is now prepared to do all kinds of work in his line, from the largest Handbill and Poster, to a small Label, in the ENGLISH OR GERMAN LANGUAGE.

A share of the public patronage is respectfully solicited.

FREDERICK WAGNER,
Scranton, Pa.

THE "SCRANTON WOCHENBLATT,"

(THE ONLY GERMAN WEEKLY PAPER IN THIS CITY), has a larger circulation than any other German paper in the County.

Business men and others wishing to advertise their specialties among the German population, will find it to their advantage to advertise in the "Wochenblatt," as it reaches districts where hardly an English paper is taken.

SUBSCRIPTION: $2 Per Annum, in Advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING AS LOW AS ANY.

PENN AVENUE, SCRANTON, PA.

BRISTOL HOUSE,

MAIN STREET, PROVIDENCE,

O. N. SALSBUURY, PROPRIETOR.

This House is centrally located, being on the line of the Street Railways from Scranton, and is fitted up and kept in first class style. Strangers will find here all the comforts of home, and charges moderate.

NOTICE.

Parents and Guardians will be interested in the advertisement of the Misses F. & C. GALATIAN'S which may be found on the lemon-colored leaf preceding the title page.

Boarding School,

THE SCRANTON
Stove & Mf'g Co.,
SCRANTON, PA.,

Manufacturers of
COOKING STOVES, RANGES,
FURNACES,
Office & Parlor Heaters,
BASES,
Hollow Ware,
And Sinks with Brass
COUPLINGS.

Dealers and the trade will be supplied with ENAMELED HOLLOW WARE, SHEET IRON, BLOCK TIN, and TINNERS' STOCK.

MINING COMPANIES, manufacturers, and dealers will also be supplied with a superior quality of FLUE IRON, as arrangements have been made with the Catasauqua Manufacturing Company for the sale of their stock in this section.

COUNTRY MERCHANTS in places where there are no regular dealers, will be supplied with stoves, and complete stove furniture at manufacturers' rates. Odd castings furnished all customers without the extra charges which are always made at other foundries. Customers can save 25 per cent. on all repairs, by dealing at the Scranton Stove and Hollow Ware Foundry. Light Jobbing will be promptly attended to.

Send for ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE and PRICE LIST.

History of Waverly Borough.

The borough of Waverly is situated in the northern part of Luzerne county, about seven miles north of Scranton city, and one mile east of Abington depôt, on the Delaware, Lackawanna, & Western Railroad. It is a place of considerable business—rapidly increasing in size and population, containing five hundred inhabitants. It occupies a central position in the most extensive and productive agricultural region in Northern Pennsylvania, whose society is composed of highly intelligent, industrious, and prosperous farmers, and is one of the most healthy locations to be found.

In 1826 Dr. Andrew Bedford purchased of Rev. John Miller ten acres of timber land lying on each side of Main street, south of Academy street, on which the principal stores and places for business now stand, had the timber cleared off, and erected a dwelling house and office upon it the following year. At this time there were but two dwelling houses between this spot and the residence of Wm. Hartley, Esq., in Glenwood, a distance of ten miles, the practice of Dr. A. Bedford extending for many years over a circuit of more than sixty miles.

About 1830, Thomas Smith, Esq, well known in public as well as private life as a highly valuable citizen of the county, purchased of Dr. A. Bedford the corner of Academy and Main streets, which he continued to occupy until the time of his tragical death by railroad accident at Beach Haven, about two years since.

The town is principally erected upon the western portion of a tract of land originally purchased by Rev. John Miller, who was one of the first settlers of the township of Abington. A man of great strength of character and a mind of large capacity, whose pioneer service and continued devoted labors for more than half a century exercised a most beneficial influence upon the inhabitants of Abington and the surrounding townships and upon their descendants. He died in 1857, at the advanced age of eighty-four years.

Dr. Andrew Bedford, Thos. Smith, and Rev. John Miller, assisted by other enterprising citizens of the vicinity, secured the establishment of Madison Academy in the village in 1844, which under the charge of Rev. G. S. Baily, Rev. H. D. Walker, and other excellent teachers, has been productive of much good to the cause of education in northern Luzerne, Susquehanna, and Wyoming counties, many of the oldest lawyers, ministers, and business men of the county having been educated within it.—The academy building is a plain but convenient edifice, located on the summit of a beautiful hill on the eastern side of the borough, and commands an extensive and picturesque view of nearly a hundred miles circuit, including a large portion of Luzerne, Wyoming, and Susquehanna counties.

Dr. Andrew Bedford and Thomas Smith, Esq., of this borough, assisted by Jeremiah Clark, of Clark's Green, were among the first movers in the matter of a railroad from Providence to Great Bend, under the name of Leggett's Gap Railroad, took great interest in the survey of the road, accompanied the engineers, paying expenses, &c., and in obtaining an act authorizing the incorporation of the same in session of 1833. They were among the original Commissioners in said act, and obtained extension of time for the commencement of work on said road as required in original act, until the gentlemen of the Lackawanna Iron & Coal Company undertook to put the long contemplated work in operation. The Messrs Scranton and Platt, and especially the late Hon. George W. Scranton, entered upon the task of securing the accomplishment of this desirable object with a degree of zeal and effectiveness equal to the importance of the enterprise. While these exertions were being made, H. W. Nicholson, Esq., who had been engaged as attorney for the Railroad Company, removed from Wilkes-Barre to Waverly, in the western part of which he erected a beautiful mansion, and attended to the duties of attorney for the then new Companies, and so continued during the construction of the northern portion of the road, already mentioned as Leggett's Gap road, and its consolidation with Cobb's Gap road, under the present name of Delaware, Lackawanna, & Western Railroad, and continued their attorney until his decease in 1855. The borough was incorporated at August term, 1858, and contains three Churches, with their Parsonages, a large, commodious, and well ordered Hotel, a number of Dry Goods Stores, a large Drug Store with an excellent assortment, two Stove, Tin, and Hardware Stores, two Harness Shops, one Boot and Shoe Store, one Furniture establishment, one Watchmaking and Jeweler Store, and a variety of other establishments. And there is in process of erection by Andrew P. Bedford & Co., a steam Foundry for the manufacture of stoves, agricultural implements, &c. A Masonic hall and Good Templars' hall, are also to be found here. New streets are being laid out by our enterprising townsman John Stone, Esq., and others, and the difficulty which for some time has been retarding its progress is being removed. It affords great opportunities for any who desire a healthy, pleasant, and moral neighborhood to find good locations. Its proximity to the City of Scranton, and convenience to the railroad, make it valuable as well for those in active business as those who are looking for retirement. Much improvement will be made before the close of the present year. As a quiet place, where good order is observed and where intelligence prevails among the community, for its schools and its churches, no more desirable place for private residences can be found in our country. The appearance of the dwellings is plain but neat, and the streets and walks are kept in quite as good order as in larger towns.

Dr. A. Bedford still resides here, in the same place occupied by him forty years ago.

In early life a member of the Constitutional Convention of the State, and at a later period connected with the affairs of the County, his integrity of character and zeal in the prosperity of his town and county have given him an influence of superior importance. With him resides his mother, Mrs. Deborah Bedford (formerly Deborah Sutton), in the ninety-fifth year of her age, supposed to be the last survivor of the terrible Massacre in Wyoming in 1778. She retains her mental faculties in a high degree for one of such an age, and relates to her visitors with much distinctness the circumstances of her captivity and journey down the Susquehanna after being liberated by the Commander of the British and Indians. Her husband, Jacob Bedford, who was one of the early settlers of the Valley of Wyoming and participated largely in the business affairs of its citizens for a long time, died in the Borough in 1848, at an advanced age. Of the first settlers of Abington, in the centre of which this Borough is situated, nearly all have passed away, though a very large number lived beyond four score years, the longevity arising from the industry and temperance of the inhabitants, and the healthfulness of the climate.

The present Corporate officers are :

Town Council.

Improvements recently done, together with those about to be made upon the Madison Academy buildings, &c., in connection with arrangements for teachers, will, it is expected, place this Institution in a more favorable position than at any former period since its establishment. The first Board of Trustees of this Institution was composed of the following, viz.: John Miller, Thomas Smith, Lemuel Stone, Andrew Bedford, Leonard Batchelor, William Thompson, and Nicholas Reynolds. Thomas Smith, Esq., deceased, to whom the Borough owed much for its advancement, was a man of a high order of intellect and of most unyielding integrity and one of the most valued citizens of our county. His loss is deeply felt and sincerely regretted by the whole community.

In regard to the late Rev. John Miller, the following has been extracted from the history of the Abington Baptist Association, published by Rev. E. L. Bailey, A. D. 1863. Speaking of Rev. John Miller, deceased, after mentioning his having been over fifty years pastor, he says: Marked results have followed his ministerial labors both at home and abroad. He sowed "precious seed" and gathered a bountiful harvest. He stated to the writer a few months previous to his decease that the church while under his pastoral care had enjoyed fourteen general revivals and received large and frequent accessions. He had baptized on profession of faith not far from two thousand converts, attended about one thousand eight hundred funerals, and solemnized the nuptials of nine hundred and fourteen persons or four hundred and fifty-seven couples.

During that time six whole churches and parts of six others had colonized and become independent bodies at various points in the surrounding country. Seven ministers of the Gospel had also been raised up in the Church, most of whom are now settled as pastors of Baptist Churches at different and some at distant places. But Mr. Miller did not shrink from the responsibilities of other relations than those of pastor and preacher. Social duties and domestic cares claimed and received a reasonable share of his time and attention. He did not consider secular pursuits entirely inconsistent with his sacred calling.

He was accustomed to mingle with the people in their daily business and worldly avocations. He married their children and buried their dead and sympathized with them in their pleasures and privations. He could wield the axe or swing the scythe and follow the plough or gather the harvest. He could earn his bread and support his family by the toil of his own hand and the sweat of his own brow. This was not uncommon with the pioneer ministers of this then wild region.

Sketch of Humphreysville.

This is a small post town located on the D. L. & W. RR., about ten miles north of Scranton, and one and a half miles from Waverly borough. It contains a grist mill, store, hotel, blacksmith shop, cooper shop, plaster mill, and about a dozen dwelling houses. This place had its origin in 1848 by the erection of a mill dam and flouring mill by Mr. George E. Humphrey, who came here from Chester, Orange county, New York, and at that time settled here. He purchased the property of the heirs of Thos. Meredith, deceased, through their agents, Messrs. Gillespie & Pierce, then doing business in Carbondale. The site is one of the best for milling purposes in Northern Pennsylvania. The mill is a staunch built, wooden structure, four stories in height, and contains four runs of stones, doing a large amount of custom business, located as it is in the heart of the best farming district in the northern part of Luzerne county.

Mr. Humphrey is a liberal minded, public spirited man, and though his means were quite limited, he was mainly instrumental in erecting a village of considerable size and importance. Before, however, more extended plans could be matured, through financial embarrassments, he was forced to abandon further operations and sell his interest at a great sacrifice. Gideon W. Palmer, formerly Sheriff of this county, is the present proprietor of the mill property.

Churches, Schools, and Societies.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

On the 18th of November, 1802, the Abington Baptist Church in Waverly was recognized with fifteen constituent members. At this time Mr. John Miller was ordained to the work of the Ministry by a Council called for that purpose, and chosen by the Church as its first pastor. This relation was sustained with great acceptableness until 1853—upwards of half a century. At the above early period, when this whole region was a comparative wilderness and but sparsely populated, the pastorate of this pioneer church “embraced the northern part of Luzerne and portions of Wyoming and Susquehanna Counties; commencing at the summit of the Moosic Mountain on the North-east and extending down its Southwestern slope over the Abington hills and beyond the waters of the Susquehanna.”

During the semi-centennial Pastorate of Rev. John Miller, “the Church enjoyed fourteen general revivals and received into its fellowship by baptism upwards of six hundred members. The Church had also dismissed members to form six whole churches, and parts of six others, and raised up and licensed seven brethren to preach the Gospel; most of whom were subsequently ordained, and settled as Pastors of Baptist Churches.”

For some ten years and upwards immediately following the close of the first Pastorate the Church enjoyed the labors of the Rev. Charles A. Fox. Subsequently the Rev. Thomas J. Cole became its Pastor. During these successive Pastorates this “prolific mother of Churches” was blessed with the faithful ministry of the Word, and with the gracious manifestations of the Spirit’s presence and power, rendering that Word effectual in its numerical growth and spiritual edification. The fourth Pastorate, under the labors of Rev. A. M. Calkin, was entered upon Dec. 1, 1866. The present membership consists of 210 communicants.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The Presbyterian Church is the third church in Waverly in age and numbers. Presbyterianism is not indigenous to this soil. The church edifice is of semi-gothic style and is a small structure. The Church was organized as the “First Presbyterian Church and Congregation of Abington.” It numbers some ninety members—including a branch at Clark’s Green. Its principal growth is of recent date, and has taken place under the charge of Rev. Wm. J. Parrot, its present acting pastor.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH IN WAVERLY, PA.

The M. E. Church in Waverly being a component part of the Church on the Abington Circuit, it cannot well be reported separately.

The first appointment for Methodist preaching in Abington was established at Leach’s Flats, by Rev. George Peck, in 1818. The class at Clark's Green is a continuation of the original class formed at Leach's.

The second appointment was at Esther Taylor's in West Abington, near Factoryville. Out of this class has grown the Church at West Abington, and perhaps also the one at Factoryville.

The third appointment was established at Aylesworth's School-house, about the year 1830. The class formed at that place has now expanded into the thriving Church at North Abington.

The fourth appointment was commenced at Abington Centre, now Waverly, about the year 1832. At first the class here was very small and feeble, but it has steadily increased, and is now a flourishing Church.

The fifth appointment was commenced at Bailey Hollow in 1866. This is an offspring of the Church in Waverly, and now numbers about twenty-six members.

There are three Methodist Church edifices in the township, erected as follows: Waverly, 1843; West Abington, 1853; North Abington, 1860.

The entire membership of the Church in Abington is now about 450, of whom 132 hold their membership in Waverly. Among the members here is Mrs. Deborah Bedford, now in her 95th year, who was at Forty Fort during the Wyoming Massacre in 1778. She joined the first class formed at Kingston in 1788, and has been a most faithful and exemplary member of the Church nearly eighty years.

The Waverly Church edifice was thoroughly repaired during the summer of 1866, and is now a model of neatness and comfort. The Church has also a very good parsonage. Present Pastor, Rev. F. L. Hiller.

MASONIC.

Waverly Lodge, No. 301, A. Y. M., received its charter in June, 1856, and was organized in September of the same year, with the following officers: W. W. Smith, W. M.; C. A. Cowles, S. W.; Harrison Smith, J. W. There is much interest now manifested in the prosperity of the lodge, and its present condition is very fair. The hall is twenty-five feet by forty, and is very neatly furnished. The regular communications are held on the Tuesday on or preceding each full moon. The present officers are: Stephen Tripp, W. M.; J. A. La Bar, S. W.; A. J. Smith, J. W. Number of members at present, seventy-four.

GOOD TEMPLARS.

The lodge of I. O. of G. T. was organized February 3d, 1866, with between thirty and forty charter members. Since then it has been steadily progressing, numbering now one hundred and ten members. It aims at the improvement of its members in literary as well as in moral respects, and for this purpose has established two semi-monthly papers, "The Waverly Magazine," and "The Ladies' Templar," and when time permits, questions for debate are proposed and discussed. Its prospects are bright for the future. The present incumbent of the W. A.'s chair is Rev. F.

L. Hiller; the Past Worthy Chiefs are Asher M. Fell, Benj. Bedford, Almon Stone, and James R. Clark. Almon Stone is L. D. G. W. C. T., and D. T.

A HOUSEHOLD BLESSING.

Among the arts and inventions of the day, the most important, because the most beneficent, are those which contribute most to the saving of labor and the protection of health. Viewed in this light, the sewing machine occupies a prominent position, not only from its humanitarian characteristics, but from its adaption to all classes. In the drawing-rooms of the rich it is an ornament and a pastime, while to those in humbler circumstances it is a fruitful resource, a faithful friend and benefactor. The men who have been instrumental in giving to the world the benefits of the sewing machine have accomplished a noble work, and among their number the proprietors of the Grover & Baker instrument are entitled to special distinction. These gentlemen are the patentees and manufacturers of what are known as the "Elastic Stitch," and the "Shuttle and Lock Stitch" machines, the two covering the entire field in which machine sewing can possibly be applied for family use. The Grover & Baker "Elastic Stitch" machine is preferable to any other, for the reason that it is more simple in its construction, more efficient, more easily operated, and less liable to get out of order. It is almost noiseless in operation, and the durability of its mechanism renders it not only the best, but the cheapest machine in use. We have been at some pains to speak advisedly on this matter, and have no hesitation in pronouncing it incomparably superior for domestic purposes to any other instrument. We are sustained in this high estimate. Wherever these machines have been exhibited in competition with others, both in Europe and America, they have elicited the same encomiums. The proprietors seem to have labored with more regard for the public good than for pecuniary results to themselves. They have spent their money like princes in order to incorporate in their magnificent invention the highest merits of which the sewing machine is susceptible, and their efforts have been crowned with success. In examining an album of specimens of work executed on these machines, we were utterly amazed at the variety, artistic beauty and intricacy of the needle-work presented in its pages, from the rich and elaborate to the most delicate embroidery:

Mr. David Morris, No. 324 Lackawanna avenue, Scranton, Pa., is the sole agent for these machines in the Lackawanna valley, and we would call especial attention to his advertisement in this work on pages 189 and 191, showing cuts of machines, &c.

MATTRESSES AND SPRING BEDS.

Mr. B. A. Hill, whose advertisement appears on page 177 in this work, manufactures a superior article in the way of Spring Beds and Mattresses which deserves particular mention. We visited his manufactory and witnessed the modus operandi in the construction of his justly celebrated Spring Beds, and if our judgment is correct we pronounce it the ne plus ultra of all beds. The spiral spring which he uses is the only true foundation for a Spring Bed, which he puts together so securely that there is no chance for them to get out of place—a great improvement upon the old box spring bed. He also manufactures a great variety of common mattresses from the genuine curled hair to the corn husk. He showed us some fine specimens of pure “South American” and “Russian curled hair,” with which he is executing some of his best work. In short his work seems to give general satisfaction by the following list of gentlemen in Scranton who form a part of Mr. Hill’s list of customers, viz: Dr. B. H. Throop, E. S. M. Hill, Mayor of the City of Scranton, Charles Fuller, Alfred Hand, Dr. N. Y. Leet, H. N. Halstead, George Silsbee, B. S. Tripp, J. A. Ladd, Aaron Griffin, A. E. Hunt, Watts Cooke, E. N. Willard, &c. Read his advertisement on page 177 and give him a call.

WADE BROTHERS,

at No. 217 Penn av., on the direct road leading from Waverly borough to Scranton, are extensive dealers in Crockery, China, Glass and Earthen Ware. Their stock consists of the latest styles which they sell at unprecedented low prices. Their store is arranged in the most tastely and georgeous manner; and at night when lighted with gas, presents the appearance of a Fairy Palace. The gentlemen who conduct this establishment are well known to be honorable and fair dealers, and a person once dealing with them is sure to extend further patronage. Remember their number 217 Penn Avenue. ~~See~~ See their advertisement.

MYRON J. CLARK.

The extensive Clothing Establishment of Myron J. Clark, 310 Lackawanna Avenue, near the Post Office, Scranton, indicates a spirit of enterprise fully up to the times, and contrasts strongly with smaller establishments on the other side of the Avenue. His cutter, Mr. D. B. Champagne is an artist of superior merit, always making nice fitting garments, and giving satisfaction to all his customers. The best and most fashionable goods are always to be found on his counter, and gentlemen cannot fail to make a selection. Mr. Clark is well known among business men hereabouts, being one of the firm of Winton, Clark, & Co., Bankers at Providence, and is esteemed as an honorable, high-minded gentleman. See his advertisements on pages 152 & 254 of this book.

L. FRIEDMAN & BROS.

Clothiers, No. 201 Lackawanna Avenue, in Zeidler’s new building, keep a good assortment of Ready Made Clothing, Hats and Caps, &c. Having but recently located themselves in business at Scranton, they hope by a fair and honest mode of dealing to secure a share of the public patronage. See their card on page 138 in the Directory of the City of Scranton.

SMITH & McKUNE

Insurance Agents, 302 Lackawanna Avenue, Scranton, are the representatives of leading American and English Fire and Life Insurance Companies. They also have the agency for the PORTABLE FIRE EXTINGUISHER, which for efficiency in extinguishing fires is recommended by all who have witnessed its workings; R. H. McKUNE, who has charge of the office, is well known as an active and energetic business man. Though but a short time engaged in the Insurance business, he has thrown his whole energy into it, and seems determined to make a successful underwriter. See page 234, Scranton City Directory.
